PARIS, THURSDAY, SEPT. 15.—Although the Parisians have not yet returned from the country and the seaside, the theatrical season has been inaugurated by the Théâtre des Nouveautés with a new vaudeville, but constructed on old lines. We have had within recent years a good many military skits, in imitation of Champignol malgré lui; and the three acts which MM. Gavault and Bourgain have placed before us do not strike us as particularly novel. Ratignac, a rich "bourgeois," is doing his twenty-eight days' military service at Angoulême. Being newly wedded, and, therefore, loth to separate himself from his wife Hélène, he has taken her and her niece Suzanne with him to Angoulême. Hélène is very pretty, and in less than twenty-four hours the whole garrison has fallen in love with her. One night Pontgibaud, an infl mmable young lieutenant, walking past Ratignac's hotel, sees from the opposite pavement the delightful apparition of a lady very scantily clad. He makes the necessary inquiries, and, learning that this delightful apparition is Ratignac's wife, he at once takes an apartment facing the Room 23 occupied by the married couple. But Ratignac, jealous like an Othello, and not caring to leave his young wife alone in the hotel whilst he is doing his military drill, also engages rooms in the same house as the amorous lieutenant. And, thanks to the long arm of coincidence, the very rooms let to the lieutenant have been given to Ratignac. The inevitable imbroglio ensues, and we are treated to a series of scenes wherein the personages in the play appear and disappear in the time-honoured fashion. The dénouement bursts upon us somewhat suddenly. It was Pontgibaud who made a mistake when he thought that the apparition he saw was Hélène. It turns out that these graceful forms belonged to the latter's niece, Suzanne, whereupon Pontgibaud at once makes this young lady an offer of marriage, and is accepted. And Ratignac, who never knew that his domestic peace had been seriously threatened, takes his wife back to town as intact as she came. As usual, M. Torin, that inimitable actor, was the soul of the piece, and kept the house in constant laughter. M. Germain as the excited husband; M. Numa as the inflammable lieutenant; and M. Landrin as the servant-girls-admiring captain were also excellent. The female rôles in the piece are unimportant, but were well sustained by Mdlle. Labady, Mdlle. Brésil, and Madame Jenny Rose.

"FANFAN LA TULIPE." Operette, in Three Acts and Four Tableaux, by M. P. Ferrier and J. Prével. Music by M. Louis Varney, Revived at the Gaîté, Sept. 14.

Operettes do not improve—like wine—by keeping. Twenty-two years ago the work, brought out at the Folies-Dramatiques, was already then considered rather naïf. The present generation has endorsed this opinion. In the course of time the work has undergone a rather curious metamorphosis. When first produced the scene was laid in the time of Louis XIV. A few years later Fanfan la Tulipe was revived at the Chateau-d'Eau Theatre, and somewhat to everybody's surprise had moved to the Republic. As it turned out, politics had nothing to do with this unexpected change. The management of the last-named playhouse had a lot of costumes of the period of the Republic, and used those in preference to ordering new ones. The Gaîté has given us again the latter version. Fanfan is the type of the French soldier of bygone days. When he is not fighting, the ladies engross his attention. He has no less than three intrigues. One with Madame Cotonnet, another with Florise, and a third with little Pimpernelle. But the roll of the drum is heard, and Fanfan has once more to shoulder his musket, to the intense regret of the three ladies, who, desperately in love with the gallant soldier, hit upon the same plan. They disguise themselves as soldiers and leave for the front, in their turn followed by their irate husbands. An ordinary mortal would never have got clear of such difficulties. But Fanfan la Tulipe is equal to the occasion, and manœuvres so cleverly that Madame Cotonnet and Florise are each convinced that they have won the soldier's heart, whilst the discarded Pimpernelle marries Michel, one of her admirers. The work is beautifully staged, and the scene of the seizure of the Dutch fleet caught in the ice constitutes a very fine tableau. Madame Simon-Girard, who created the rôle of Pimpernelle, sang the bright music in capital style; and M. Lucien Noël was also in every way satisfactory.

AT the Variétés MM. Robert De Flers and Caillavet have read to the artists their new play, Monsieur de la Palisse. The work met with an excellent reception, and I have been told that M. Claude Terrasse's music is very appropriate and particularly tuneful. The work, which plays in the eighteenth century, will be interpreted by MM. Baron, Albert Brasseur, Casella, Petit, and Mesdames Germaine, Gallois, Lavallière, Léonie Laporte, and Duberny.

M. ANTOINE has reopened his theatre with Oiseaux de Passage, the great success of the past season, with the original cast, including M. Chelles, who, it was falsely rumoured, had surrendered his rôle to M. Antoine.

"THE MARRIAGE OF KITTY" was played at the Opera House, Jersey, on Tuesday and two following nights, by Mr Frank Wilson's company. Miss Vera Fordyce, who appears in the all-important rôle of Miss Katherine Silverton, is an accomplished actress with a fine stage appearance. Miss Fordyce made the most of her opportunities, and her vivacious acting was warmly applauded. The difficult part of Madame De Semiano was ably undertaken by Miss Kate Harwood. The part of the impressionable Sir Reginald Belsize, Bart, was faithfully played by Mr Frank Wilson, who, while emphasising all the eccentricities of Reggie, was careful not to exaggerate them. Mr Sydney Orton both looked and acted the part of John Travers admirably, and the minor rôles were ably sustained by Miss Averil May, Mr Royston Keath, jun., and Mr J. F. Leighton.

A NEW operetta, Die Narrenkappe (Cap and Bells), by Mr G. H. Clutsam, has been accepted for production at the municipal theatre of Leipzig.

MR J. W. NIGHTINGALE, of Great Yarmouth, has hit upon a novel idea for a circular for distribution in the surrounding district in the shape of a list of the visits to the theatre paid by the King and Queen since the commencement of last season.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, AUG. 2.—The fifth Gaiety company opened at Her Majesty's Theatre, on the 30th ult., in Kitty Grey, and Mr J. C. Williamson was gratified by an immense audience, in spite of great attractions elsewhere. The city was full. The British footballers played a test match v. Australia, and had 25,000 to witness it, and the sculling contest for the world's championship was viewed by over 100,000 on the banks of the historic Parramatta River. So that what the papers call "an unusual lack of enthusiasm" was rather due to over-tiredness than real apathy. Mr G. P. Huntley is, of course, the attraction, and he made great capital out of a singularly quiet part, a lesson to those who deem buffoonery as the sole aim of performer and playgoer. The stage-manager is Mr George Stephenson, and Mr Frank Tours conducts, with Mr E. T. Steyne as general director of the tour.

"THE PRODIGAL DAUGHTER," which is being revived by Mr Bland Holt, has literary excellence and a fair amount of probability, so that the actors and actresses can take genuine pleasure in their parts and seem natural without meretricious or melodramatic effort. As before the parts are played by Miss Frances Ross, Mr Albert Norman, Mr Baker, Mr Harry Vernon, Miss Harrie Ireland, Mr Maurice F. Kemp, Mr Arthur Styan, Mr and Mrs Bland Holt, Miss Jennie Pollock, Mr Carleton Stuart, and Mr Harold Scarr.

MR HARRY RICKARDS has struck an extra attraction in addition to his "big bill" at the Tivoli. Each night amateurs are competing for a cake-walk prize, the decision to be left to the audience, and as each and all are equally applauded to the echo the final selection will be watched with interest and some curiosity. Will Van Allen, Burke, Moller, and Teller, the Uessems, the Levinos, Nellie Kilburn, Tom Bass, Blutch Jones, Maud Faning, and Ella Wellington, are still in the programme.

MR GEORGE STEPHENSON'S company, headed by May Beattie and Edward Laurl, is at the Princess's Theatre, Melbourne.

MELBOURNE, AUG. 3.—PRINCESS'S THEATRE.—The musical extravaganza The Rose of the Riviera still continues to please the crowded audiences which nightly throng this favourite place of amusement. Each of the bright songs and dances with which the play is besprinkled is loudly applauded. Miss May Beatty's songs "The Rose of the Riviera," "Egypt," and "I love you," are amongst the most successful of the many good things with which the play abounds. The "humours" of the piece are in the capable hands of Mr Edward Lauri, Mr M'Naughton, and the Bovis Brothers. Judging from present appearances the season should be a successful one.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—The dramatic version of Rudyard Kipling's masterpiece The Light that Failed still continues to please a large percentage of Melbourne theatregoers. The story of Dick Heldar, who finds his love only when he loses his light, is told with all the pathos and vigor that are invested in it by the author. Mr Cuyler Hastings makes an admirable Heldar and Miss May Chevalier compels the sympathy of the audience towards the character of Maisie. The rest of this clever company also contribute larely to the success of the play. Next Saturday evening we are promised a treat in the shape of the comedy drama Sunday, with Miss Tittell Brune, an American actress, who comes to Australia with the highest credentials, in the principal part. In this piece Mr Hastings will make his final appearance in Australia prior to his departure for America.

OPERA HOUSE.—A particularly strong combination of artistes are nightly filling this theatre, and there should be no need of a change of programme for some time to come. The wonderful xylophone playing of the Musical Johnstons, the amusing business of those clever jugglers the Tossing Austins, and the eccentric dancing and quaint patter of Miss May Moore-Duprez, still continue prime favourites with the public. Other good turns are contributed by Mr Pete Baker, Miss Pearl Lovell, Miss Katherine Dahl, and the rest of the company. Mr Rickards is fortunate in having such a capable business manager as Mr Fred Aydon.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Greed of Gold was produced on Saturday evening last. Miss Eugenie Duggan plays the part of Dora Hood with force and conscientiousness; Mr Lawrence Dunbar makes an effective Harry Hood, the villain of the play; Mr Inman is robust and vigorous as Arthur Errol, the hero; Mr H. O. Willard does good work as the dumb witness; while the rest of the company fill the minor parts satisfactorily. During the play a number of striking scenes are shown, starting with a mill wheel sensation, and finishing with a Chinese opium den.

FRANK CLARK'S New Folly Company at the Gaiety Theatre is doing good business, while the Saturday evening performances at the Athenæum Hall and Temperance Building are well attended.

SYDNEY, AUG. 9.—Fiddle-dee-dee continues to attract all who love laughter-causing work free from coarseness. The artistes change their items according to Mr James's desire to let nothing get stale, and next Saturday he will produce a new piece under the name of Hoity-Toity.

THE Tivoli has added the Musical Johnstons to its programme, and they were cordially received on the 6th. An American comedian Mr Ward Lear made his first appearance in a speciality called "Robbing a Fowl House;" and this evoked roars of laughter. Maud Faning, Ella Wellington, Will Van Allen, Burke, Moller, and Teller, Nellie Kiburn, the Jones Brothers are still here, and Mr Tom Leonard was heartily welcomed on his first appearance at the Tivoli under Mr Harry Rickards' management.

THE Nemesis went down in a storm lately, nothing but bits of wreckage and two bodies out of thirty-two being found. Mr Rickard's gives a matinée benefit on the 15th, and his company, with the Fiddle-dee-dee company, will appear in a big bill.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir HENRY IRVING, March 3d, 1898.

Will be of great service.—CHARLES WYNDHAM, March 1st, 1898.

Mr A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era, March 5th, 1898.

Very useful.—Sporting Life, March 4th.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News, March 11th.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its page. they may avoid much misapprehension and troubles.—Star, March 9th.

Should be of great value. An ably compiled digest of the law relating to the theatrical profession generally.—Daily Mail, March 11th, 1898.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times, March 19th.

A PARACHUTE FLIGHT

One of the most exciting parachute flights ever attempted took place at the Recreation Ground, Great Yarmouth, on the 10th inst., and was made by Mr Stanley Spencer. The intrepid parachutist (introduced by the enterprise of Mr J. W. Nightingale), left the ground about 5 15, and after rising to a height of about three-quarters of a mile, in almost a calm, and anticipating he would then be able to descend approximately on the starting-point, he was greatly astonished and thrown out of his reckoning to discover a strong wind blowing seawards, which had not been perceptible on terra-firma. The people grew alarmed as they saw—what seemed to them—that Spencer had lost control of his apparatus, and as he drifted towards the sea there was a wild rush from the ground to the beach, where it was seen that the balloon was evidently not descending but ascending rapidly, and at the same time moving further away from the shore. Gradually the whole thing went beyond the ordinary range of vision, and the onlookers were left in doubt as to whether Spencer had dropped or not. The writer subsequently ascertained that when the parachutist felt the outer current he was undecided what to do for the best to save himself, and while considering the matter he was taken far up and away across the dreaded Scroby Sand Bank, a dangerous spot for mariners. The tugs, therefore, which had been chartered to patrol the waters in case Spencer got seawards, now found themselves helpless, as it was utterly impossible for them to cross the sandbank, and things looked black indeed for the hapless parachutist. In a happy moment Mr Edward Gray, the energetic acting-manager of the Britannia Pier Pavilion, had conceived the notion of hiring a boat and two men to personally watch over the safety of Spencer should he journey towards the sea. Then, as the balloon approached Gray, he urged his men to row for all they were worth. Imagine his horror when he saw the balloon flying across the sand bank and the tugs helpless, and to add to his consternation the boatmen refused to go any further, as to do so would be to risk their own lives. Gray persuaded and threatened, and ultimately after much talking the boat went to the rescue of the otherwise doomed parachutist Muscles were exerted to their utmost, and the tiny craft bravely swept across the bank. A few yards further on was espied the parachute, and just underneath a head bobbing up and down. Mr Gray and the men shouted their loudest to cheer up the submerged Spencer, and with renewed efforts they got alongside and dragged him out of the water in the nick of time more dead than alive. After some restoratives Spencer was able to tell his rescuers he had been in the water about forty-five minutes, and the altitude reached had been two-and-a-half miles. On the Pavilion stage in the evening Spencer gave an account of his experiences, and publicly thanked Mr Gray for so courageously saving his life. He said that as Mr Gray had himself been a parachutist, he knew something of the business. This is the highest ascent ever attempted, the usual being between 2,000 and 3,000ft.

M. LUCIEN CRESSONNOIS, an author whose Hamlet, Marie Stuart, and Crime of Jean Moret achieved considerable successes at the Porte St. Martin and Ambigu Theatres, Paris, some years ago, has tried to commit suicide by taking laudanum. M. Cressonnois has of late been unable to get any of his works accepted by a theatrical manager, and gave way to despondency. He is now at the Charité Hospital Paris, in a critical condition.

MESSRS PRESTON AND DOHERTY will produce, under the direction of Mr F. B. Woulfe, a new historical play entitled Ancestors of the Crown, by Max Goldberg, at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, on Monday. A strong cast has been secured, including Miss Gracie Lester, Miss Teresa Osborne, Miss Nina Westerleigh, and Mr John F. Preston, Mr Lewis J. Leslie, Mr David M'Farlane, and Mr Dan F. Roe. The piece will then proceed on an autumn tour.

MR ROBERT PERRIS intends producing a new play in the present month. It is written by Mr Malcolm Douglas, and is in blank verse. Mr Perris, who it will be remembered toured A Trip to Chinatown for some time, is at present touring the successful American drama, A Fight for Millions, which he produced at the beginning of this year.

GENERAL satisfaction is being expressed in Liverpool at the announcement that the Prince of Wales's Theatre, so familiarly known as "the little house in the Square," is about to be reopened. Mr J. H. French is the new lessee, Mr Sidney Beltran is to be his acting-manager, while Mr John Bayliss, who has been so long associated with the theatre as musical-director, will again fill that position.

IN spite of the great public interest evinced in the musical festival at Gloucester last week, and the almost overwhelming competition one would naturally anticipate, Mr F. R. Benson's No. 2 company, who were appearing at the Gloucester Theatre Royal, scored a record in the direction of receipts. We are informed that the theatre had never experienced such a wonderful week's business.

M. COQUELIN, the elder, the celebrated French actor, has undergone, without chloroform, an operation for an abscess in the jaw, lasting over half an hour.

MR ERNEST E. NORRIS, the enterprising manager of the Elephant and Castle Theatre, gave a copyright performance on Thursday last of a comedietta entitled Aunt Tommie. We understand, too, that Mr Norris is proposing to produce two or three new dramas at his theatre during the autumn stock season, one of which at least will be from his own pen.

MR WALTER KING is to play Mrs Sinbad, in the pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor, at the Dalston Theatre this Christmas.

A COPYRIGHT performance was given at the Opera House, Barrow-in-Furness, on Saturday last, of a play, in four acts, entitled Count Morata, written by Robert Wilford.

THE 150th performance of The Prince of Pilsen will take place at the Shaftesbury Theatre next Wednesday evening, the 21st inst. Mr Albert Le Fre, who has been absent owing to illness, has now returned to the cast.

MR FREDERICK MERER, who has occupied the position of general manager of the Fulham Theatre since the opening—a period of seven years—will take a farewell complimentary benefit on Monday afternoon, for which a varied and attractive programme has been arranged. Many leading and popular actors and actresses have kindly promised to appear. Mr Merer has made himself exceedingly popular by his unfailing courtesy during his engagement as business-manager at the Fulham Theatre.

MESSRS COVENTRY AND COLLINS'S Thoroughbred company, after eight weeks' successful tour in the north, opens the south campaign at Grand, Croydon, on Monday with a strong cast headed by Mr Julian Royce, of Sherlock Holmes fame, and Miss Ivy Hertzog.

MR HARRY E. RICKITT, acting-manager of the Theatre Royal, Windsor, is to be congratulated on the fact that on Sept. 7 Mrs Rickitt, at Windsor, gave birth to a fine vigorous daughter. Mother and child are progressing exceedingly well.

A COPY OF "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

AMUSEMENTS IN BRUSSELS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BRUSSELS, SEPT. 12.—The Brussels autumn season opened brilliantly at the Theatre Royal de la Monnaie with Wagner's Meistersinger, Leoncavallo's Paillasse, Puccini's Tosca, and Massenet's Werther. The company is first-rate, and includes such artists as Messrs Dalmorès, Albers, Belhomme, Forgeur, &c., and Mesdames Pagnot and Eyreams, and the following young and clever singers:—Mdlles. Cécile Thévenet and Baux and Messrs Laffitte, Salignac, Muratore, and Bourbon.

AT the Theatre des Galeries, Fregoli is giving a series of his unique performances, the principal items on his programme being "Nuit d'Amour" and "Paris Concert."

MESSAGER'S pretty operette, Veronique, is drawing fine audiences at the Molière, and the touching melodrama, Grigolette, is drawing tears at the Alhambra.

AT the Scala, Boesnach, chanteur mondain, the comical Denance, the pretty Madame Savary, the acrobats Theresas, and others form a very pleasant entertainment.

THE Palais d'Ete is crowded every night. The management spares no pains to secure the best talent available. This week's attractions are the Five Warwick Sisters, Grais and his baboon prodigy looping the loop, the clever duettists, Raphael Colombel; Reichen and his marvellous little dogs, Bian-Ka, a Parisian singer; the Brothers Martine, American eccentrics; and others.

THE American musical comedy, In Dahomey, is this week being played at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, by an excellent company. The two principal characters, Rareback Pinkerton and Shylock Homestead, are admirably represented by Mr Dan Avery and Mr Charles Hart, and Mr Pete Hampton does equally well in the part of the President of the Wonderful Colonisation Society, Hamilton Lightfoot, the dances in which this character indulges being loudly applauded. Mr Walter Dixon, who represents Hustling Charlie, is also a capital dancer. Miss Fanny Wise as Pansy and Miss Laura Bowman as Cecilia Lightfoot contribute considerably to the success of the entertainment.

"THE ROGERS BROTHERS IN PARIS," a musical farce in three acts and five scenes, by John J. M'Nally, with music by Max Hoffman and lyrics by George V. Hobart, opened the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on Monday, Sept. 5. Gus and Max Rogers appear as Rudolph Kahn and Adolph Finkeleiner, whose misadventures in Paris involve two young Americans and their sweethearts, a gendarme, a lion tamer, and an Irish contractor from New York. The first act represents the famed Bal Boullier in the Latin Quarter, where a students' ball is in progress, and which affords opportunities for the introduction of all sorts of musical specialities. In the second act there are three scenes, showing the garden of the Tuilleries, the Rue de Rivoli, and the Place de la Concorde. The last act is laid at the St. Louis Exposition. One of the features is a race between two automobiles, ending in a general smash up. The company includes Josephine Cohan, a graceful dancer, Fred Niblo, Frank C. Young, Bessie De Voy, and John Conroy, and the diverting doings of these clever entertainers won for the piece a most enthusiastic reception.

THE 372nd meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Fred W. Millis presiding. Mr Douglas White reported that thirty-three new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement 10,534. Mr Douglas White acted as secretary pro tem. during Mr Stuart's absence. After several matters had been discussed the meeting was adjourned until next Tuesday at the usual hour.

MR ERNEST SHAND, ever fortunate in his songs, is now the lucky possessor of one of the smartest ditties of the year, and one in which wit is combined with a taking melody. It is called "The New Insurance," is by George Arthurs and Kenneth Lyle, and is being placed on the market by Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter. The same house has secured Miss Millie Lindon's beautiful ballad, "The Angel of my Dreams," by Fred W. Leigh and Henry E. Pether.

MISS FLORENTIA GLYNNE, the Welsh soprano, is now on the road to recovery. She is a favourite on Tyne side, and Mr Charles Valvo is very thankful for the kind help received. Miss Glynne will be able to appear at the halls in a few weeks.

REGAN AND RYAN, whose versatile entertainment is meeting with so much success at the Palace, Shaftesbury-avenue, have been secured by Mr Rich Walden for Glasgow this season's pantomime, and the two following years by Mr Robert Arthur.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Your representative, in noticing the company last week at the Islington Empire, refers to me as Will Dalton. I was deputising for that gentleman, hence the mistake.—Yours faithfully, EDGAR GRANVILLE.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

THE scheme approved by the members of the Dramatic and Musical Fund for the dissolution of the society and the distribution of its available funds has been forwarded to the registrar. If, as is apparent, the members of the Fund and the societies named to participate in the funds are satisfied, there is no reason to assume that the registrar will object; but, in any case, the statutory notice which he must give of the dissolution of the Fund may delay the distribution of the funds until Christmas.

MR A. JONES, who has been in Sir Henry Irving's employ for the past sixteen years as property carpenter, and lately as property master, has just returned from a three weeks' holiday in America. With one or two exceptions the members of the staff will be the same as have accompanied Sir Henry on his recent tours.

SIR THOMAS DEWAR has presented Mr Dawson, of the Duchess Theatre, the winner of the five miles cycling championship at the Theatrical Sports, with a handsome diploma. It includes a view of the River Thames adjacent to Dewar's Wharf, and is altogether a beautiful memento of the owner's achievement.

WITH regard to the second annual concert to be given in aid of the benevolent funds of the Stage Employees' and Musicians' Societies, negotiations are proceeding for the use of one of the principal theatres. If the one is obtained which the Concert Committee hope to secure, there is every prospect of an excellent concert being arranged that will eclipse all previous efforts in this direction.

IN connection with this subject of raising funds for benevolent purposes it would be interesting to know what is being done to establish the Club and Institute for Theatrical Employees. A considerable sum will be wanted for this purpose, and it may be worth the while of the Concert and Sports Committee to enlarge the purpose for which such funds are raised by devoting a portion to a fund for establishing the club and institute.

THE proposal to alter the title of the "National Union of Theatrical Stage Employees" to the "National Association of Theatrical Employees" has been adopted by a majority vote of each of the branches voting. The society will still be restricted to those employed in the various stage departments behind the curtain.

THE Theatrical Carpenters' Society will have a final meeting this month to complete arrangements for changing the Society into a branch of the National Association.

A SPECIAL meeting of the General Theatrical Operatives' Sick and Benevolent Society is being called to deal with a matter of some importance. All members are urged to attend.

MR H. PORTER, who was recently in charge of the stage at the Coronet Theatre, will be in charge at the Comedy when that house reopens.

MR C. SHARPE, who was some years at the Kennington Theatre, has been appointed master carpenter at the Adelphi Theatre. Mr Sharpe has made some of the scenery, and other portions have been constructed by Messrs J. Johnstone and C. Porter.

THE new flies at Drury-lane will be built by outside contractors. Only the principal day men are retained. The other members of the staff will not be wanted until the work in connection with the pantomimes is put in hand.

THE cause which led to the working of the water sprinkler at the Lyric Theatre on Monday night still remains a mystery.

THE next committee meeting of the Scenic Artists' Association will be held at the offices, 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, W.C., at 8·0 p.m. on Monday next, the 19th inst. Candidates for membership of the association are requested to send in their names to the secretary, Mr H. Clarence Harris, at least one clear day previous to the meetings of the committee, which take place every other Monday evening. Managers of theatres are invited to send to the secretary programmes of first productions to be filed. The following papers are filed for use of members, viz.—Daily Telegraph, The Era, Referee, World, and Saturday Review. The secretary is in attendance at the offices daily from 10 0 to 4 0 to afford information to inquiries of members and others.

THE annual outing of the staff of the Elephant and Castle Theatre took place on Sunday last. A very enjoyable drive from the theatre to Dorking was the first item on the programme, and after a ramble round that charming locality, twenty-six diners were speedily demolishing a hearty repast at the local hotel. The popular manager of the theatre, Mr Ernest E. Norris, presided at the table, and was responsible for a neat epigrammatic speech, after which toasts were drunk to the prosperity of the theatre, &c. An interesting brake drive all round the neighbourhood completed the day's outing, and the party returned to town thoroughly pleased with the little trip. Fortunately the clerk of the weather beamed cheerfully upon them, and the genial warmth of old Sol gave an added zest to the general enjoyment.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

FOOTBALL.

Played near Bristol on Wednesday, Sept. 7. During the evening a smoking concert was arranged by Harry Hare (Bristol X.L.C.R. Club). The following contributed to the programme:—Messrs H. Slade, G. Hedges, W. Denty, F. Thorne, E. Belding, S. Coombes, A. Norman, L. Hamlin (harp solos), J. Leonard, J. Aubrey, H. Edwards (cornet solos). H. Hare presided at the piano. In the match the following were the teams:—

Jack Leonard's XI.—H. Clarke, goal; F. Thorne and S. Coombes, backs; H. Slade, W. Miller, and H. Edmunds, half-backs; L. Hamlin, J. Leonard (captain), A. Norman, H. Edwards, and J. Aubrey, forwards.

Bristol Early Closers A.F.C.—B. Yandell, goal; G. Hedges (captain) and W. Vowles, backs; F. Bartlett, F. Jennings, and D. Rogers, half-backs; B. Griffin, H. Turner, W. Denty, T. Willis, and A. Rossiter, forwards.

Referee, A. Hamlin (of Harry Hare's Orchestral Band A.F.C). Linesmen, H. Hare and W. J. Horton. Result:—Jack Leonard's XI, one goal; Bristol Early Closers, A.F.C., two goals. S. Coombes, D. Rogers, and G. Hedges scored the goals.

AT the Palace-by-the-Sea, Tynemouth, a strong bill has been presented this week. At the top are the Scarlet Mr E's, whose refined and humorous items earn for them several encores. Another excellent turn is that of Barton and Franklin in their clever and original musical performance; Miss Laura England, soprano, proves herself to be a vocalist of more than usual ability; Ashton's Italian Orchestra render many pleasing items; and Monsieur Joly, cornet soloist, has a flattering reception. Some clever animated pictures are also shown.

POOLE'S MYRIORAMA POPULAR

In the Northern Divisional Police-courts, Dublin, on Wednesday, before Mr Mahony, Mr Stewart, manager of Messrs Chas. Poole's Myriorama Company, was summoned by the Dublin Corporation for having allowed the Round Room of the Rotunda to be overcrowded during the performance on the night of Sept. 6, so as to constitute a danger to the public.

Inspector Reynolds, of the Corporation, gave evidence that he went to the Rotunda on the night in question. He found the doors of the place crammed. The people were packed together like sardines. He found it impossible to get in. It was so overcrowded as to be absolutely dangerous.

Alderman M'Carthy, the Chairman of the Public Health Committee, gave evidence that he went to the Rotunda on the evening in question to see whether the law and notices given by the committee were complied with. The Corporation were thoroughly alive to the importance of keeping the bye-laws, made for the protection of the public, in places of public amusement. In the case of the Rotunda the need for safeguards was especially necessary because the seats were not fixed, and if any one of these seats were upset in a panic he need hardly say how serious the consequences might be.

Mr Mahony—Do you desire any structural alterations in the place?

Mr Rice, Corporation law agent—This, of course, is a matter with which we will have to deal with the committee of the Rotunda Hospital—not with the defendant in this case.

Alderman M'Carthy said they were in communication with the committee of the Rotunda Hospital in the matter. Of course, the Corporation were in full sympathy with the hospital, and they did not desire to do anything that would cause it inconvenience. All they desired was the protection of the public.

Mr O'Byrne, solicitor, who appeared for the defence, asked the witness whether the Corporation had not received protests from the different theatres in Dublin, because the Corporation did not appoint an inspector in addition to Mr Butler, C.E., who was at present on vacation.

Alderman M'Carthy said no letters to that effect had been received, but he would mention the character of the correspondence if his worship desired. He was bound to say all the theatres and places of amusement in Dublin had done their best to meet the views of the Corporation regarding exits.

Mr Stewart, son of the manager of the company, gave evidence that the place was not overcrowded. There was plenty of room in the gallery and in the front seats. When Alderman M'Carthy and the inspector arrived, the sale of tickets had been stopped. There were six men in charge of the entrance doors.

Similar evidence was given by other members of the company, and Mr Stewart, the defendant, stated that the company desired to do everything to meet the views of the Corporation. In twenty-five years they had never been prosecuted.

The caretaker of the Rotunda said it was very hard to stop overcrowding on the first few nights.

Mr O'Byrne said that the house had not been visited by the inspector since Tuesday last.

Mr Mahony said he was satisfied that there was an obstruction on the occasion. He asked would the Corporation be satisfied with an undertaking that the offence would not be repeated.

Mr Rice said that in view of the fact that a member of Mr Poole's family was fined for a similar offence twelve months ago, the Corporation would ask for a fine.

Mr O'Byrne—That was a different company altogether. I think the Corporation ought to be satisfied with an undertaking.

Mr Rice asked for the same fine, £2. If anything occurred and no prosecution took place the Corporation would very properly be denounced by the Press.

Mr Mahony—Very well, I will impose a fine of £2 and £2 costs.

MADAME CARLOS DRESCHER, the mother of Cleopatra, the snake-charmer, and Bonita, sharpshooter, died at Johannesburg, after an illness of thirty-two days, of enteric fever, on Aug. 9, to the deep grief of her sorrowing husband and daughters. The remains of the deceased lady were interred in Bramfontein Cemetery.

THE ex-Princess Caraman Chimay, who eloped with Janos Rigo, the Gipsy violinist, and deserted him for Giuseppe Ricciardo, a canvasser for a tourist agency, has signed a contract in Europe to appear in America as a variety actress at a salary of £200 a week for forty weeks. As is well known, she was formerly Miss Clara Ward, an American heiress, and one of her purposes in returning to America is to prove to the executors of her father's estate that she is competent to take care of her fortune.

AT North London Police-court, on Monday, the manager of the Holloway Empire attended before Mr Dickinson with two German children (Rosa Müller and Rudolph Müller), and asked the magistrate to grant a licence for their appearance on the stage in a trapeze performance twice nightly during the present week. Mr Dickinson stipulated that the children should leave the theatre every night at 10 0 p.m., but the manager (Mr W. H. Barratt) was at the same time informed that the Act of Parliament required an interval of four hours between each performance. The manager replied that if the magistrate insisted on the children leaving the theatre at 10 0 p.m. that would be impossible, as the first performance could not be commenced before 6 15 p.m. Mr Dickinson said that the children would only be able to appear once, and for a single performance each night he granted his licence. The manager pointed out that this would be a hardship on the children and their mother, who was alone in this country with them, as only half the salary could be paid. Mr Dickinson—Why are they alone in this country? The Manager—Because the father remains in Germany. Mr Dickinson said that did not appeal to him. The father found it profitable, apparently, to remain in Germany and send his children to this country to earn money. The manager made the appeal for the two performances on sentimental reasons. It was the mother's misfortune that the Act of Parliament could not be complied with, and perhaps for sentimental reasons the full salary would be paid.

WEIDMAN, the Channel swimmer, carried out his undertaking on Saturday to enter a cage containing lions belonging to a travelling menagerie. As the applause with which he was greeted threatened to disturb the lions, Weidman remained in the cage while the performance proceeded.

MR WALTER STANLEY'S very effective song entitled "Don't stand there with your hands in your pockets," by Messrs Lawrance and Gifford, has been accepted by Mr David Day for publication.

THE residents of Leigh (Lancs) were astonished recently to see a gentleman driving through the principal streets "handling" the reins with his feet. This proved to be Mons. V. J. de Henau, the armless wonder, who was appearing at the local Hippodrome. The novel sight attracted large numbers of people, the skill with which Mons. Henau drove being the subject of general comment.

FOR recklessly driving the car of Mr George Edwardes, of the Gaiety Theatre, at thirty miles an hour, George Higgs, chauffeur, was on Monday fined £10 at Sheringham, Norfolk.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—Your reporter, while commenting favourably on my performance at St. John's Hall, Penzance, on Sept. 5, gives my name as Jean De Roy. It should have been yours truly, R. J. GOLDING, ventriloquist.

MR J. P. SOUSA, the March King, is revising the proofs of a novel which will be published at Christmas. The scene of it is laid in Washington in the late sixties, but that does not prevent it from being a story of adventure. Mr Sousa is already the author of a novel called "The Fifth String," which had a vogue in the United States. He will visit London with his band early in January and make a stay here.

A NEW pocket edition of Shakespeare is to be published by Messrs Blackie. It will be entitled the Red Letter Shakespeare, after their pretty Red Letter Library. The edition will be in two forms, cloth and leather, at 1s. and 1s. 6d. net. Mr Edmund K. Chambers is editing it, and he will supply critical introductions and explanatory notes.

THE ERA
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1904.

AN ACTOR ON ACTORS.

It is fortunate that in the ranks of our present-day actors we possess several who are capable of wielding the pen. The two sons of our great tragedian have gifts in this direction. Mr H. B. IRVING and Mr LAURENCE IRVING have both given proofs of their literary skill and ability; and the former gentleman, in his excellent article in this month's Nineteenth Century, has made a valuable contribution to the not very copious collection of essays in defence of acting. There is a well-known story of a painter who had depicted a lion in a degrading situation, when someone passing by remarked that if lions could paint they would give a different treatment to the subject. The attacks on the profession of acting have generally come from dissipated amateurs or irritable and jealous litterateurs. It is usual to sneer at OLIVER GOLDSMITH because he was jealous of the attention paid to some public performers at the expense of himself; but there is far more of the feeling then openly expressed by the candid poet than is generally imagined. As long as vanity is the leading passion in the breasts of all men, so long will the man who is in evidence on the boards, who receives the applause of his fellows "paid down," who is courted by the great and flattered by the fair, be envied, and consequently sneered at by the man of books. Attacking the stage is always a "paying game;" and it is not surprising that every fluent scribe in search of a cheap notoriety adopts this easy method of attracting notice. It is, however, quite remarkable to find an actor who is not too indifferent to attack to repel it, and who is able, as well as willing, to do so.

Mr IRVING'S remonstrance is apropos of COLLEY CIBBER'S "Apology." The somewhat voluminous nature of that excellent work, and the deliberation—rather characteristic of the period than the particular writer—with which the latter gets over his ground, rather debar the "Apology" from the ordinary reader; but many may be led to peruse the work who have not already done so after reading Mr IRVING'S neat and masterly resumé. The sound sense which underlay the mere manner of CIBBER both on the stage and in private life, is hardly suspected until we have thoroughly examined his book.

Mr IRVING makes the following very palpable hit after quoting CIBBER'S allusion to the stage:—"Whilst CIBBER enumerates those peculiar disadvantages attaching to the calling of an actor in the late years of the seventeenth century, he sets against them certain compensations. Apart from the pleasure derived from the exercise of an art in which, as he quaintly phrases it, 'to excel requires as ample endowments of nature as any one profession (that of holy institution excepted),' he notices the fact that if an actor excel in his profession, he will be received among people of condition with a social distinction to which he would never have attained had he followed the most profitable pursuits of trade; and he cites BETTERTON, Mrs BRACEGIRDLE, NANCE OLDFIELD, and others as instances of those thus distinguished. Let us suppose, he adds, that these men had been eminent mercers and the women famous milliners; can we imagine that merely as such, though endowed with the same natural understanding, they would have been called into the same honourable parties of conversation in which, he affirms, these actors and actresses were capable of sustaining their part with spirit and variety, though the stage were never the subject of discussion? CIBBER here touches very happily on one of the principal causes of the vulgar resentment cherished by the mercers and milliners of different ages against a calling which religious prejudice has taught them to despise, but which they find to their astonishment encouraged and courted by their social superiors—a confusion of ideas that in dull capacities aggravates rather than allays resentment."

Mr IRVING also applies a wholesome antidote to those gloomy estimates of the condition of the drama, of which we have heard a good deal of late, by remarking:—

"We are accustomed to think to-day that never was the legitimate drama in so parlous a condition, never did the more serious forms of dramatic entertainment have so hard a struggle for life. But when we read Cibber's 'Apology' we are inclined to ask, Was it not ever thus? Had not the purveyors of drama pure and simple ever the same contest with the natural tendency of busy men to fly to forms of entertainment that offer a few hours of thoughtless enjoyment, the natural tendency of the crowd to the more frivolous forms of relaxation?"

Mr IRVING'S peroration is so excellent that we cannot refrain from quoting it in full. He says:—

We actors must not, of course, look to all men for sympathy, nor expect it from them. As some men of high ability, of refined taste in many things, are deaf to the charms of music; it has no appeal to them, the sense of it is lacking in their natures; so are there men of culture and attainment, men of genius like Rousseau, to whom the art of acting makes no appeal, who have no sympathy with the actor's work. Such men have, no doubt, at different times been called on to write about the theatre, and that they should write with little sympathy is all that we can expect; nor should we resent what we cannot correct. But we have at least the right to ask that such a want of sympathy should be the strongest reason for making any man pause and consider before he proclaims himself to be the constant witness or judge of what, if it be true that to act unmans a man, must be a degrading spectacle, before he even suggests, however ingeniously, against any section of his fellow-men that in comparison with himself, in comparison with those who watch and enjoy their achievements, they are impaired and unmanly citizens. In all times and ages since the theatre has been established, and never more so than at the present day, the actor, to succeed and hold his own, to encounter the difficulties, the chances, the, at times, cruel anxieties of his calling, has required, shall I say, a greater mastery of his fate, a higher captaincy of soul, than many another man is called on to exercise whose work is done in more peaceful and secure surroundings; and when I look around on the careers of those who are to day at the head of my profession, I feel that, whatever the varieties of their artistic achievement, to reach the positions to which they have attained they have had to exercise those same qualities of endurance, pluck, determination, and self-control that we look for in all men who have made their mark, in however modest a sphere, on the history of their time.

We can add nothing to sentences so direct so polished, and so eloquent as these. Sir HENRY IRVING must, indeed, be proud to be the father of a son who can so well defend the profession of which both are such distinguished ornaments.

"HOME, SWEET HOME."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In your reply to H. C. H. you state that the above song was first sung by Miss Maria Tree in John Howard Payne's three-act drama, Clari, the Maid of Milan, at Covent-garden in May, 1823 That was the first time it was sung in England; but it was sung in America a year or two previously. But few people in England know that "Home, Sweet Home," is an American copyright. John Howard Payne, the author of the song, was an American, and, as is well known, a wanderer who never possessed a home. The music was composed by Sir Henry Bishop when he was in America; and, if I remember rightly, the copyright was held by Messrs Oliver Ditson and Son, of Boston. When Messrs Boosey and Company, the well-known London music publishers, opened an agency for the sale of their cheap publications in New York in 1868, the copy of their "Musical Cabinet" containing "Home, Sweet Home," had to be withdrawn from sale. Yours faithfully,
Eastbourne, Sept. 12, 1904. HERCAT.

"THE MAID AND THE MUMMY," a musical play in two acts, by Richard Carle, with music by Robert Hood Bowers, has been doing well at the New York Theatre. The first act takes place in a curiosity shop owned by Washington Stubbs, an actor-manager, who has been forced by bad business to close his season, and who is selling off the theatrical properties he has saved from the wreck as genuine antiques. One of the properties is a genuine Egyptian mummy, and Professor Elisha Dobbins, who believes that he has discovered the elixir of life, undertakes to restore the mummy, many absurd complications being brought about by the substitution of Stubbs's property man and the alternate success and failure of the Professor's experiments. The hits of the piece were a song called "Peculiar Julia," unctuously rendered by Edward Garvie, and "I fell in love with Polly," a tuneful number with a capital chorus. Louis Wesley as M'Swat, a would-be detective, sang a grotesque refrain, "It's great to be crazy," which scored. Mrs Annie Yeamans was good as Astoria Dobbins, a flirtatious spinster of uncertain age; and Miss Janet Priest as a precocious damsel named Muggsy was very amusing.

MR CAIRNS JAMES AND MR ERNEST D'AUBAN have started a school at 77, New Oxford-street, for the preparation of pupils for the musical comedy stage, and Mr George Edwardes has created several "open" scholarships, which will entitle the holders to free tuition—equivalent to £40 per annum—for three consecutive terms. Mr Cairns James will teach elocution, gesture, and acting; Mr Ernest D'Auban dancing and deportment; Madame Rose Hersee, Mr Bantock Pierpoint, Mr Aubrey Millward, and Mrs Cairns James, singing and voice production; and Mr J. S. Waite, fencing.

THE BRITANNIA.

The old story of Sweeney Todd has come to the front again, and dramatic versions of the blood-curdling tale of the murderous barber of Fleet-street are being presented at the variety theatres. One version under the title of Todd / Fleet-street, written by Dora Deane and Fred G. Brooke was produced at the Britannia, Hoxton, on Monday evening. The first scene represents the barber's shop in Fleet-street, and in the middle of the room stands the fatal chair which, by an ingenious mechanical arrangement, worked from an adjoining apartment, precipitates its occupant into the dark cellar below. On the rising of the curtain we find that Sweeney Todd, an ill-favoured little man with red, ferrety eyes, has just engaged the services of a new boy named Tobias Wragg at the enormous salary of one shilling a year, paid quarterly! But this, it quickly appears, is not the whole of the youth's emoluments, for the barber, when he desires to be left alone with a customer gives the lad twopence to buy a veal pie at a neighbouring shop, the mistress of which and Sweeney are partners in crime. The only person who is able to dictate to Todd is Brenda Watson, his wife, who is also an actress at a London theatre. She compels him to hand her banknotes to the value of £500, which she spends in the company of her fellow players and friends, whilst her miserly husband proceeds in his own way to make good the deficiency. A sailor just returned from abroad enters, and foolishly boasts that he has in his possession a string of pearls worth thousands of pounds. He wants a shave, but has only occupied that terrible chair a few minutes, when Sweeney makes an excuse for leaving the room, and Jack's fate is sealed. The next victim is a neighbour who deals in precious stones, and has a knowledge of their value. Sweeney offers to dispose of his illgotten pearls, and the new arrival makes inquiries as to how he became possessed of them, threatening in the absence of a satisfactory explanation to report the matter to a justice of the peace. He is attacked by Todd, and forced into the chair, in due course disappearing below as the unfortunate sailor had done. The boy Tobias becomes suspicious, and making his way downstairs comes upon startling evidence of the career of crime upon which his employer has embarked. He finds dead bodies cut up into small pieces, and communicates his gruesome discovery to a ragged youth known as Jimmy Jarvis, whom he encounters in the bakehouse. Jimmy has already found in the pies, to which he has helped himself, some human hair and a trousers button. Concealing themselves, they are witnesses of an interview between Sweeney Todd and his partner, the proprietress of the pie shop, who claims half the proceeds of the murderous business. They quarrel, and the barber shoots her and places the dead body in a roaring furnace, thus destroying all evidence of this fresh crime. Todd has in the meantime made an offer of marriage to Mercy, the sister of the dead sailor, but she has already promised to become the wife of Colonel Jeffrey, who is endeavouring to trace the whereabouts of her missing brother. Sweeney, having been denounced by Tobias as a murderer, has the lad shut up in a lunatic asylum and cruelly flogged; but he is rescued by Brenda Watson (who discovers that he is her own child) and Jimmie Jarvis. The playlet has a sensational ending, Sweeney being pursued by an infuriated mob and "polished off" in the same manner that he has murdered the victims of his cupidity. The sketch, which was produced under the direction of Mr Frederic Baugh, would be improved by some liberal cutting in the later scenes. Mr Fred G. Brooke was quite successful in his portrayal of the terrible barber, presenting a realistic portrait of the Fleet-street wholesale murderer. Mr Harry Barford was amusing as Jimmy Jarvis, who has well-justified fears of forming the materials of a veal pie. Miss Grace Emery played pathetically and gained sympathy as "Toby"; Mr Alfred Beaumont was a soldierly Colonel Jeffrey; Miss Dora Deane acted with spirit as Brenda Watson, the actress; and Miss Elizabeth Watkins was pleasing as Nancy. The sketch was admirably staged, and Mr B. Rodburn was responsible for the appropriate music. The company engaged here this week also includes the Kyasgas, brother and sister, who give a sensational exhibition of weight lifting by teeth and hair. Mr Harry Bent is applauded for his imitations of well-known music-hall stars. Miss Ella Rose sings ballads in good style, and other celebrities are the Sisters Morden, duettists and dancers; Ray and Calden, variety artists; Jos. Dixon, comedian, and Carlotta Lunn, comedienne; and Eller and Rose, duettists and dancers.

MISS MAUD MILTON, the eminent actress who has fulfilled many important engagements with Sir Henry Irving, will appear on the music hall stage in the West-end in a scena specially written for her by a popular author.

MR T. E. DUNVILLE, who is taking a few days' rest, by the order of his doctor, has a new song, entitled "The Earl and the Castle; or, The Marquis of Fanglesey." The topical nature of the number should be highly relished by audiences.

NANNIE GOLDMAN, WILLIAM HOLLES, AND COMPANY have made a big hit at the Gaiety, Birmingham, this week, and have been interviewed extensively by the local press, by whom they are well remembered for their important work in the past on the legitimate stage. They return to London on Sept. 26 to work six halls. Their entertainment, The Little Charwoman, has certainly caught on, for they are well booked up to 1907, for all the important halls in London and the provinces.

THE Wedburns conclude at Scarborough to-night the last week of a pleasant and successful eight weeks' tour at the seaside, and open on Monday at the Palace, Hull, where they start on the Moss circuit.

SIGNOR PEPI, of the Hippodrome, Blackpool, and the Tivoli, Barrow, will have his first complimentary benefit at the former house on Thursday next, the 22nd inst. The entertainment will be a special one, and a party of agents will make a special journey to be present.

MISS DOROTHY WHYATT, the popular and refined comedienne, has purchased another new song from the pen of Mr Alfred Saker, entitled "The beginning of the end." The same author is also responsible for Miss Lily Burnand's successful ditty, "Dick, Dick, Dick."

MR JACK CAMP leaves Waterloo to-day at 10 0 a.m. en route for Southampton, whence he will embark to fulfil a three months' engagement in America, returning at Christmas to the Syndicate halls.

MR ALF GIBSON'S quaint style has caught on at Douglas, and his songs have become very popular.—The Terriers' Association has just enrolled as new members Mr Will Johnson, comedian, and Mr George Mayer, comedian.—Mr Post Mason has been and is deputising this week at the Ardwick Empire for Karno's Dandy Thieves company, and had a fine reception on Monday.—Mr Arthur Elvey will produce at the Foresters', on Monday next, a new song by William Hargreaves, entitled "The Peacock and the Dove," which is published by Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MISS LIL HAWTHORNE had a rousing reception from a crowded house on her appearance at the Palace Theatre, Bristol, on Monday. After singing five of her best songs she was presented with some handsome bouquets from her Bristolian admirers.

WELSH NATIONAL MUSIC.

Lord STANLEY said that in the short time he had been personally connected with Wales he had got to see how important the Welsh national movement was, and how essential it was that the mind and spirit of the people should be able to find expression by the most natural channel, its own mother tongue, and the development of its own literary power and power of thought. He supposed that most of those who knew Wales best and had done their best to raise the dignity of Welsh tradition and the proper knowledge of the Welsh language, had felt how much that language had suffered in the mouths of the poor, from its having passed out of being a channel of literary cultivation among the educated. They must have seen how, where excellent words of a Celtic root and origin could be found, vulgar and perverse mispronunciations of English words had been brought in to express new ideas and things which civilisation and industry made necessary. He felt perfectly certain that, important as knowledge of English was to all the inhabitants of these islands, and that every one must be cut off from being abreast of the movements of the times, the march of thought, of science, and literature, who did not master the language in which the bulk of the serious thought of this country was expressed, yet the people of Wales would make far more rapid progress and get far greater insight into the grip of the English language if they had learnt to think clearly and express themselves clearly in their own tongue. If they used the English language exclusively or mainly as an instrument of the education of children who spoke Welsh at home and thought in Welsh, they were rearing up a race of what might be called temporary parrots, who forgot as soon as their school life was ended the words they had been taught to repeat almost by rote. Therefore it was not merely from his recognition of the fact that the national history and tradition demanded its best expression, but also from the practical and material consideration that they would not get access to that wider literature and range of thought that came through English, that he felt that the best study must be given not only to familiarity with Welsh, but with the best forms of expression in Welsh. In trying to make some acquaintance with the Welsh language he had felt that there was a want of suitable literature. The administration of education in Wales demanded a large supply of suitable books for use in schools, and they wanted, he felt certain, not only good Welsh writers, but a large bulk of bi-lingual literature. He was glad to hear how much was being done, or what good beginning had been made, in the publishing of more serious Welsh matter. The first thing he inquired for naturally, in turning his attention to the language of Wales, was a Welsh dictionary, and he could not say that the dictionary he got seemed to him in any way satisfactory, or to meet his requirements. But he was glad to hear that they had got a moderate, he might say a minute, vote from the Government for the publication of a Welsh dictionary, and that two sheets of the first number were already prepared. He was also glad to know that two societies, the Cymmrodorion and Guild of Welsh Graduates, were both publishing an important series of documents.

A number of competitions took place, including an interesting contest for Penillion singing, accompanied by the Welsh harp. The first prize was divided between Mr Owen Owen (Llangynnog) and Mr J. O. Williams (Llanerchymedd). In a competition for playing a selection of native airs on the triple or Welsh harp, there were three performers. The first prize was won by Mr David Roberts, a blind harpist of Dinas Mawddy. The prize for a composition for the best part-song suitable for female voices was divided between Mr Alfred E. Floyd (Oswestry) and Mr C. M'Lean (Portmadoc); and for the best movement for orchestra Mr W. H. Dean (Wells) was the successful competitor. The prize for the best requiem anthem in memory of Dr. Joseph Parry was withheld. A prize for the best bass solo was won by Mr Robert Hughes (Landore, Swansea). In the 'cello solo competition the winner was Mr T. Wise (Llanelly). An essay prize of £15, the subject being "The Literary Revival in Wales from about 1700," was won by Mr D. R. Jones (Blaenau Festiniog). A male-voice quartet competition resulted in the victory of Mr Gwilym Taff and party (Maesteg, Glamorgan).

In the afternoon Sir Marchant Williams presided, and an adjudication on the Crown poem took place. The piece was in memory of the late Mr T. E. Ellis, and the prize was awarded to the Rev. R. Machno Humphreys (Llanelly). The victor was conducted to the platform, where all the bards in their robes were assembled, and installed as Crown bard of the National Eisteddfod, 1904 The act of investing him was performed by Mrs Ellis, widow of the late Mr T. E. Ellis, and at the conclusion of the ceremony Gwlad y Cenin was given as the crowning song by Mr Emlyn Davies. In the male-voice choral competition, the prize for which was £50, eleven choirs had entered. Seven competed, and they sang test pieces, "Son of God" (Jenkins) and "The King of Worlds" These were Victoria Male Voice Choir, Birmingham, Wigan Male Voice Choir, Manchester Orpheus Glee Society, Rhos Choir, Cardiff Male-Voice Choir, Moelwyn Male-Voice Choir, and Manx Male-Voice Choir. The adjudicators, Dr. W. H. Cummings, Mr C. Francis Lloyd, Mr D. Jenkins, and Mr D. Emlyn Evans, awarded the prize to the Cardiff Choir (conductor, Mr Roderick Williams).

In the evening the Hon. Laurence Brodrick presided over a concert in which Miss Ada Crossley, Miss Nora Meredith, Mr Ben Davies, and Mr Andrew Black took part.

IN connection with the unveiling of Milton's statue at Cripplegate on Nov. 2 by Lady Alix Egerton, daughter of the Earl of Ellesmere, at which it is understood that Lord Roseberry is to make a speech, the Governors of the Cripplegate Institute have arranged with Mr Philip Carr, the President of the Mermaid Society for the Production of Old English Plays, that a performance of Comus by the Society shall be given at the Institute on the afternoon of that day. Lord Ellesmere's family have a peculiar claim to be associated with any memorial to Milton, for it will be remembered that it was with the children of the Earl of Bridgewater that the story of Comus was concerned, and that it was a Lady Alix Egerton and a Lord Brackley, and a Mr Thomas Egerton who took the chief parts in the original performance of the masque, and were themselves the characters of the lady and the two brothers represented in it. The Mermaid Society have given several performances of Milton's Masque in the open air, both in London and in certain towns in the provinces, and the entertainment is accompanied by the original music to the songs, which was written by Milton's friend, Henry Lawes. This music, with piano accompaniment arranged by Mr C. W. Smith, has been republished by the society, and can be obtained at their offices.

A PERFORMANCE of The Serio-Comic Governess, a comedy in four-acts, by Israel Zangwill, was given at the Duke of York's Theatre on Tuesday, for copyright purposes only.

MR EDITOR,—Sir,—Owing to a mistake in billing, the part of Sunday was wrongly attributed to me in last week's Era. On the date in question I was appearing as the Twin Sister at the Opera House, Jersey. Yours faithfully, DOROTHY CACEY.

LISTON'S ACTING.

Some of the old theatrical magazines contained some excellent descriptions of acting, notably an account of Liston's talent which appeared in "The Drama," in 1824. The author wrote:—

In Mr Liston's best performances he may be called natural in every sense of the word; his accuracy of conception enables him to represent with equal felicity the most true characters, and the most affected habits, and he passes from the simplest rustic to the most conceited pretenter with undiminished easiness of attainment. The actor seldom carries him beyond the characteristic strength of his part; he adds nothing of stage affectation, and he diminishes nothing of nature; yet his peculiar manner is so irresistibly humorous that he can put his audience into good humour with less effort, perhaps, than any other comedian on the boards. What Dryden said of Shadwell in an intellectual sense may be applied to Liston in an imitative one, for he must be

. . own'd without dispute,
Thro' all the realms of nonsense, absolute.

This never-failing power of imparting good humour may be attributed in a great degree to the inexpressibly droll expression of his inimitable countenance, which is one of the most unaccountable ever witnessed. What Colley Cibber tells us of Nokes, that "he scarcely ever entered but he was saluted by a general laughter which the very sight of him provoked, and nature could not resist," is exactly descriptive of the sensation invariably excited by the countenance of Liston. "My face is my fortune" should assuredly be taken by him for his motto. His visage is undoubtedly a nonpareil, and we really think that

When Nature was forming an ugly face,
She certainly moulded this Thespian's face,
As a sample for all the rest.

Shall we say that, perhaps, he would have been a still better actor had he been born with a less ludicrous countenance? for he who can, at will, command a laugh from the whole house must often be seduced into a neglect of study, and led to rely solely on the physiognomical auxiliary; and yet his acting is of that peculiarly original nature as to defy anything like a successful imitation or even competition, for so forcible is it that it is frequently utterly impossible for those performers who are even in the habit of constantly appearing with him to restrain their laughter; as instances in support of this we would only refer to his Lord Grizzle, in Tom Thumb; his Neddy Bray, in X Y.Z.; and his Lubin Log, in Love, Law, and Physic. Even in his mere walk there is something so excessively outré that it has not unfrequently thrown the whole theatre into convulsions of laughter. The air of vacant stupidity which he sometimes assumes, as well as the sort of self-satisfaction with which he crowns a bold stroke, are both irresistible provocatives to mirth; both these are displayed on his first entering the stage in the latter character—the eager avidity with which he enquires after all his parcels, the knowing style in which he hints to the stage coachman that the customary tribute is "quite optional," the expression with which he draws forth the sixpence, and the satisfactory composure with which he returns it to his pocket, are all depicted in a style that it is next to impossible to equal. It is in the personation of these compounds of vulgarity, folly, and conceit of the modern drama that he principally excels. Nothing that the stage can produce surpasses the cleverness with which he portrays the absurdity, the ignorance, and chuckling self-conceit of these amiable personages. There may be observed a general repose of limb and intellect in his style of acting exquisitely conducive to the character of contented folly; he can seem at ease with all around him, but most voluptuously so with himself; his smile of conceit is most peculiarly significant and enjoying—it cannot, therefore, but be supposed that in the rawness of country simplicity he excels all his contemporaries. A mere rusticity is not very difficult of conception, for it exhibits itself entirely in personal habits and those the most easy of imitation, because they require little or no control of limbs or of countenance, but the different expressions of absolute inexperience, its astonishment, its affected incredulousness, and real credulity, its utter false conclusions, and its self-betraying involuntary acknowledments, require a nice observation and a powerful explanation of countenance and voice. They who have seen Liston as Jacob Gawkey, in Miss Lee's Chapter of Accidents, have seen all these varieties inimitably separated and expressed. Most of our other comedians, through a want of perfect acquaintance with the habits of these humble characters, are apt to introduce in them a number of strange tricks, which, from their incongruity with the general nature of such parts, must strike with a tedious flatness, even upon those among the audience who may not be critically acquainted with the exact customs that prevail with country men. The affectation of dialect, the assumption of grimace invariably fail to create an effect; for the amusement that we feel in a rustic character arises from the total absence of all art, except, indeed, the natural art of the mind. The utter folly, total inexperience, ignorant credulity, and ready wonder of one class of rustics, whose minds are as raw as their habits—mere simpletons, persons whom external objects have entirely engrossed, and who have found bodily employment a universal succedaneum for the occupation of thinking—Mr Liston depicts with decided and peculiar excellence; the idea is conveyed by the countenance and manner of this actor, who demonstrates that he possesses powers of expression by his very capability of banishing expression from his appearance.

To this general effect of his acting external nature has contributed as much as study and observation of the particular characters represented. We have before particularly noticed the peculiar cast of his features; his face, which, while by some accident it is not displeasing, presents, nevertheless, a most eccentric example of the boldness with which nature can violate all her own established rules of beauty and proportion, and has done an immense deal for his fame; and no damsel of romance ever made a greater progress in glory, and in fortune, by her lovely countenance than Mr Liston has by his grotesque physiognomy. He has likewise a facility in relaxing his joints which greatly aids his effects in such parts as Caper (in Who Wins?) and Apollo Belvi (Killing No Murder); and any other actor who should attempt these characters, even if he had all the humour, and all the particular conception of Mr Liston, would find that, without this natural looseness in the hips, he would do comparatively but little for the diversion of his audience. In enacting the character of a fop he, therefore, delights with the disjointed looseness by which he affects gracefulness of limb, and with the laborious manœuvres by which he aims at ease. An actor who tries to divert by mimicking a volatile, lively kind of grace, will run great hazard of annoying by his pertness, but the singular merit of Mr Lisson's affectation is that he attracts the attention, without forcing himself upon the notice of his audience; he waits with the quiet air of a man who is satisfied with himself, and who feels sure of satisfying everyone else—while other stage coxcombs assume the boisterous, by way of representing the lively.

GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO, the poet and dramatist, met with an accident in Rome on Saturday, while taking horse exercise with a lady who is well known for her passion for equestrian sport. The poet was riding along the Marine course when his horse made a false step, with the result that D'Annunzio was flung from his saddle to the ground. The animal took fright and galloped away at full speed, followed by the poet's servant. Happily the author was not hurt. He carefully brushed the dust from his clothes, and mounting another horse continued his ride

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

As the result of the cordial co-operation of friends of the late Mr Herbert Campbell it has been decided to erect a fitting memorial to the popular and genial comedian, to be placed, if possible, in the vestibule of Drury-lane Theatre, the scene of so many of his triumphs. The directors have not only approved the suggestion, but have, through Mr Arthur Collins, generously promised the sum of £10 10s. towards the fund, which has already been started. The memorial is to take the form of a marble or bronze bust. Mr Edward Ledger has consented to receive and acknowledge all contributions in the columns of The Era. A letter from Mr Henry Joyner, director of the Camberwell Palace, &c., announcing the intention of the late comedian's friends, and giving the first list of subscriptions, will be found in another column. Gentlemen are invited to serve on the committee, and those willing to act should communicate without delay with Mr Joyner.

Mr Maurice Jacobi is resigning his position at the Tivoli in order to place his services at the disposal of Mr Oswald Stoll, who intends to make the music at the London Coliseum a very special feature. To this end he has secured Mr Walter Slaughter, the well-known composer, and Mr Maurice Jacobi will share with that gentleman the duties of conductor.

The appointment by Mr Oswald Stoll of Mr Will Bishop as maitre de danse at the new Coliseum is a very happy one. What Mr Bishop does not know of the art of Terpsichore is not worth knowing. His services will be much in request, as spectacular scenes are to form notable features of the Coliseum entertainment, the first of which will be presented, it is understood, about midway in December. Among the productions down for an early date are The Up River Girl, by Roland Carse, and The Last Load Home, by Arthur Sturgess and Napoleon Lambelet. Mr George Leyton will also appear in a scena.

The many friends and admirers of Mr Dan Leno will be glad to welcome him back on Monday to the London Pavilion, to which Mr Frank Glenister has returned after a most enjoyable holiday that combined business with pleasure.

Mr George Fuller Golden, to whose accident we referred in these columns last week, has now happily recovered, and was to be seen enjoying a drive on the front at Brighton on Sunday.

The Grand Theatre, Fulham, closes to-night its career as a theatre proper, and it will be reopened early in October as a theatre of varieties, under the management of Mr Jack De Frece. It was opened on Aug. 23, 1897, by the proprietor, Mr Alexander F. Henderson, the first entertainment being given by one of Mr George Edwardes's Geisha companies. The theatre was designed by Mr W. G. R. Sprague, who is responsible for the Camden, Coronet, and the Duchess, Balham, and has in hand several other houses of entertainment.

Mr Joe Elvin has been specially engaged by Mr Peter Watson to produce, at the Palace, Manchester, on Monday, the successful steeplechasing piece Over the Sticks, which had such a long run at the Oxford, where it was staged with such completeness by Mr Harry Lundy. As next week is Race Week in Cottonopolis, it was a decidedly happy thought on the part of Mr Peter Watson to secure this great attraction. In the Racecourse scene of Over the Sticks Mr Elvin will be supported by many sporting celebrities and leading jockeys, and a huge success will be certain.

Mr Harry Bawn, who has been spending a delightful week at Great Yarmouth, has been appointed by Mr Walter Gibbons as the new manager of the Grand, Clapham, and he returns on Monday to take over the reins at that house. Mr Bawn, who has been assistant manager at the Chelsea Palace since its opening on April 13, 1903, is the popular husband of that charming dancer, My Fancy (Miss Maie Rose Baker). In his early career he was behind the counter in a large drapery establishment, where his yearnings to become a comic singer were encouraged at house smoking concerts. He eventually blossomed into a singer of coster songs, and made one of his greatest successes on the boards of the old Grand Theatre of Varieties, Clapham (Munt's Hall). First-rate business capacity and wide and extensive experience should give a special value to Mr Bawn's services.

Nothing has yet been settled regarding the Surrey, and the board is still up stating, "This theatre to let." But the destiny of the house seems to be shaped by another notice affixed to a pillar. This runs as follows:—"I, Temple de la Pole Temple West, will apply at the next licensing sessions for a music and dancing licence." Mr Walter Stephens, who is associated with a new music hall enterprise at Lewisham, has announced that he will run the Surrey as a variety house. But whether this project will materialise will depend largely on the County Council's requirements.

The Metropolitan, which has always been a most comfortable and elegant hall, looks particularly inviting just now, having undergone a thorough renovation. The seating has been reupholstered, the marblework has been cleaned, and regilding and repainting have been resorted to where necessary. The beautiful ceiling looks as fresh as on the day the hall was opened.

Miss Vesta Victoria has had to refuse a very remunerative pantomime engagement at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham-junction, owing to her numerous contracts with the Syndicate halls.

The magic kettle that boils on ice and does many other curious things every evening at the Palace Theatre is now "introduced" to the audience by its proprietor, Mr Benjamin F. Taylor, who made his début last Monday, Mr Ralph Dean, the original "orator," having lost his voice owing to the changeable weather. Mr Taylor first displayed his scientific turn eight months ago at the Eden Musée, New York, afterwards taking it to Proctor's, followed by a tour of the States. He arrived in London last June.

Six men are required, exclusive of Mr Taylor, to work the Magic Kettle turn, two appearing on the stage and four being employed behind the scenes. There are many absurd and amusing conjectures every night as to how it is done, the seventeen minutes' turn often extending to over twenty. The owner of the kettle, who, by the way, has two similar turns running in America, comes from New York State.

The King has just sent a kind letter and a pair of sleeve-links, with the monogram, "E R," to Mr Landon Ronald, the young British composer, who wrote the music for the new Alhambra ballet, L'Entente Cordiale.

Shohkiyo-kusai is the name of the interesting little Japanese gentleman who is the chief wonder-worker of the Ten Ichi Troupe, now fulfilling an extraordinarily successful engagement at the Alhambra. Originally he was a Buddhist priest, and a devout and zealous one, but while still a young man the desire to joggle came upon him, and, forsaking the service of Buddha, he found that the practice of magic would be extremely profitable. After years of arduous work he jumped into notice with his invention, the fountain trick, which is as beautiful as it is inexplicable, and came under the notick of the Mikado. He, however, considers the thumb tie trick his cleverest.

At Manchester, on Wednesday, a meeting of managers of ten important variety theatres in Lancashire (Manchester, Bolton, St. Helens, Preston, Wigan, and Oldham) decided that it was advisable to form a combination, to be called the North of England Music Hall Association. One of the objects of the association, it was said, would be to protect the interests of the northern provincial managers and proprietors against a "strong London syndicate." Mr Peter Watson, of the Palace, Manchester, is one of the leaders of the new movement. The more "combines" the better, say some of the artistes; they give us long engagements and continuity of employment.

Mr Charles Brock, the energetic manager of the Empire Theatre of Varieties, Belfast, is to be accorded a well-deserved benefit on Thursday, Sept. 29.

It is stated that the Harrogate Kursaal has not been a financial success. Alderman Chippendale at the council meeting, advocated a reduction in the cost of the orchestra. Councillor House gave notice to move that a committee of inquiry be appointed to go into the question of the management of that establishment. The subject is creating much interest in the town.

The sudden and unexpected death of Mr Joe Perry, of Perry's Minstrels, the Happy Valley, Llandudno, which occurred early on Tuesday morning last, will come as a painful surprise to his many friends, for though deceased had been ailing at times, nothing fatal had been anticipated, Mr Perry having been well and about only the previous evening. The end came as a painful shock to the members of his company, who speak of their late chief in the highest terms of respect and regard. Even on the morning of his death deceased was out and about, and apparently in his usual health and spirits, till, complaining that he felt unwell, he returned home, with the sad result above recorded. The inhabitants and visitors express much regret in the sad affair.

Born of Irish parentage in Newcastle-on-Tyne forty-eight years ago he commenced his professional career at Llandudno in 1887, and for successive seasons had, in company with his excellent troupe, afforded amusement and pleasure to thousands of people from all parts of the globe. Always ready and willing to assist in acts of charity, his help will sorely be missed. Very pathetic is the fact that on the evening previous to his death Mr Perry had arranged all details in connection with a scheme to provide a lasting memorial to his old friend and colleague. His professional career has been extremely varied, and during his non-season months his name, with that of Allen, was known in the music halls, where his wit and humour were always appreciated. Requiescat in Pace

The funeral took place on Thursday at the Church of St. Tudno, Llandudno. A large gathering followed the cortège to the burial ground on the Great Orme's Head. Much sympathy was manifest, and the floral tributes were numerous, telling plainly of the respect in which the deceased was held. These included a beautiful large cross, "from a few old friends;" a wreath from his two daughters, Nelly and Marie; and wreaths from Willie and Joe (his two sons), "Daniel" and "David," the members of his troupe (with a loyal and touching inscription); Mr Tom Barger ("He has passed away from the happy valley of life to the peaceful valley of death"), the members of the town band, Mrs Alf Allen and daughter, and many others from the residents and others. Mr Perry was buried according to the rites of the Romish Church.

At the invitation of Mr Charles Ellis, the host of the Holkham Hotel, Great Yarmouth, the members of Mr James Chappell's Beach Concert Party sat down to a splendid repast on Wednesday evening, the 7th inst, the chair being taken by the Mayor (Alderman Tom Green), supported by Mr J Chappell, Mr W. Abrahams, &c. In the vice-chair was Mr F. Riley, manager of the concerts. After the dinner harmony prevailed. Mr Charles Coborn obliged with "We don't want him down our way," and Mr Leslie Reed sang an extempore song with verses apropos to the company present. The Marlborough Trio contributed "The Battle Eve," and Miss Lottie Swinburne also appeared. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr and Mrs Charles Ellis at the conclusion of the evening.

At the Alhambra on Monday a new series of Urban Bioscope films will be exhibited. They all concern the Russo-Japanese War, and the latest of them show General Kuropatkin reviewing the 1st Siberian Sharpshooters at Harbin; the retreat of the Russian cavalry after the battle of the Yalu; infantry and artillery reinforcements for General Kuropatkin; the Commander-in-Chief of the Russian army on his way from Mukden to Liao Yang; and the Russian mountain artillery defending the Motien-Ling Pass.

Mr Charles Urban sails for America about the middle of next month in the Kaiser Wilhelm II, the steamer which holds the Atlantic record. The owners of the vessel, the North German Lloyd Company, have put in special dynamos for arc circuit electric lighting in order that Mr Urban may take photographic views of the interior workings of a great Atlantic liner. Mr Urban anticipates remaining in the United States for a month, after which he returns to this country.

Mr Urban tells us that he is at the present moment busy on a big production for the pantomime season, in conjunction with Mr Millis, the originator of the celebrated film series, "A Trip to the Moon."

The Urban Bioscope company have leased some additional premises within a short distance of their offices in Rupert street. Their new establishment will form a perfectly equipped factary, where special rooms will be set apart for perforating films, printing, negative developing, positive developing, reel-drying, cleaning, examining, sorting, counting, and shipping. The reel-drying room will be 80ft. long by 25ft. wide.

Mr Rosenthal, the Urban Bioscope's representative now with the main Japanese army under General Kuroki, has managed to secure some fine pictures of the recent fighting around Liao-Yang, as well as of the bombardment of Port Arthur from the trenches. Mr Urban hopes to produce these views at the Alhambra in a few weeks' time.

By the misreading of a cablegram we were made to state in our last issue that Mr Mike Whallen was lying seriously ill in an American hospital. Later news makes it plain that it is Mrs Whallen, the mother of the famous entertainer. Mrs Whallen's condition still remains very precarious, and until an improvement takes place Mr Whallen will remain in America.

Brighton has been en fête in honour of the visit of the Dieppe Casino Orchestra, who arrived there on Tuesday, the 6th, as the guests of the Mayor and Corporation. The streets were decked with a brilliant array of multi coloured bunting, and marquees had been erected on the lawn of the Pavilion, where the first concert was held. In the evening the concert was held in the Dome, and the visitors were better enabled to show their real abilities. It should be mentioned that the visitors brought with them a magnificent wreath of white flowers, inscribed to the memory of her Majesty Queen Victoria, which was laid upon the memorial-stone in the Victoria-gardens. The visitors, who were right royally entertained by the municipality of Brighton, concluded their visit on Friday, the 9th inst.

Miss Marie Lloyd, who had promised to appear at Mr David Hart's benefit at the Grand, Gravesend, on the evening of the 8th inst., had to travel from Chatham, and came thence with Captain Davis, the proprietor of the Grand, Gravesend, and the Gaiety, Chatham. They were waiting on the Rochester Station to catch the 10 5, but, as it happened, a new driver had been put on, and he ran the train right through. Captain Davis, however, was quite equal to the emergency, and succeeded in stopping the Ramsgate excursion, and Miss Lloyd was enabled to fulfil her promise, though she appeared very late. She sang four songs to a delighted house.

Mr Fred Trussell, the popular manager of the London Hippodrome, has returned to his duties there after a most enjoyable time in Cornwall, where the river and the road enabled him to pass the happy hours away. Mr Trussell is an enthusiastic devotee of the camera, and, with an eye for the picturesque, has secured a number of excellent views.

They keep the kettle as well as the pot boiling at the Palace Theatre, and round the verandah on various points of vantage is to be found the "loud-hissing" kettle sending forth steam. This is Mr Alfred Butt's ingenious method of booming the magic kettle, which Mr Taylor is showing to crowded audiences nightly.

Mr George Robey, who made such a success of "Prehistoric Man," is likely to appear shortly as a gladiator—not of the sentimental order, of course, but of the burlesque variety. With trident, sword, and buckler, the genial George should make a pretty picture. Another impersonation contemplated by Mr Robey is that of a night watchman, who guards a square hole in the road, which would otherwise lure a motorist to destruction.

The special programme that is being arranged by Messrs James Howell and Arthur Yates for the celebration of the thirteenth anniversary of the Tivoli, which is to take place on Friday next, is studded with stars. R. G. Knowles, Little Tich, Dataa, Wilkie Bard, Harry Tate, Austin Rudd, James Stewart, Leo Dryden, Russell Wallett, Nellie Wallace, Peggy Pryde, Victoria Monks, Millie Lindon, Fanny Wentworth, Lee and Bentley, Ross and Grayson, Lily Burnand, and Starr and Leslie are among the number.

"Bill Bailey in Japan" is a new sketch to be produced at the Royal on Monday. It will be an elaborate production, and among those engaged are Miss Lottie Collins, Mr Billy M'Lain, two other principals, and a chorus of sixteen. Mr M'Lain will play the ubiquitous "Bailey." The dresses will be tasteful, and the novelty should prove most attractive. It will also be staged at the Granville, Walham-green.

Mr Charles Relf announces Thursday next as the grandest night of the season, the occasion being his annual complimentary benefit. This is an event that excites intense local interest, and Mr Relf, by his constant and unobtrusive charitable work on behalf of seamen and dockers, has endeared himself to everyone in the neighbourhood. A large number of volunteers will assist to make the special programme a remarkable testimony to his popularity. During the evening the chair will be occupied by several well-known gentlemen, in addition to Mr Walter Leaver, the only professional chairman in London.

Mr Sydney Lee, the youngest of our conjurors, had a curious experience at the Royal on Friday, the 9th inst. A duck imprisoned in a cage at the wings, which had been trained by Mr Lee to assist him in his performance, managed to get loose and waddled on the stage with a "quack, quack," as its owner was performing one of his most delicate illusions. The audience shrieked with laughter, but the conjuror, nothing daunted, caught up the duck, and, turning to the audience, said, "It's all right; it's only Bill Bailey come home," and, returning the bird to its cage, he resumed his performance.

Mr Edgar Granville, who is a most interesting personality in the music hall world, has an excellent new dame's song entitled "The Pros. next door." To-day is Mr Granville's birthday, and he recalls with pride that it is now thirty-five years since he was "one of the boys" who sang in the choir at Evans's supper-rooms. Probably Mr Granville could give us some interesting particulars of some of his fellow choristers.

Mr Jesse Sparrow's "annual" is fixed for the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 18, when we shall be certain to find the Camberwell Palace packed to suffocation in honour of the popular manager. Stars of the first magnitude will scintillate, and a specially strong programme will be offered.

The Granville, Walham-green, which Mr Jesse Sparrow is now managing, will celebrate its sixth anniversary on Tuesday evening, when a large gathering of local dwellers will unite with a number of Mr Sparrow's fellow-managers in congratulating him. The special list of entertainers will include many volunteers. Mr Ernest Bridgen will have a busy night.

"The Magic Kettle," now at the Palace, Shaftesbury-avenue, will shortly tour the provinces, booked by Day's Agency, the energetic agents for Houdini.

The old Lyceum Theatre building is not to be allowed to pass away altogether from the Londoner's ken by the erection of a new music hall upon its historic site. The fine Corinthian portico of the old theatre has been retained to impart an air of dignity and repose to the new building. Notice is given of the intention to apply at the sitting of the Licensing Committee of the London County Council in November next for a music and dancing licence.

Mr Jefferson having recovered possession of the Theatre Royal, North Shields, will shortly convert the Borough Theatre (of which he is the proprietor) into a music hall, to be known as the Borough Theatre of Varieties, worked on the two houses nightly system.

Messrs C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton have this week disposed of six big pantomime numbers to Mr David Day (Francis, Day, and Hunter). Good judges who have seen and heard these songs predict for them a big measure of success. The ditties range from the stirring march melody to the flowing ballad. Principal boys and girls should profit by this intimation.

Mr Squire Day, of Mr Tom Carrick's White Musketeer and Pierrot Troupe, held his first annual benefit concert on Sept. 9. In the words of the dramatist "Sure such a 'day' as this was never seen," for the bearer of the name is as versatile as the English climate; dancing, chapeaugraphy, imitations—nothing comes amiss to him, and all give equal pleasure, though, perhaps, the favourite item is the well-known "Mechanical Doll" song and dance. Mr Jack Bangs contributed some lively coon songs, and in more serious mood rendered "Down the Vale" with great effect; Mr Evan Roberts demonstrated the absurdity of the lady who looked for a "Needle in a Haystack," and Mr Tom Carrick explained "How to manage 'em." Mr Dick Tubb elicited hearty applause for his rendering of "Surely not;" and Mr Barron, an "extra turn," met with much appreciation for his singing of "Three's Company," and an encore, "The Guard's Parade." Special mention should also be made of the excellent service rendered by Mr Marks, the Musketeers' accomplished pianist.

Miss Harriett Vernon was most enthusiastically received at the Empire, Newcastle-on-Tyne, last Monday evening, when she sang for the first time a charming song entitled "Karama," a Japanese love story. The music is sweet and catchy, and the audience took up the refrain after the second verse. Miss Vernon's Japanese dress is picturesque to a degree, and lent a most effective colouring to her song.

The Salambos have finished their enormously successful tour in South Africa, and they sailed for Australia from Cape Town on July 27. They posted their letter to us at Albany, West Australia, and they stated that the trip across so far had been a cold one and rough. It was their twelfth day out from Cape Town, and they hadn't seen a sail or craft of any kind. They opened at Sydney on Sept. 5, when they commenced a thirty weeks' engagement with Mr Rickards. Eighty-five friends, besides fellow artistes, saw them off at Cape Town, and the Salambos gave a farewell dinner on board prior to sailing. They were a great social success at Cape Town, and they attended some twenty evening parties during their stay. Historicus has received numerous valuable presents.

An accident happened at the Lyceum Theatre on Saturday afternoon. The workmen, who are engaged in the demolition of the theatre in order to prepare the site for the erection of a music hall, were moving a large iron girder when it slipped and crashed down. All the men escaped except one, who sustained a scalp wound and some bruising. The injured man, whose name is Peter Macdonell of 238, East-street, Walworth, was conveyed to Charing-cross Hospital, where his injuries, which were found to be comparatively slight, were attended to. He was detained for the night.

Mr Frank Brown, the well-known circus and variety entrepreneur of Buenos Ayres, has been in London for the last fortnight for business and domestic reasons. He will return to the Argentine about the middle of November, afterwards paying another visit to London in February next year for the purpose of getting together his first company for the new Buenos Ayres Hippodrome, which is to open in April. When he terminates his next visit to England, Mr Brown will take back with him a number of acts and turns suitable for the circus ring and the music hall stage.

It is worthy of mention that Mr Brown has endeared himself to the Argentine people by reason of the fact that he was the first manager to arrange performances in aid of hospital and other charities in Buenos Ayres he is quite as much a persona grata as Mr George Edwardes is in London theatrical circles.

Carlton, who is paying his fifth visit to the Palace Theatre, recently gave his capital entertainment under very trying circumstances. He happened to be in Oldham at the same time as Miss Ella with her performing lions, and proposed one day, half in jest, that he should go through his turn in the lions' cage. Miss Ella promptly agreed, and Mr Carlton entered the cage for the first time before a crowded audience. After a time the animals were allowed to jump down from their stools and run round the cage, but the young juggler was not to be daunted, and literally gave a lion's share of his amusing feats before he made a hurried exit.

Mr Carlton, who is one of the tallest men on the music hall stage—he makes up to something between seven and eight feet—practises every night before he goes on for his turn. He constructs all his own apparatus. His patience and perseverance is shown by the fact that he worked for over two years to perfect himself in a certain way of arranging a pack of cards, in after shuffling, in two circles in the hand, and it now takes him less than a second to do. He palms fifty-two cards as easily and neatly as he "patters" on the stage.

Miss Rachel Lowe, who has been fulfilling a most successful engagement at the Tivoli, Manchester, must have been particularly pleased with the pretty compliment payed to her on Saturday evening last. A number of her admirers who had evidently been much impressed by the cleverness of her "duck" song, had a bird beautifully modelled in flowers and presented it to her. We need hardly state with what genuine surprise and pleasure the popular comedienne received the gift, or how highly she appreciated it.

Miss Rose Dearing, whose dainty style is always so welcome on the boards of the halls, is appearing with undoubted success at the Royal this week in a kaleidoscopic song-scena, in which she is assisted by twelve ladies and Mr Archie Croft.

Mr and Mrs George Le Brunn have returned to town, considerably benefitted in health, after a six weeks' driving tour on the South Coast. Pantomime now claims Mr Le Brunn's versatile pen, and it is marvellous to see the amount of work he is now getting through. He has just completed an entirely new répertoire of songs for that gifted artist, Miss Marie Lloyd.

Miss Florrie Forde returns to the metropolitan halls on the 26th inst., after a successful tour in the provinces extending over twelve weeks. Miss Forde's new song "The Old Bull and Bush" has been an unqualified success, and doubtless will be heard in the streets of London shortly.

Mr Blake Adams opens at Sheffield on Monday next, under the management of Mr Frank Macnaghten, with a dramatic episode, The Last Pitch, written by himself. There are only two characters in the trifle—Sam Tucker, played by himself, and Mrs Lumley, impersonated by Miss Mona Robin (Mrs Blake Adams). Most of the music has been specially composed by Mr Percy Kurutz, musical director at the West London Theatre. Mr Blake Adams hopes to appear in the sketch in London shortly.

Miss Marguerite Benson, whose vocal talents have been heard to such advantage at the Pavilion this week, is a cousin of Mr Charley Warren, the manager of Messrs Witmark and Sons' music business in London. Miss Benson has scored quite a triumph with her rendering of two pretty songs entitled "My Ivy Vine" and "Rose, sweet Rose," to both of which she plays her own accompaniment on the pianoforte. Miss Benson, who has only recently recovered from a serious illness, made a great hit with the act in which she appeared in conjunction with her brother. We are pleased to say she is much better in health.

At Lambeth Police-court, on Saturday, the manager of a sketch company applied to Mr Francis for a licence to enable a girl, between twelve and thirteen years of age, to take part in the performance of a sketch at the Camberwell Palace of Varieties during the ensuing week. Mr Francis expressed the opinion that such applications ought to be made not by the manager of the sketch company, but by the manager or the licensee of the premises at which the performance is to take place. Sergeant Gale, the chief warrant officer of the court, said he believed that was the usual practice. Mr Francis pointed out that the manager of a sketch company was a wandering person whom it might not be easy to find in the event of there being a complaint. In deference to his worship's views, Mr Broadbridge, the stage manager of the music hall, stepped forward, and personally made the application and signed the necessary form. Mr Francis thereupon granted the licence, the police, represented by Inspector Brooks, offering no objection to the application.

Dr. Walford Bodie finished what has been a phenomenally successful run in London at the Canterbury and Paragon, where he has played to record business nightly at both halls, hundreds being turned away. He had several tempting offers to remain in town, but could not do so owing to his provincial arrangements. He has just settled another sixteen weeks with Mr Barrasford in 1906 with his own company, and also four weeks at the Hippodrome, Liverpool, and four weeks at the Zoo, Glasgow, at the record weekly salary of £175 and a percentage of the takings for his own act alone. He is now on tour through his native land, playing to record business.

Mr W. J. Churchill has been winning "golden opinions from all sorts of people" with his highly successful new song-satire, "Girls wouldn't be wanted at all," specially written for him by Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn. Both singer, author, and composer confidently anticipate this being one of the most successful pantomime chorus songs of the year. It is eminently suited to the requirements of principal boys, and already numerous "rights" have been disposed of.

The Titania Theatre, Paris, has opened with an excellent variety programme. The Bengalis are two clever little lads who give a musical duet. As the Piou-Piou and the Nou-Nou they give an exhibition of American boxing which thoroughly delights the Montmatrois. Mdlle. Valter poses before a calcium box, and the slides bearing the titles of the poses cause general amusement, being invariably reversed. The effects obtained by the old method of coloured slides are pretty, but the lady should immediately omit from her collection the comic heads which are thrown indiscreetly upon her person.

There is nothing but praise for the Holsons, who style themselves American comedians, though the "Tramp" speaks too perfect French for any native of the "Land of the Free." He makes his first appearance in a practicable baloon. He then proceeds to eat an enormous meal, like Sam Elton, but he eats a variety of food and grows visibly under the treatment. One might style him appropriately "the pneumatic comedian." He climbs up a rope, and kicking off his shoes does a really clever bit of Japanese rope climbing and toe balancing. He is assisted by a buxom little lady, who meets with the hearty approval of the gallery. John Karini is an aerial gymnast who works over the heads of the orchestra on a double trapeze, on which he can do an unique split trick. He has no net. That he has a small clutch attached to the right ankle does not take away from the difficulty and danger of the turn; for he does a contortion act with only this terribly frail support. Les Havannas are an English troupe of acrobats who give us the old-fashioned knockabout pantomime act, which is always popular if well done; and here let us at once remark that the three men and one boy making up the troupe are extremely clever, their tumbling being first-class.

Hans, the learned horse, who, according to previous statements, can read and perform arithmetical feats, which would do honour to a schoolboy of fourteen years, has satisfied his examiners that his knowledge is the fruit of independent mental effort. Herr Von Osten, his owner, was ignorant of the purport of many of the questions that were put by the examining board, and correctly answered by the horse. The board, which includes Dr. Ludwig Heck, Director of the Berlin Zoological Gardens; Dr. Stumpf, the Professor of Psychology at Berlin University; Dr. Miessner, of the Royal Veterinary High School, and many other authorities express the unanimous opinion that the case of Hans merits an investigation by a State-appointed commission of scientific men. Dr. Busch, Director of the Berlin Circus, who attended the proceedings of the board, confesses that he has been converted to a firm belief in the intellectual powers of Hans, whose astonishing performances are certainly not the product of any tricks or signs known to circus trainers. We hope to see Hans in London.

In consequence of the presence of a circus in the parish all the elementary schools in Edmonton were closed on Tuesday afternoon. The school authorities have found it expedient to give the children a holiday when there is this counter-attraction to the schools, as the circus performance takes away so many of the scholars. The Government grant, which is paid on the average attendance, is considerably affected.

Caicedo, the king of the wire, is delighting crowds of sightseers at the Grand Circus Alegria, Barcelona.

An interesting gondola race took place at Earl's-court on Wednesday between Nino Salin and Nicola Pezzile, who had challenged Salin for the Championship. The large crowd on the "canal" banks and in gondolas lined along each side watched the race with keen interest. The course was five times round the canal, a distance of about 3,000 yards. As each competitor passed by those places where the majority of the people were collected they were greeted with cries of encouragement, the Italians calling out "Via!" Nino Salin made his first round in 2min. 17sec, and won by 39 1-5sec. Mr H. Hewitt Griffin, who started the boats from the Ponte Ducale, then declared that Salin retained the Championship, and he was again handed the scarlet flag of victory. This afternoon, at three o'clock, on the open lake at Earl's-court, the champion Salin will race with Giovanni Moschietto, and it should prove an exciting contest.

"Phroso," who is appearing this week at the Pier Pavilion, Eastbourne, has posed in shop windows of the main street there, and attracted a large number of people to witness his free show. The crowds were evidently well sprinkled with sporting men, for odds of ten to one were to be easily obtained either on or against "Phroso" being a doll; but the difficulty of deciding the bets accounted for the long odds. A local paper definitely pronounces that "Phroso" is merely a mechanical doll, with a living "Phroso" made up in fac-simile. So there you are!

In consequence of the great success of his entertainment at the Egyptian Hall, Mr Maskelyne has secured Mr Walter Graham, the famous human marionette, for a further four months.

In the Court of Chancery, on Wednesday, Mr Bramwell Davis, K.C., applied for the extension till the trial of the action, Gibbons v. Karno, or further order of an injunction obtained by Mr Galbraith on an ex parte application on Saturday restraining the defendant from performing at the Sadler's Wells Theatre a play or sketch, in contravention of an agreement entered into by him with the plaintiff in November last year. The engagement was to appear at the Empire Theatre of Varieties, Islington, and not elsewhere within a specified distance. Mr Eames, for the defendant, contended that the engagement was limited to a particular sketch, and that it was a different troupe and a different play that was advertised for performance at Sadler's Wells. Mr Bramwell Davis—One sketch is called Jail Birds, and the other His Majesty's Guests, but they were practically the same. Mr Eames said the defendant was the proprietor of eight different performing troupes, each of which was a separate theatrical company, having its own distinct manager, contracts, and plays or sketches. Mr Justice Bingham granted an injunction restraining the defendant during the remainder of the week from permitting any troupe with which his name was identified from performing at Sadler's Wells Theatre.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE EUSTON.

The fine business that is being done at this centrally situated palace of varieties affords another proof of the astuteness displayed by the directors when they selected the site—surely one of the best to be found in this ever-growing London of ours. The programmes are invariably well chosen, and a succession of popular favourites is secured. Looming large in the bill this week are Paul Martinetti and his American pantomime company in the serio-comic pantomime, entitled Robert Macaire. This production has been a strong card with the famous pantomimist for some years, and first secured favour, we believe, in Paris, where the art of the mime is, perhaps, better understood than in London. It was hailed at the time by the Parisian press as a triumph of gesture play, and nothing less can be said of it at the present day. From the first entry of Macaire and Strop, the two convicts, into the garden of L'Auberge des Adrets until the dramatic death of both the attention of everyone is enchained. The development of the drama is watched with keen interest, for tragedy treads closely on the heels of comedy, and those who were laughing at the pranks of the comic thief in the opening are prepared to shed tears when the curtain falls slowly on his pathetic death scene. It has often been our pleasant lot to witness Mr Paul Martinetti's admirable delineation, and time has only made it more powerful and convincing. It is a splendid exhibition of the art of miming. Mr Alfred Martinetti is only second to his brother, and an excellent second too. The two work together admirably, and their artistic comradeship secures the happiest results. Ably supporting them in their efforts we find Miss Clara Martinetti as Clementine, M. Emile Josset in the important rôle of Sergeant Loupy, and Mr John Heard as the waiter. The sketch is brightly and attractively mounted. Among the single turns none is more favoured than Miss Millie Lindon, who sings with much pathetic charm of angel faces, and secures a great triumph in that idyllic number, "The rain came pitter-patter down." The pretty little story of courtship under an umbrella has been admirably told by the writer of the verses, and Miss Lindon, evidently inspired by the delicate sentiment of the lines, has never been heard to greater advantage. Her voice is artistically modulated; every word rings out clear; and the little touch of comedy is cleverly suggested. The song marks a great advance in music hall lyrics, and the Eustonians show their good sense in rapturously applauding it and the singer. Miss Ray Wallace at the piano introduces with much success imitations of Miss Marie Kendall, in the successful song "Just like the ivy I'll cling to you;" of Miss Connie Ediss, in "Class," from The Silver Slipper; of Miss Vesta Tilley, in "Following in father's footsteps;" and Miss Marie Lloyd in "I know." The jocosity of Griff is exercised mostly during a performance with hoops. He has a smart assistant in Alpha; and his continual gag, "I taught him," is very laughable. Frobel and Ruge give a smart performance on the revolving spar, which is attached to the bar of a swinging trapeze. The original Caledonian Boys submit a spirited performance of a popular overture, and one of their number sings "Mary of Argyle" very sweetly. Another of the boys plays the piccolo like a virtuoso, and is loudly applauded. Miss Rosie Lloyd sings pleasantly "Boys will be boys;" the Macgregors are heard to advantage in xylophone selections; and Hamilton Hill, the Australian baritone, is well received for his singing of "Blue Bell." Mr Fred M'Avoy is the courteous director of the entertainments here, and Mr Victor Opferman's orchestra ably accompanies the various artistes.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

The rise and progress of the Moss Empire forms one of the most remarkable features of the history of the variety theatre, proving, as it does, the possibility of providing elegance and luxury at cheap prices together with a programme embracing a good majority of "stars" in its composition. The result is seen in unchanging prosperity, a happy state of affairs which has been particularly striking this week at the Stratford Empire, where immense audiences have enjoyed a bill-of-fare of surpassing strength. A novelty is furnished in the new scena entitled Touring the Varieties, written by Mr H. Chance Newton, with music by Robert Coverly, for Miss Louise Beaudet. It introduces a young actress who, having discovered that variety is the essence of entertainment, proceeds to supply it. She begins with "The Darlings in the Band," dedicated to the orchestra, several of whom are addressed in endearing terms by the bewitching comedienne, each object of her blandishments, from the fife to the fiddle, the cornet to the bass drum, giving an example of his powers. The song is drolly conceived and wittily written, and is rendered by Miss Beaudet with such charm, verve, grace, and spirit all combined that its success is immediate and complete. A descriptive song entitled "The game of sham called Life," forms the next item, in which comedy and tragedy alternate, the final essay being the touching story of a London flower girl, whose mother is dying for the want of nourishment, and who goes almost crazy with joy at the receipt of a sovereign given by a stranger for one of her posies. Miss Beaudet renders the piece with rare fervour and profound intensity, and the sympathy of the audience is with her until the close, when their appreciation is enthusiastically bestowed. The programme also contains the scena Destiny, in which Miss Maude Mortimer as the Empress Josephine is seen in a character congenial to her methods, assistance being rendered by Miss Netta Winter as Ninette. A turn eagerly awaited is that of Mr George Robey, whose quaint mannerisms seem illimitable. He sings "As a friend" and "I had to be cruel to be kind" with all his eccentric drollery, while his airs and graces as "The Mayor of Mudcumdyke," which he gives in answer to persistent recalls, carry the audience along on an irresistible wave of laughter. Mr Ernest Shand is also a comedian who is not to be denied when he makes a bid for merriment. Pessimistic indeed must he be who is not moved to mirth by his tales of "Uncle" and his satire on a leading morning paper, while his rhymes with the random refrains are equally potent in effect. A pretty love ballad is artistically rendered by Miss Ethel Haydon, whose cultured voice easily reaches the confines of the spacious hall, and Miss Nina Martino obtains similar honours by her charming singing of "Could you be true to eyes of blue?" The Harvey Boys have a mirth-making interlude in "The Fighting Dummy," the delight of the spectators finding vent in shrieks of laughter. A couple of magnificent bears who play upon trumpets are introduced by the Ohms, who also have two pretty ponies and some intelligent dogs and monkeys, who go through a marvellous performance, astonishment being complete when Bruin enters a "high-flier" at the back of the stage and is whirled aloft. The show is an elaborate and interesting one and proves very popular. Miss Grace Merton supplies in "Asthore" ample evidence of the vocal ability which led to the romantic transference of her talent from street to stage, and the well-assorted bill is completed by the songs and patter of the Bros. W. and W. Ethairien. Mr Sam Gething occupies for the sixth year the post of acting-manager, a position for which he is singularly well fitted.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

Popular artists loom largely in the current programme at the Hackney Empire, and the handsome theatre has been filled to repletion every evening this week. Ushered in by an overture, Balfe's "Le Puits d'Amour," admirably played by the orchestra so ably conducted by Mr Walter Johnson, the bill-of-fare is specially rich in comedians, some half-dozen at least coming under that description. Prominent in the list is Mr Eugene Stratton, who has won fame as a clever singer of melodious coon songs and a remarkably light and graceful dancer. He opens with the ever-welcome "Lily of Laguna" lilt, and the coon's poetical apostrophe to his absent lady love appeals to the admirers of pretty music and effective singing as much as ever. The charming woodland scene is suggestive of languorous, sunny afternoons and warm moonlight nights, and the lithesome figure of the lovesick coon completes the picture. Mr Stratton next gives with equal success and that artistic finish which characterises all his stage work, "Dat little girl of Johnson's;" and in response to the hearty applause he appears a third time to sing "I may be crazy, but I love you," a typical specimen of the sentimental coon song. This effusion has quite a dramatic conclusion, the vocalist finding himself suddenly confronted by two men, who point loaded revolvers at him. Their menacing attitude gives significance to the words, "I may never see you more." Mr Stratton receives the heartiest of greetings at Hackney, and adds every evening to the already large number of his admirers. Another important engagement is that of Mr Harry Ford, who, as a comedian, has now reached the foremost ranks. He is at present specially well served in the matter of songs. "Is it necessary?" contains some very funny notions, and this clever artist manages to get the utmost value out of every line, while his quaint mannerism and comical facial expression are important aids to the success which he secures. "It's a shame" gives rise to renewed merriment, and his ditty concerning the money he supposes he will never get is also well received. Altogether, Mr Ford has quite maintained his high reputation in north-east London. Mr Walter Stanley makes a hit with his songs, "Don't stand there" and "They never worry me." Mr Will Hebden has a good song in "Convict 99," and Mr Bert Byrne is successful with "It's a funny feeling." Mr Arthur Melrose wins favour as a siffleur, and his songs, "Whistling Rufus" and "The Whistling Village" are both meritorious performances. In the last-mentioned ditty Mr Melrose whistles sentences in such a manner that their meaning cannot be mistaken, even the most important part of the marriage service being interpreted in this strikingly original manner. Binns and Binns in their eccentric musical act combine fun and genuine ability as instrumentalists in a very pleasing manner. Their imitation of an organ is a particularly clever piece of work, and their comedy business excites hearty merriment. Miss Lizzie Valrose is generously applauded for her rendering of "Angelina Hayes," while as "A Soldier's Daughter" she sings of the brave deeds done by her father in the long ago. The Highland Comedy Quartet known as the Scottish Meisters at the outset form a tableau which represents a well-known advertisement to a liquor not unknown in bonnie Scotland. Their musical selections include a number of popular quartets and solos which are well rendered, a diversion being created by some knockabout business. This combination gains the favourable verdict of the audience. Grace, daring, and skill are all conspicuous features of the gymnastic performance given by the young lady known as Alcide Capitaine. Hanging head downwards she travels from one trapeze to another by means of the overhanging ladder, a remarkable feat, requiring considerable nerve as well as skill. She deserves the applause so liberally bestowed upon an interesting act. Mr John Christie, the acting manager at this variety theatre, performs his duties with zest and courtesy, and he has the always energetic co-operation of Mr Kennedy Johnson, the assistant-manager.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

No effort is spared by Messrs Tom Maltby and Henry Wickes to afford satisfaction to the patrons of their hall in the High-street, and the consequence is that the patronage accorded their spirited efforts is constant and liberal. Mr Joe Haynes, the experienced and energetic manager, secures turns most suited to his humble, but none the less discriminating, public, whose appreciation is expressed in the whole-hearted manner invariably associated with the sons of toil who mainly compose the audience. The current week's bill is both varied and entertaining, and enthusiasm is early in the evening aroused by the smart top-boot and step-dancing of Miss Marie Tilley, the lady also giving with considerable success a humorous ditty, "On Saturday." Carr and Rosie are listened to with pleasure in their quarrelling duet, "I'll never get married again," an item that is loudly cheered; and Mr Dave Wallace, comedian, has a couple of funny numbers in "La-da-diddle-um" and a well-arranged medley. The Yorkshire Mill Lasses, a couple of young ladies possessing tuneful voices, completely captivate their hearers with their admirable rendering of "The Flight of Ages" and "Excelsior;" and Mr Johnny Worman works a funny idea, "back to the mat," in his first song, his other contribution, "If I hadn't been a Sunday-school teacher," containing many lines that greatly appealed to his auditors. That favourite vocalist Miss Sable Fern is scoring an unmistakable success here with her pretty "Lily of the Valley," "There are as good fish in the sea," and another well-rendered item; and Lacey's Erascope shows some interesting and most amusing pictures. The dramatic sketch of the bill is supplied by Mr J. Wright Aitken and company, and is entitled An Evil World. Its hero is young Jack Marsden, a clerk in the employ of a large shipping office. One of the heads of the firm, the scoundrelly Norris Grey, has at the opening of the playlet the idea of burning down the building and pocketing the insurance money. When, however, he learns that his chief, Hector Heathcote, is dead, he makes other plans for the accumulation of wealth; but Steve Burton, a neer-do-well, and Muriel Damer, a "traitress," are also determined to share in the plunder. Jack, who has rescued a young lady who was in peril of being run over, calls at the office with the intention of giving in his resignation, as he is anxious to go to America to seek out Heathcote's wife and daughter. He soon becomes acquainted with the shady intentions of Grey and his accomplices, and compels the chief of the culprits to write out a full confession of his misdeeds at the point of a pistol. Subsequently, though it is not very clearly shown why, Jack is imprisoned for forgery; and his wife, the young girl he saved, and who turns out to be Heathcote's daughter, is left on her wedding morn to roam the streets penniless and friendless. Of course, she encounters the traitress, Muriel, who taunts her on her unfortunate position; but a kindly-disposed individual befriends her and bids her go to Heathcote Mansion, where Grey has now installed himself master. Jack apparently manages to escape from prison, for he turns up at the mansion disguised as a foreign waiter, and by a smart ruse annexes the gold and notes which, divided into three equal portions, the trio of evil-doers were about to purloin, and ere the curtain falls completely confounds his enemies. The sketch is admirably enacted by the head of the combination and his companions, and appeared to give complete satisfaction to the audience on Monday. A trifle of a most mirth-provoking nature is The Gee Gees, the funny act of the Levites introducing their original absurdity The Tandem; and an especially appreciated item is the musical act given by Ford and Hanson, the burlesque imitations of many illustrious composers and General Booth being smartly done and decidedly amusing. Miss Madge Daly and Starr and Jerome, expert dancers, are also on the entertaining programme, an enjoyable feature of which is the musical selection played by the capable and hard-working conductor Mr George Hatley and his merry men, descriptive of the pleasures and trials of a motor ride.

A CHAT WITH MR. ARTHUR YATES.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

There is a certain quiet dignity about Mr Arthur Yates which hardly seems to suggest in his personality the somewhat sensational atmosphere of a music hall. Not that we think a long association with theatrical affairs and an intimate knowledge of the mysteries of stage-craft and what goes on behind the scenes have caused him to regard the making and makers of amusement with that tolerant complaisance with which our old friend Omar Khayyam appears to have regarded man's existence in this world; but rather that Mr Yates was endowed at a comparatively early age with the admirable qualities of self-control and of being able to recognise at once the essential difficulties in, and the way out of, those awkward little situations which from time to time crop up in every department of life. We entirely disagree with those self-appointed critics of human nature who cavil at the artistic temperament, for that very temperament is an attribute which becomes a valuable moral and material asset, and a power for doing great good with those who use it properly. But it is evident in the case of Mr Yates that the constituents which combine to make up his mental forces are not at war with one another, and the result is a definiteness of purpose and action, a clear insight into motives and matters, and the ability to judge in a calm and impartial manner the many cases which day by day have to be decided by the court of one's own conscience.

Mr Yates, as is pretty well known by this time, shares with Mr James Howell the joint-managership of the T'voli Theatre of Varieties. It is a new idea on the part of the directors of that house to place a couple of men at the helm, and, from the way in which the establishment is now managed, we should say that the idea is a very commendable one. Mr Howell gives his attention mainly to the secretarial and treasury work, while Mr Yates looks after the stage itself and the artists. The subject of this interview, who, by the way, is a son of the late Edmund Yates, of the World newspaper, commenced his professional career in the chorus of D'Oyly Carte's opera company in 1882, and remained with that combination for a couple of years. Then followed an eighteen months' tour with Mr Wilson Barrett's No. 1 Claudian company, with which Mr Yates played small parts, among them being that of Demos, the gladiator, in the prologue. Returning to London, he was engaged for a dual part in Elliott Galer's play, A True Story, produced at Drury-lane, and later on, when Sir Augustus Harris brought out A Run of Luck, he appeared as the Duke of Beaufort. Becoming disgusted with acting, as Mr Yates tersely puts it, he asked Sir Augustus to place him in front of the house, and he became acting-manager and treasurer, a position he retained for four years, performing good work in a similar capacity during the opera seasons at Covent-garden. Leaving the Lane, Mr Yates went to the Opera Comique as acting-manager to Miss Cissie Grahame when that lady ran The Judge, with Mr

MR. ARTHUR YATES.

W. S. Penley in the title-rôle. Afterwards he transferred his affections to the Avenue Theatre as business manager for Mr Henry Lee during the productions of Monte Cristo and Henriétta, in which Mr Lewis Waller and Miss Fanny Brough made such a success. This engagement completed, Mr Yates began his first experience of touring management by taking Mr Charles Lauri on tour with Le Voyage en Suisse, and remained with Mr Lauri during the latter's season at the Criterion, when the famous L'Enfant Prodigue was produced. These two gentlemen then ran a series of matinées at the Prince of Wales's Theatre with another play without words, entitled Statue du Commandeur. Mr Yates next undertook the management of the Princess's Theatre during Madame Anna Rupert's season with the Australian piece, Robbery Under Arms. Mr Albert Gilmer had been engaged for this latter appointment, but in consequence of a serious illness he was debarred from fulfilling it. Mr Yates thus describes his entry into the music hall world. "On Whit Monday, June 3, 1895," he says, "I received a letter from Mr Newson-Smith asking me to arrange a meeting at the London Pavilion on business. I had never met the gentleman before. Well, the contract was settled and signed that very afternoon, and I was appointed to work with Mr Harry Lundy at the Oxford. Mr Newson-Smith said it was the quickest contract he had ever made. I stuck to the Oxford for four and a-half years, only leaving there to follow Mr Lundy's fortunes at the Alhambra, Blackpool, where we had charge of affairs for eight months. I then came back to London and got the engagement as manager of the new Grand, Clapham-junction." Here it is worthy of note to say that at the time Mr Yates took over the reins of government at Clapham junction the establishment had not been paying a dividend. By the end of his first year he had managed to secure 3 per cent. for the shareholders, the second year 8 per cent., and the third year 10 per cent. He should have retained his position at the Grand until next month, but the directors kindly consented to his terminating his engagement in order to take up the position which the Tivoli directors had offered him.

In a social way Mr Yates bears the reputation of being a very good whistler, and, in fact, he has been favourably compared to the famous Mrs Shaw, who created such a sensation some time back when she visited this country. Mr Yates still keeps up his connection with the World newspaper, of which he is one of the directors. In his youth, he tells us, he was very much mixed up with prominent theatrical, literary, and artistic people, who were in the habit of meeting at his father's house. He well remembers the visits of Sir (then Mr) Henry Irving, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr J. L. Toole, and Mr Sothern. One of his earliest recollections of these pleasant little coteries was his performance of the acrobatic feat of turning head over heels in his father's drawing-room, and receiving sixpence as a reward from the late Mr W. P. Frith, R.A.

MUSIC HALL HOME.

The annual general meeting of the Music Hall Home was held at the Camberwell Palace on Wednesday afternoon. Mr Jesse Sparrow presided, and there were also present Messrs Harry Barnard, Douglas White (treasurer), Bob Hutt, Ben Woodger, Joe Lawrence, Leon A. Bassett, W. S. Bassett, Walter Norman, C. Mannering, Will Johnson, Chas. Gardiner, Fred Millis, and J. J. Fruin (secretary).

The SECRETARY read the minutes of the last annual meeting, which were confirmed.

The CHAIRMAN said that the president of the Home, Mr Thomas Barrasford, had promised to take the chair, but the regrettable illness of Mrs Barrasford had upset his arrangements, and he was unable to be present.

The SECRETARY then read the annual report (May 1, 1903, to April 30, 1904), which was as follows:—

The Committee beg to present their report for the past year, by which those ladies and gentlemen who have so kindly interested themselves on behalf of the Home will see by the balance-sheet that it is in a very satisfactory financial position.

Since the last report Mr Cecil Merris has tendered his resignation, and Mr J. J. Fruin has been elected as secretary in his place. Since last November the Home has been removed to the above address, under much more healthy surroundings.

As will be seen by the balance-sheet, the Committee have to tender their sincere thanks especially to the M.H.A.R.A. for their very generous donations, the directors of the Camberwell Palace for the free use of the hall for the annual matinée, Mr Bob Hutt for organising the comedians' walk, Mr Walter Hassan of the Hippodrome, Liverpool; Atlas and Vulcana, for their grand collection during their Australian tour; and also the managers and proprietors for allowing the collecting boxes to be placed in their various halls.

Thanks to the energy of several well-known gentlemen connected with the profession recently elected on the Committee, a large number of additional boxes have been placed in various provincial halls, and the Committee have no doubt the funds will greatly benefit thereby during the current year.

During the latter part of the past year there have been seven inmates in the Home, which accounts for the slight increase in cost of maintenance as compared with the previous year.

HARRY BARNARD, Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN, in moving the adoption of the annual report and financial statement, said there had been a considerable decrease in the amount of the card collections, but he thought that this would be counterbalanced by the increased revenue derived from the collecting boxes. They had now ninety-four boxes, and in a few days would have over 100 throughout the United Kingdom. He considered that this was a far more satisfactory method of collecting for the Home than by the issue of cards, though he was not in favour of abandoning the cards. The difficulty was that so many collecting cards were never returned. No benefit match at the Oval on behalf of the Home had been played during the past season, but the Music Hall Artistes' Association had behaved very generously in granting a donation of £35 10s., the proceeds of the matinée at the Camberwell Palace amounted to £3 or £4 more than last year, and the comedians' walk to Croydon, inaugurated by Mr Bob Hutt, resulted in a contribution of £15. Altogether he thought they had cause for congratulation on the present state of affairs. There had been seven inmates in the Home during the latter part of the year, causing an increase of £10 in the cost of maintenance, and £10 more than last year had been expended in advertising. He desired to call attention to the fact that Miss Nellie Wilson had collected the sum of £8, and he wished that other ladies of the profession would do as well as she had done.

Mr BOB HUTT seconded the resolution, which was then put and carried.

Mr WOODGER next proposed that Mr Thomas Barrasford be re-elected president of the Home.

Mr JOE LAWRENCE seconded the proposition, which was carried unanimously, the CHAIRMAN remarking that Mr Barrasford had greatly benefited the Home by having collecting-boxes placed at the various halls with which he was connected. It was Mr Barrasford's intention to have paid a visit to the Home that day had he been in town.

The CHAIRMAN read a telegram from Mr Douglas Stuart, who was away holiday-making, expressing regret at his absence and congratulating the committee on the report and financial statement.

Mr BOB HUTT then proposed that the three vice-presidents, Messrs Harry Barnard, Jesse Sparrow, and C. Douglas Stuart, be re-elected.

Mr J. LAWRENCE seconded the motion, which was carried.

Mr W. NORMAN proposed, and Mr L. A. BASSETT seconded, that Mr W. Hassan, of Liverpool; Mr S. Perry, of Hull; and Mr Chas. Weldon, of Leeds, be elected vice-presidents, and this was agreed to.

Mr Douglas White was re-elected treasurer, and the committee was also reappointed, Mr H. BARNARD, speaking as its chairman, remarking that he did not think they could do better, as the members of it had done their work very well.

It was agreed that Messrs F. Millis, C. Gardiner, and W. Johnson be added to the committee.

On the motion of Mr BARNARD, seconded by Mr LAWRENCE, Mr J. J. Fruin was re-elected secretary.

It was agreed that a letter should be sent to Mr Thomas Barrasford, expressing the hearty thanks of the meeting to him for permitting collecting boxes to be placed at the halls he is connected with, regret at his inability to be present, and a hope that Mrs Barrasford was better.

A vote of thanks was, on the motion of Mr DOUGLAS WHITE, seconded by Mr MILLIS, accorded Mr C. Mannering for supplying the collecting boxes free of all charge.

The meeting concluded with votes of thanks to the chairman, the press, and the hon. treasurer.

FIRST LEGACY TO THE M.H.B.F.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Some years ago you were kind enough to insert a letter from me calling the attention of the music hall profession and those interested in the business — proprietors, directors, shareholders, tradesmen, &c.—to the subject of testamentary bequests in aid of our Fund. I then asked that the claims of our charity might be taken into consideration.

In studying the position of other benevolent institutions and charities and our own, I was much struck by the fact that no bequests had ever been made to us, although the number of monied and successful members of the profession far outnumbered those of many other businesses, whose list of bequests were so considerable that the yearly interest from their investment rendered them quite independent of such annual functions as dinners or sports, both of which we have mainly to depend upon for support. This, it must be admitted, is precarious to a dangerous degree, for a wet day or a poor attendance might be fatal to our existence.

This state of affairs ought not to be. The remedy is simple. If those I have mentioned were to follow the example of the late Mr Pallant, and in their testamentary dispositions leave a small amount to the benefit of their own charity, it would help to place it on the firm basis to which it is surely entitled, considering the social standing and position of those connected with, if I may so call it, the industry of the music halls, which is occupying such an important position to-day, and which is destined to occupy a still more important one in the near future.

The anxiety of my committee may well be imagined. They are very grateful for the support they have received, which has enabled them steadily to increase the number of pensioners from six to thirty in a period of seven years, in addition to the weekly grants and loans. They have also buried over 100 poor professionals in the like period. It is quite out of their power to do all that ought to be done, but they fight bravely with the funds at their command. During the past year they have investigated over 1,500 cases and relieved the wants of the aged and infirm as far as the funds would allow.

It would be impossible to conceive a more self-sacrificing body of gentlemen than the committee of this Fund, who do their work quietly and unostentatiously, and whose actions are sometimes so severely criticised by those who don't want to help. I shall be glad to call on anyone or see them here and explain the working of the charity. In the meantime we are all thankful for our first legacy, and may the kindly spirit of Walter Pallant emulate others to follow his charitable lead.

Yours faithfully, HORACE MARRIOTT,
Secretary M.H.B.F.

THE LATE HERBERT CAMPBELL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In consultation with several old friends of the late Herbert Campbell, it was unanimously considered that a memorial to his memory should be obtained, and placed, if possible, in the vestibule of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, which was the scene of so many of his triumphs, and in which theatre he had amused and delighted so many thousands of persons.

It is thought the best way to perpetuate the memory of this very generous and genial artiste is by the erection of a marble or bronze bust, and through his old friend, Mr Arthur Collins, the directors of the Drury-lane Theatre have been approached, and they have agreed to the suggestion, and, in addition, have generously promised the sum of £10 10s. towards the fund.

A meeting will shortly be held, of which due notice will be given, and it is desired that as many as can make it convenient to attend will kindly do so.

Being so well and universally known, myself and those interested think that there are very many of his old friends and fellow-artistes who would like to contribute to this memorial, and several subscriptions have already been promised. Mr Edward Ledger has kindly consented to receive and acknowledge any sums which may be sent for the above object.

Yours faithfully, HENRY JOYNER.

VESTA TILLEY IN NOTTINGHAM.

ENTHUSIASTIC APPLAUSE.

A significant numeral at either side of the stage, and a little trill of the bell, gave the signal for an outburst of enthusiastic applause at the Empire last night. It was the heralding of Vesta Tilley—Nottingham's own Vesta—who has not appeared here since the eve of her departure to America. We have had to console ourselves since that memorable week with the reading of daily paragraphs about Miss Tilley's triumphal progress through the States, without an incident to spoil her happy career except the interviewing pressman; but last night we saw the clever little lady in her own fair self, gay, svelte, and debonair, and looking more effervescent and boyish, if the term (not inappropriate in the present case) may be forgiven. One listened in vain for a trace—even the faintest—of the accent of Manhattan, but if she has left that behind her Miss Tilley has brought at least one song piping hot from Columbia. "The Wise Old Owl" it is called, and, set to rag-time, it made the gallery hum the refrain and the stalls beat time with begloved hands. A verse about the prophet Dowie is exceptionally smart. Another new song was "The Seaside Sultan," for which Miss Tilley is arrayed in a dazzling white lounge suit, with hat and boots to match. It treats of the clerk who poses on his holiday as the owner of a yacht, and other airy trifles of the kind, and is even better than "In the Pale Moonlight," one of the artiste's greatest successes of recent years. The third song was the ever-delightful "Following in Father's Footsteps," and though Miss Tilley tried to escape after this, the audience would not be content until she had treated them to the rollicking soldier study "On Furlough." It struck us that Miss Tilley's voice, always sweet, had improved by her American trip, and altogether she has never sung to more advantage.—Express and Journal, Nottingham, Tuesday, Sept. 13.

THE Burnells open at Sadler's Wells on Monday after a most successful provincial tour with their new act, On the Links.—Mr J. P. Dane is back in town to fulfil a special engagement at the Crystal Palace. He has been secured for 1905 on the Moss and Stoll Empires.—Geo. Macdonald's Troupe, including his Brother Bob, will now tour the provinces after two years' absence from England.—Jimmy De Voye and his arithmetical pony "Bill" have been very successful on the Barrasford tour, and are engaged to open in Berlin, Oct. 16.

AT Thames Police-court, on Wednesday, Sarah Smith, of 3, Peacock-street, Cambridge-road, was summoned by Chas. Maffey, on behalf of the Musical Publishing Association, for selling pirated copies of copyright musical works. The defendant, having consented to the copies seized being destroyed, was ordered to pay 20s. costs or ten days.

A CHAT WITH FRANK BROWN.

BUENOS AYRES' NEW HIPPODROME.

Mr Brown of Buenos Ayres. The name stands for a good deal in that "city far beyond the sea, in a distant foreign land." Even if it were not for his twenty-one years' acquaintanceship with this part of the world, his name would be eminently to the forefront in connection with a place of pleasure for the people which is at the present moment in course of erection. The full title of the new house of amusement is the Coliseo Argentino and Teatro Circo, otherwise and in our language known as the Argentine Coliseum and Theatre-Circus, the owners of which style themselves the Sociedad Anonima. The New Hippodrome will be open all the year round. Everybody knows what great lovers of the circus ring the Spaniards, Italians, and Argentines are, and Mr Brown, who has performed with his own company for some sixteen years at the Teatro San Martin at Buenos Ayres, can lay claim to a first-rate knowledge of what is required in the way of amusements by the inhabitants of that part. While on a visit to London some four or five years ago, Mr Brown made an inspection of the new Hippodrome in Cranbourn-street, and he immediately realised the benefits that an establishment, constructed on similar principles, would confer on the amusement-loving public of Buenos Ayres. A ring, a stage, and a water tank arranged within one building suggested resources which had not been heard of in the capital, nor any part, of the Argentine Republic, and to Mr Brown's enterprising mind they afforded scope for a great variety of performances. After a while he succeeded in getting some merchants in the city interested in his scheme, as he found the concern would be too costly for one man to engage in unaided, and the result is that the erection of the Hippodrome is now well advanced. It is confidently anticipated that the place will be ready for the opening ceremony in April next. A very favourable site has been secured at great expense, the building standing in a plaza, or garden square, and electric tramlines running round the block in all directions. The frontage, or main entrance, is in Charcas-street, while at the rear is Santa Fe-street. As the Hippodrome is isolated windows are being arranged all round, which, together with the sliding roof, will make the place very cool in summer. The front of the stage has a depth of 50ft., the width being 40ft., while the sinking ring is 42ft. in diameter. This latter part of the structure is being manufactured in Paris, at the establishment where the ring now used in the Nouveau Cirque was made. Capacity is being provided for seating 1,800, but there will be promenades in addition large enough to held 1,000 more. Extensive stable accommodation, administration offices, and outhouses are also being erected, so that the new Hippodrome will be thoroughly up to date in every particular. The sole management of the place will, of course, be in the hands of Mr Brown, who is now in town looking out for suitable performers and acts.

A short sketch of Mr Frank Brown's professional career may not be uninteresting. He is the son of the late Mr Henry Brown, the well-known Shakespearian jester. He entered the circus business at eleven years of age, serving a seven years' apprenticeship in Henry Bramley's combination, with which he travelled all over the United Kingdom as well as in Russia and Sweden. After finishing his "time," he returned to this country and joined Cook's Circus. In 1878 he toured all over the States with what was known as "the London show," a big enterprise then running, his own performances consisting of riding and acrobatics. Afterwards he travelled in America with Messrs Shelby, Pullman, and Hamilton's circus, leaving that show to appear in Mexico with the Orrin Brothers, with whom he was given his first opportunity to show his abilities as a clown, one of the members of the company having disappeared suddenly and a willing substitute being found in the awkward situation in the person of Mr Brown. He found that in the Spanish countries clowning was considered a most important feature of the programme, and, as in his new rôle his salary was doubled, he stuck to this kind of work. After a stay in Havana he journeyed to Texas, where he played in bull-rings on Sundays, and led an idle life for the rest of the week. Later on, he got an engagement to go to Havana with Leon De Leon's circus, and there he made a great success as a clown. Going to Venezuela at a period of considerable political trouble, he found that the then President was giving entertainments to the people to ensure peacefulness and to prevent noisy outbursts. In this way he was engaged to perform at Caracas with the Carlo Brothers. His globe-trotting propensities next took him to Trinidad, Demerera, and Cayenne, the French penal settlement, from which place he crossed over to the coast of Brazil, and worked his way up to Buenos Ayres, where he opened as a clown at the Politeama on March 7, 1884. He was not long in that city before he made quite a name for himself, his business being much admired on account of the clever way in which he introduced his various feats. After being four years connected with the Carlo Brothers he started, in 1888, in business for himself, touring with his company between Buenos Ayres, Monte Video, Rio De Janeiro, and San Powel. In the year 1891 a revolution was in progress in Chili and the Brazils, and as matters were not running very smoothly, it was either a case of closing up or going elsewhere. He therefore chartered a sailing vessel and took his company to South Africa, where he visited Kimberley, Johannesburg, Pretoria, and finally got down to the coast of Natal. In those days travelling in South Africa was a somewhat tedious business, the railways not having been opened to the extent that they are now. From Durban he took steamer to India, and he recollects that while between Madagascar and Mauritius they struck the tail-end of a cyclone which destroyed nearly all the houses, churches, and other buildings in Mauritius. He lost the best of his horses on the voyage, and when he landed at Colombo he found that those who remained were not of much use. However he managed to save the situation by producing a water carnival. A great many towns and cities in India were visited with success, including Madras and Bangalore. At the latter place he was engaged to give three performances in the palace grounds of the Maharajah of Mysore. The Prince treated the company handsomely, furnishing them with the best hotel accommodation and all conveniences, including a special stage and electric lighting, &c., necessary for their show. The entertainments were given in the presence of a large gathering of British officers and Indian princes. Secunderabad was the next place at which a stop was made, and in a town where 9,000 British troops were stationed it is not surprising that Mr Brown's receipts were extremely encouraging. Hyderabad came next, then Bombay, England, and back once more to Buenos Ayres, where, for a number of years past, he has had a season at the Teatro San Martine. When not at Buenos Ayres Mr Brown has been in the habit of touring through the Brazils, Chili, and Peru.

MANAGING DIRECTOR, FRANK BROWN.

THE Gloucester Festival ended on the 9th inst., with the usual performance of Handel's Messiah, about which it is entirely superfluous to speak. Apart from the Elgar day there has been a falling off all round. Tuesday evening dropped twenty-six attendances; Wednesday morning, forty-five; Wednesday evening, ninety-three; Thursday evening, 481. Adding to these figures the Messiah and the Elijah deficiencies we find that, whereas three years ago there was an aggregate attendance 14,106, the total for this week is only 13,160. The collections for the charity, £410 14s., show a falling off of £20, but this is scarcely a material loss, as the contributions of the 200 stewards will amount to more than £1,000.

THE Hanley borough magistrates on Tuesday determined a case under the Musical Copyright Act. A search had been made at a house of a man named Sheldon, believed to have on his premises a large number of alleged pirated copies of the coon song "Santy Claus is coming 'fore de morning," the property of Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter. The agent was accompanied by the police. Only a few mutilated copies had been discovered, when the defendant arrived and assaulted a police officer. The defence was that the prosecution had only power to seize the music which was actually being "hawked," carried about, sold, or offered for sale, and that they had no power of search. It was suggested that a lad who had bought from the defendant's house nineteen copies of music for 1s. 3d. had given information to the police when accosted while in possession of the copies. The Bench declined to make an order, on the ground that all the copies seen were already mutilated and destroyed. They likewise declined to convict the defendant for assaulting the constable, on the ground that the latter had exceeded his duty, the Act not giving power of search.

AT the Court of Bankruptcy, on Tuesday, a sitting for public examination was held in the case of Percy Harold Boggis, late a partner in a firm of music-hall agents, of Wellington-street, Strand. Debtor stated that he was an electrician, and for some years past had been travelling with his wife, who was a serpentine dancer, professionally known as Mdlle. De Dio. He was not in partnership with her, and had no interest in her profits, beyond being paid his expenses. His present position was entirely due to losses in connection with the agency business in which he was a sleeping partner. He put into the concern over £600, the whole of which had been lost owing, as he alleged, to the mismanagement of the business by his late partner. His accounts now showed liabilities £1,274, and no available assets. The examination was concluded.

GROUND PLAN OF THE NEW HIPPODROME, BUENOS AYRES.

"JACK'S LITTLE SURPRISE," a farce in three acts, by Louis Fagan, has served to introduce Mr Arthur Byron as a star and start the season at the Princess's Theatre, New York. The first act is laid in Cairo and the other two in New York City. Bob Merrivale, the scapegrace son of a wealthy American who is travelling with his family in Egypt, makes all kinds of trouble by aiding Fiametta, a beautiful young girl, in her flight from the harem of Murafek Pasha, special adviser to the Khedive. Jack Van Allen (Mr Byron), who has just married Bob's sister; Alonzo Merrivale, Bob's father, and George Peabody, the American Consul at Cairo, are all drawn into the affair, and in their efforts to keep Fiametta in concealment arouse the suspicions of their respective wives, Bob refusing to clear them by telling the truth. Jack has bought a gift for his wife with which he intends to surprise her when they reach home. Fiametta is put into the trunk containing the gift and transported to New York, where she proves a surprise indeed, but anything but a welcome one. She is clad in a gauzy costume, and the three wives, in order to confuse and expose the objects of their suspicions, attire themselves in a similar fashion, causing no end of comic situations, until Fiametta identifies Bob as her Apollo and clears the three husbands. The farce is cleverly acted by Mr Byron and his company, and has met with a favourable reception.

A TERRIBLE scene took place at Enghien on Sunday, when La Goulue, the once notorious dancer, now a lion tamer, was attacked during a performance by a lion. Soldiers in the audience drew their swords and sprang to her rescue, which was not, however, effected before the lady was horribly mutilated by the enraged beast. La Goulue was removed to hospital in a critical condition.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, SEPT 7.—The dramatic season in this city begins by long-established precedent with the first week in September. This precedent has been closely followed, but another one, appointing Monday as the day of the week for new productions, has in several instances been disregarded. Last season the managers began to make departures from the Monday night rule, and there seems to be a growing tendency to favour Thursday and Saturday. Weber and Fields always opened their music hall and produced new pieces on Thursday night, their rigid observance of this custom being attributed to a superstitious regard for Thursday as their "lucky day." But the old rule still holds good, despite the exceptions, there being quite a clash of important openings last Monday, with the result that the "first nighters" were tempted with an array of offerings that was quite bewildering. Mr Charles Frohman's Empire Theatre, first in favour with the fashionable set, opened with Mr John Drew in The Duke of Killicrankie. At the Knickerbocker Theatre Miss Lulu Glaser appeared under the management of Mr Charles B. Dillingham in a new comic opera. The Rogers Brothers began an engagement at the New Amsterdam, Mr George W. Lederer produced a new comedy at the Herald-square, and several other playhouses opened with revivals.

MISS EDNA MAY, in The School Girl, proved a potent attraction at Daly's Theatre on the 1st inst. This was the first important production of the season, and the piece met with a reception which showed that it fully deserved this distinction. The house was crowded, and Miss May received an enthusiastic welcome back to Broadway. According to one of the newspapers she has "acquired a transatlantic accent," while another remarks that she has the "true British lilt in her voice," and is now "decidedly and thoroughly Anglicised." In fact, the critics are practically unanimous on this point, but as they all agree that Miss May has improved in every way since her last visit, and that her Lillian Leigh is a most bewitching creation, there would seem to be no harm done. In her first song, "Daughters of the Guard," Miss May made an impression which was immediately and decidedly favourable. For the success of the piece, however, a large share of the credit is due to Messrs George Grossmith, jun., James Blakeley, and Fred Wright, jun. As Sir Ormsby St. Leger Mr Grossmith was a host in himself, and the audience laughed continually at his irresistible humour. His song, "My Cosy Corner Girl," made a decided hit. Mr Blakeley's Tubby Bedford was a diverting characterisation, his "Needle in a Haystack" number being enthusiastically applauded. As General Marchmont Mr Wright tickled the risibilities of the audience, and did some first-rate pantomime and quick-change work in "One of the Boys."

MISS IDA RENE had cause to feel proud when she read what the newspapers said about her musical recitations on the morning after her American début at the Lyric Theatre. It was the general opinion that they had saved The Royal Chef from utter condemnation. Miss René played no part in this piece, but came on in the second act, and gave the performance a new interest by her thoroughly artistic rendering of "Marriage à la Mode," "The Rake's Progress," and "The Coquette." A decidedly unique and novel entertainer, Miss René found her first American audience very appreciative, and was repeatedly recalled. The book of The Royal Chef, a musical play in three acts, hailing from Chicago, was written by George E. Stoddard and Charles S. Taylor, and the music was composed by Ben Jerome. The Rajah of Oolong has just beheaded his chief cook, and has ordered his Prime Minister, Lord Mito, to secure a successor as speedily as possible. The latter is at his wits' end when Heinrich Lemphauser drops in from Chicago and announces that he is a "Cook's tourist." Mito immediately takes him to be a cook, and a cook Lemphauser must become, willy nilly, with the result that he is in constant danger of losing his head and is involved in a series of ludicrous happenings, before he is allowed to return to his native Chicago. Dave Lewis appears as Lemphauser; Harry Leone as the Rajah, Joseph Miron as Lord Mito, Amelia Stone as Princess Teto, and John Park as a naval lieutenant. The music is tuneful, Mr Lewis is funny, and Miss Stone sings several songs delightfully; but for all that the piece is very ordinary and for that reason failed to win critical approval.

"MRS WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH," described in the bills as a "three-act character comedy with heart interest," was produced at the Savoy Theatre on the 3rd inst. This play was adapted by Anne Crawford Flexner from Alice Hegan Rice's novel of the same title and her later story, "Lovely Mary." The central character, cheery optimistic Mrs Wiggs, dwells with her children in an old shanty in a squalid suburb of of Louisville, Kentucky. Mrs Wiggs says that "it's sinful to fuss" and believes that "everything in the world comes right if we jes' wait long enough," this comforting reflection being prompted by the recovery of her missing "false front" from her horse's manger. Mrs Rice's stories have been so widely read that the audience welcomed each of the prominent characters as an old friend, and so faithfully were these characters depicted that the performance was watched with real interest and sympathy from first to last. Miss Madge Carr Cook's portrayal of the homely Mrs Wiggs was true to life, and won lively appreciation at various stages of the performance. First honours, however, were won by Mr Will T. Hodge, as Mr Stubbins, the "hayseed" bridegroom of mature years, and Miss Helen Lowell, as Miss Hazy, the forlorn and unprepossessing frump who becomes his bride, being incited thereto by the optimism of Mrs Wiggs, aided and abetted by the matrimonial bureau conducted by Mr Hunkerdunkus Jones. Mr Stubbins dreams of married bliss on the strength of Miss Hazy being a good cook, only to find that the pies with which his intended tempted him were made by Mrs Wiggs. The shock to his feelings is the immediate cause of his falling from grace by returning home in a state of inebriety just as Mrs Wiggs, with another matrimonial match in view, is expatiating on his virtues. The "heart interest" is provided by bringing Mr Wiggs back from the alcoholic demise that made Mrs Wiggs a widow in the novel and making him the father of a child whom the mother has placed in an orphan asylum. The mother dies, and Wiggs tries to gain possession of little Tommy, but Lovely Mary, his nurse, is too fond of her charge to part with him, so she runs away with the child from the asylum. In his search for the pair Wiggs is brought face to face with his wife, who has given them a shelter, and Mrs Wiggs needs all of her philosophy when the doings of her recreant spouse are disclosed to her. But her optimism prevails, and Wiggs is forgiven.

AT Marylebone Police-court, on Saturday, James Adolph Auerbach, twenty-eight, a Danish subject, better known as Behrens, was brought before Mr Curtis-Bennett on a warrant, charged with stealing £295 in Bank of England notes, belonging to Charles Prinz, his employer. Detective Entichnap, F division, said he found the prisoner detained at Brighton that morning. When told the charge, the prisoner professed to know nothing about it, but when brought to London and charged, he said, "I may as well tell you the truth, and so save trouble. When I went into the room and saw the notes it was a great temptation, and I took them. I have changed the lot of them—some at Paris, some at Copenhagen, Brighton, and London. I am sorry I haven't any left to give back to Mr Prinz." Mr Curtis-Bennett asked if the prisoner meant that he had got rid of the £295, and the officer replied in the affirmative. The prisoner was remanded.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The fair at Ayr, N.B., is held this year for the first time in Newton Park. Mr Peter Swallow is the lessee acting for the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union. Business opened one week previous to Ayr Races, and continues until the 17th. Buffalo Bill's "Wild West" Show occupied portion of the great park on Monday, the 12th, and will doubtless have done something to advertise the new situation of the pleasure fair. There was a large assemblage of shows, at the head of whom were Messrs Geo. Biddall and Son's ghost and electrograph, Messrs Chipperfield's French menagerie, Mrs Sarah Johnson and Son's circus of varieties, Mr Geo. Green's Cinématogeaph (manager, Mr Monte), Sahib Leo's Egyptian hall, Mr Alf. Haydn's Marconigrams, Mr Henry Chapman's educated birds, Prince Samonda's Oriental illusions, and the phrenological delineations of Mr and Mrs Lovell. As anticipated, the machine list was extensive. Mr John Wilmot and Son's Royal Caledonian hunters, Mr Geo. Green's prodigious poultry, Mr James Wilmot's Venetian realisations, Mr Peter Swallow's centrifugal farm; Mrs C. Howard's twin tugs, Messrs M'Indoe's Mona railway on the figure eight track, Mr Joe Wingate's safety bicycles, Steen's Highland Mary and six sets of manual swings, the high-class photographic concerns of Messrs F. Walton and J. Eden and J. Maley. The Morris tubes and shooting pavilions of Messrs S. J. Rostron, J. Lawrence, J. Wilmot, E. Sheeran, J. Day, T. Newton, W. Stringfellow, J. Biddall, and Mrs Smith attracted the local marksmen. Refreshment tents were in the hands of Mrs Moore, Mrs Galloway, and J. Milligan. The supplementary minor fun of the fair with strikers, lifters, bogies, tubs, &c., were provided by Messrs W. Slater, W. Harris, jun., A. Testo, H. Irving, J. Blockley, W. Price, J. Knight, R. Clayton, C. Smith, W. Stringfellow, R. Stevenson, J. Wilmot, jun., W. Merrick, J. Kelly, J. Biddall, W. Hiscoe, G. Sheeran, J. Day, S. M'Intosh, T. Newton, Cook, Fitzpatrick, Nelson, and F. C. Hume. We deeply sympathise with Messrs Chipperfield at the unfortunate loss of several valuable animals during their stay here.

On the 8th inst. Buffalo Bill's "Wild West" show paid a visit to Greenock, camping at Fort Matilda. The show was visited by large crowds, great interest being evinced in the fine collection of Indians, American lancers, &c., whose feats evoked loud applause. All the items in the programme were much appreciated, and at the close general satisfaction was expressed.

Mr James Rhodes, familiar to frequenters of feasts and fairs all over the country as the proprietor of a travelling theatre, died at his residence at Leeds, on Saturday, at the age of eighty-one. He had travelled with his theatre for many years, and some of his productions would have done no discredit to the regular boards. He retained his booth to the last, and managed it with success.

Showmen and roundabout proprietors should take note of Studley Pleasure Fair on Sept. 28.

While a travelling menagerie was being landed at Boulogne, on the 9th inst., some children commenced to throw food to one of the elephants. Some mischievous boys, however, tossed the animal stones, and, fearing it would resent this, a policeman named Petit ordered the children away. The elephant, misinterpreting the officer's action, flew into a fury, and seizing the policeman round the waist with its trunk, dashed him heavily to the ground. The animal was about to dash forward to trample on Petit, but he, pretending to be dead, lay motionless. The ruse succeeded, as the animal walked over him, and was speedily led away, while Petit was conveyed to the hospital with comparatively few injuries.

Great satisfaction was felt in the Neath district that the poor of the town were enabled to enjoy the fun of the fair gratis. The reformatory lads, the inmates of the cottage homes, and the workhouse inmates were very kindly received by Mr Wadbrooke, who gave them an excellent entertainment in which Messrs Haggar, Dooner, Reeder, J. Danter, H. Studt, S. White, and John North assisted. Many thanks are due to the showmen for their kind exertions.

Away north, at Ayr, in the West of Scotland, during the present week there are gathered together, from far and near, all sorts and conditions of showmen, for it is the week of the Western meeting, locally known as Ayr Races, and for long generations it has been the Mecca of the showmen. But last year there was a break in the continuity. The time-honoured stance down the South Quay was prohibited by the Harbour Trust, and the Town Council allocated ground for the shows on Newton Public Park. This site was considered by many of the leading showmen too far removed from the centre of the town, and they, backed up by the Association, would have none of it, and the consequence was that there were few shows in the town; in fact, they were all represented by Mr Peter Swallow, who happened to have a lease of the Carrick Oval, and a lot of satellites, who did excellent business. This year, without any demur, the showmen have gone to the new ground at Newton Public Park, and the enormous crowds who find their way there justify the change, both from the showmen's and the public's point of view. The park has a good, tough turf, over a sub-soil of sand, which makes it ideal ground for cleanliness and for camping. As if to inaugurate the new stance, the upper portion of the park was occupied with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show on Monday, which introduced vast crowds to the show ground. The great show arrived in the small hours of Sunday morning, and during the whole of Sunday a continuous stream of people visited the grounds.

On Saturday night there was a great crowd at the shows, and first-class business was done. It is computed that at one time there would be from 6,000 to 7,000 persons within the park, and when it is considered that the people were continually coming and going, we may congratulate the showmen on the change. The shows already forward embrace J. Willmot's gondolas, cockerels, and horses; P. Swallow's cockerels and horses; Messrs H. and R. M'Indoe's electric figure-eight monorail cars, a new idea in roundabouts, the invention of a Kilmarnock clergyman, and the fine equipment turned out from that same town; Green's Cinématograph, Biddall's ghost illusion, Johnson's circus, Chipperfield's French menagerie, Sahib Leno's Egyptian Hall, J. S. Wingate's bicycles, Zaza, the modern witch. There are an unusual number of small fry and camp followers with shooting tubes, shying booths, and all the &c. in that line, and as matters indicate just now they will all do business. The Corporation electric tram-cars run past the foot of the street leading to the show grounds, and the change of venue is helping the coffers of the town materially.

Holbeck Feast, Leeds, took place last Saturday, and continued till Wednesday. Those seeking locomotion, either in switchback form, galloping horses, racing cockerels, or cycling, were admirably catered for by such well-known concerns as William Murphy's (the lessee) Golden Venice, elaborately carved and decorated in gold and silver; Aspland's Boston gondolas, Marshall's two concerns the switchback and galloping horses, P. Collins, Limited, with racing cockerels, Tuby's flying ostriches, Harness with his galloping mustangs, Waddington's Yorkshire farmyard roosters, Hamilton's four-abreast horses, Capt. Dobson's ocean wave sensation, Batty's steam horses, Collins's cycle track, Waddington's mammoth yachts, Baker's men-of-war boats, steam swings by Morley, Corrigan, Shaw, Amos, Burgin, and hand-swings by Messrs Proctor, Redfern, Harness, Crouther, Morley, Church, Hayes, and Hughes. In the exhibition line there were the well-known Bioscope concerns of Monte Williams; Relph and Pedley's new century show, with the mammoth organ; Kemp's electric theatre, Testo's Cinémato, Manders' united shows, the Royal Waxwork, the Curios, the Star Menagerie, Le-Neve, with his well-known troupe of wrestlers; Stewart's boxing troupe, Hasting's midget, giant girl, Birch's Yorkshire midgets, Powell's fine art, Rhodes's Yorkshire theatre; Gess, with his athletes; Blakey, the juggler; Vallo, with his ventriloquial troupe; Gibson's Home of Mystery, Campbell's freak calf, Relph's midget horses, the miniature roundabouts of Messrs Kayes, Church, Seed, Doubtfire, and Thomas. The arranging of the ground was carried out by Messrs Campbell and Whitehead for the lessee, Mr William Murphy, gondola owner, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

An interesting cricket match was played at Tufnel-park, on Tuesday, between the London Pavilion and the Palace Theatre. The teams were captained respectively by Jackson and Billy Hughes. The Palace force put in a strong appearance, but the Pavilion defenders were several men short. At 2 0 o'clock, in order to avoid "no game," Hughes offered to lend Jackson the services of some of the Palace men, a sportsmanlike and generous offer that he is not likely to forget for some time, for he had the mortification of seeing Marsters (Palace) score a well-played, but yet a lucky 42 in favour of the team he had hoped to defeat. At twenty minutes past two A Wright and Clegg commenced batting for the Pavilion, B. and V. Hollander sharing in the attack. Clegg, notwithstanding that he was very lame, owing to an accident on Sunday, compiled his half-century in twenty-five minutes. Wallett, an exceptionally good all-round cricketer, was seen to great advantage, making the top score of the match—51—very rapidly, and Knowles (not out) played very good cricket, on the leg side being particularly well timed. During the afternoon Mr Frank Glenister and Mr Alfred Butt appeared upon the scene "just to see how their 'boys' were getting on." Mr Miller, who takes great interest in the Palace team, is—fortunately for his peace of mind—away holiday-making. He certainly would not have relished witnessing the victory of the Pavilion being brought about by one of his own men. Scores:—

London Pavilion.—A. Wright, b B. Hollander, 5; Clegg, c Hicks, b B. Hollander, 50; Scaife, st Wallett, b B. Hollander, 2; Marsters, b Wallett, 42; Brady, st Wallett, b B. Palace Theatre.—Wallett, c and b C. Wright, 51; Wilkins, lbw, b Cobbett, 16; B. Hollander, c Ford, b Cobbett, 1; V. Hollander, b Cobbett, 2; Pritchard, b Clegg, 0; Knowles, not out, 33; Crozier, lbw, b Cobbett, 11; Damer, st Ford, b Cobbett, 0; Fuller, b Cobbett, 4; Hicks, st Clegg, b Cobbett, 2; Hughes, b Cobbett, 1; extras, 2; total, 123.

LIZZIE DALTRY, Bethnal-green's nine year-old fat girl, appeared at the Cambridge on Monday. Much to her disgust Lizzie was not allowed to dance, as the laws relating to the employment of children prohibit performances by children under ten years of age. She was arrayed in "rational" costume. She stands 4ft. 6½in. Her waist measurement is 46in., and her total weight 10st. 3lbs.

MISS EDNA CRAGGS has received five offers for pantomime.—Miss Ruby Bijou, the dainty dancer, after a most successful summer season, returns to the London halls for two weeks, and then starts touring in the provinces until Christmas.—Bonita, the well-known rifle shot, now on tour with Bostock and Wombwell's, will add to her act by shooting at full gallop around the ring.

MR A. G. SPRY, a real "funny" man (as a comic contemporary calls him), is scoring heavily on his provincial tour. Messrs Murray and Everard have written him several successes lately, which have quite hit the public taste. Mr Spry's arrangements are complete (with a few exceptions) until 1907. He commences his second Australian tour in July, 1905.

MISS ROSE HAMILTON was the recipient of a handsome bouquet at the Empire, Dudley, last Saturday evening. On the card attached was written:—"To Miss Rose Hamilton from Mr and Mrs Tom Prichard, with best wishes and hearty congratulations on her enormous success at the Empire this week."

DEATH OF AN OLD SHOWMAN.

Mr James Rhodes, who had nearly completed his eighty-first birthday, and whose name will be familiar to the frequenters of local feasts and fairs as the proprietor of a well-known travelling theatre, died at his residence in Charley-street, Leeds, on Saturday.

Mr Rhodes, in spite of a severe struggle with adverse fortune, had contrived to keep his establishment together for a great number of years; and there was something of pathos in the fact that while its old master had only just "shuffled off this mortal coil" the booth occupied its usual position on Holbeck Moor, where the annual feast was held during the early part of the week.

Mr Rhodes passed away, after a brief illness, in the presence of his third wife, to whom he had been married twenty-two years, and his son, the solitary survivor of twenty-four children. Only a fortnight ago he was present at the York-road Fair, where he went before the footlights of his little theatre and explained to the "house" what the performance was going to be about, and enlarged upon the talents of the "stars" he had been fortunate enough to engage to interpret it. That was his last public appearance.

"Jimmie" had thrice before been at death's door. When a youngster working half-time at a paper mill in Dock-street he was caught in some machinery and his ribs were fractured. He was taken to the infirmary as a hopeless case. But his spirit and medical skill pulled him through. At Cleckheaton, a dozen or fifteen years ago, a drunken man, who was anxious to see Maria Martin; or, The Murder of the Red Barn, without paying, and was not permitted to have his way, so violently assaulted Rhodes that the latter had to be removed in a very critical condition to the Bradford hospital. Again he survived, though about three years ago there was a recurrence of the internal trouble that had been caused by the assault, and Rhodes had to undergo a very dangerous operation in Leeds Infirmary. This, too, he outlived, his death on Saturday resulting from quite another malady.

Rhodes, who claimed to be the oldest showman in the world, was by nature a comedian, and a very loquacious one. His wit first found public expression as a herbalist and pill vendor, in which capacity he was employed by "Dr." Brown, who subsequently turned showman, and for many years conducted a variety entertainment in Vicar's Croft, Leeds. For a few years Rhodes filled up his spare time in his master's variety show. But before he became a regular "member of the theatrical profession" Rhodes used to delight market crowds with his yarns about the wonderful, not to say amazing, curative properties of his employer's general purposes' pills. He sold these things in Bradford Market before that town possessed a railway station.

After about five years of this mixed business, Rhodes received an appointment as clown in a mystery and conjuring show, which organisation for some time was the keen competitor of Lord George Sanger's sleight-of-hand and apparition travelling company. This, of course, was before that gentleman acquired a menagerie. Rhodes soon developed a considerable degree of skill in the mystery line, and could do the bird-cage trick and the mysterious cabinet manœuvre as cleverly as any of his rivals. At York he was a colleague of young Billie Morton, whom he one night announced as "Bosco," a name which has stuck to that famous conjuror to this day. Rhodes had also something to do with the training of Wallett, "the Queen's Jester." When Rhodes was knockabout with Wild's show, which was located on a vacant plot of ground not far from Leeds Parish Church, Wallett was the caravan cleaner and general utility youth, and learnt a good deal from Rhodes's tips.

When he started business for himself Rhodes reverted to the theatrical line, and his company has played pretty well every old thing that ever caught on. "Jimmie" never could do any serious "business" himself, and when a condensed and revised version of Hamlet was the attraction of his show, Rhodes let out Hamlet to another member of his company, and he himself burlesqued one of the Grave diggers. The make-up of his numerous characters in his various productions was always original. One of the stern Roman senators in The Shadow of the Cross has been known more than once to appear in a pierrot's garb. Such happened, of course, only in moments of emergency, when the real Roman senator was required to soothe the surging mob outside the tent, or to eject some unruly visitor from the body of the auditorium.

Rhodes had a perfect horror of firearms. In a part he was once allotted in The Sons of the Sea it was his duty to "shoot" a villainous sailor. Just before that part of the show came on "Jimmie" escaped to a neighbouring hostelry, and horses could not drag him back to the "theatre" to fire that blank shot, which had to be exploded by some other member of the company. That was at Stanningley.

He had a great liking for Horsforth, where forty-five years ago he held his first show in the Fleece Yard, portraying, amongst other peculiar things, "the Ghost of Kirkstall Abbey." He never missed Horsforth Feast. He was there only a few weeks ago, and announced after the final performance that it was his intention to have a stone theatre at Horsforth this winter. Rhodes was always looking forward, always telling people what great things he was going to do, never what struggles he had had in the past. He recently received substantial offers from two editors to write his reminiscences, but he always resolutely refused to revive memories of his early days, and kept his mind ahead of him. No doubt that marked trait in his character had a lot to do with his longevity.

He was exceedingly liberal and very generous, one of the requests Mr Rhodes made to his son on his death bed was "Don't forget to invite the people in Holbeck Workhouse up to the show on Wednesday afternoon." He had given the inmates of that institution an annual free entertainment for many years past.

Mr Rhodes possessed a wonderful memory, and could recount many amusing stories of bygone managers in his special department of the profession. Thorne, Wild, Parrish, Ryan, Edwards, Templeton, Johnson, Ambler, and Robert Lomas were among his familiars in that "long ago" when fairs were more flourishing concerns than they are at present.

After a protracted life full of bustle, toil, anxiety, and care, it is, perhaps, not too much to say, that with the passing away of James Rhodes the last remaining link with a class of Bohemian actors who have already well-nigh disappeared from the world's stage is finally dissolved and broken.

THE FUNERAL.

The deceased showman was buried at Burmantofts Cemetery, Leeds, on Thursday afternoon. Nearly 4,000 people assembled in the vicinity of his residence in Charley-street, and the streets on the way to the cemetery were lined with spectators.

He was interred not far from the graves of several members of the theatrical profession, and the Rev. F. J. T. Stock, of St. Alban's Church, conducted the ceremony.

Showmen, standholders, swingmen, and peep-show proprietors gathered round the grave. Most of them had been at Holbeck Feast. The wreaths included an anchor of white flowers from the showman's surviving company. Mourning was worn by his old comrades, and there was a general expression of regret at the death of "the oldest showmen in the world."

Adjoining the Holbeck Feast an entertainment was on Wednesday given to the workhouse inmates, in accordance with the express wish of the deceased.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICAL

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The Duchess of Dantzic comes in all her glory to the Tyne, and crowded audiences have received the production with extreme heartiness. With Mr George Edwardes at the head of affairs, there is nothing lacking to achieve the fullest measure of success. The performance also gains in distinction from the fact that it is played by the entire original company from the Lyric Theatre. Local playgoers possess a warm side for Miss Evie Greene, and the appearance of the charming actress and vocalist in the title part has called forth abundant evidence of her overwhelming popularity. Mr Courtice Pounds, who appears as Papillon, has developed a vein of humour which proves very acceptable, and his capital song in the second act earns several encores. Mr Holbrook Blinn presents a striking and impressive embodiment of the indomitable Napoleon. The rôle of Francois Lefebvre is sustained with rare spirit by Mr Herbert Clayton, who sings excellently, as also does Mr Leonard Mackey, who submits an agreeable performance as the Vicomte De Bethune. Miss Adrienne Augarde invests with her customary charm the part of Renée, and Miss Billie Burke is to be commended for her bright acting as Lisette.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—The appearance here of Mr Martin Harvey and company constitutes a big attraction, and the pleasure afforded by the visit is intensified by the fact that the popular actor-manager has again elected to stage The Breed of the Treshams, a play which started its most successful career at this theatre. It remains an absorbing and thrilling work. The burden of the performance is splendidly borne by Mr Martin Harvey in the strenuous rôle of "Rat" Beresby. As Margaret Hungerford, who influences him for the better, Miss Coleridge continues to give an impersonation replete with every graceful attribute. Every appearance of Miss N. De Silva as Batty is singularly effective. Mr Albert E. Raynor is firm and uncompromising as the judicial Viscount Dorsington, and Mr Charles Glenney in the unpleasant character of Clement Hungerford makes full use of his opportunities. The fine nature, yet spirited withal, of Francis Tresham is capitally suggested by Mr Milton Rosmer, while Mr Percy Anstey as Colonel Curwen, Mr Fred Wright, sen., as Colonel Bagshaw, and Mr Gilbert Yorke as Captain Stanhope all figure to advantage.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Women and Wine is again being performed here by Mr Milton Bode's company. Miss Edith Blande supplies some strong acting as Marcel Rigadout, and another good performance is that of Miss Ernestine Holker as Mary Andrews. The hero has a spirited representative in Mr Frank R. Robertson. Mr Percy Dawson as Charles Sawter and Miss Muriel Vox as Janet Marlow are prominent in the comedy scenes. Capable impersonations are also those of Messrs Fred Mace, Walter Thornton, H. Landeck, Tom Tindal, and E. R. Beaumont; Misses Lucy Langley, Rose Galloway, and Nellie Lauraine. The Edene Troupe of lady dancers appear, and give an exhibition of their skill.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—The place of honour is this week worthily assigned to Alec Hurley and company, who are appearing in the well-known scena The Coster's Friendly Lead. As the genial chairman of the convivial proceedings Alec Hurley gives a humorous and wonderfully truthful piece of acting, and the performance of the whole sketch is thoroughly appreciated. No stranger in these parts is Ganty, and this lively comedian's efforts have evoked particularly hearty demonstrations of approval. An old favourite in Harriett Vernon is singing several songs to the enjoyment of all, while the Brothers Damm give a gymnastic and acrobatic display of a very high order. Judging by the applause bestowed Harry Coates, the original singing navvy, still keeps a firm hold on popular favour. Frank Hemming and Marie Free give pleasure by their performance as comedy sketch artists; and the Three Sisters Chester dance and sing while playing the banjo. Amusement is created by the Petras as comedy jugglers; while the Lanrons, duettists and dancers; Dot Hardy, comedienne; and Calile and Walker, in a comedy act, add to the pleasures of the performance.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—Richard Sawade, with his fine collection of lions, tigers, bears, and dogs, remains here for another week, and the performance given evokes admiring expressions. Songs, dances, and comedy business all find a place in the sketch given by the Cullane Trio, who finish up their turn with a boxing bout between a lady and gentleman member of the troupe. A distinct novelty is the act presented with so much cleverness by Charles Prelle with his "talking" dogs. Some smart acrobatic and balancing work is displayed by the Waltons as Chinese laundrymen, while the Durvals on the horizontal bars are also expert performers. Wells and August provoke hearty merriment by their amusing business as comedy jugglers. Alf Aubyn, coon comedian and acrobatic gavotte dancer, is well received, as is also Marie Blythe, vocalist. Animated pictures are exhibited at each performance.

OLYMPIA.—Lessees, Messrs Richard Thornton and Sidney Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—The Assassin, a drama with which Newcastle audiences are not altogether unfamiliar, is being performed here. The company appearing in the piece is under the direction of Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson, who sustains with his usual success his old part of Prince Demetri. Miss Ruth Shepherd is also seen to considerable advantage as Countess Wanda, the assassin. Mr John C. Carlyle's impersonation of Ivan Ivanoff is another good performance.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; Managing Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—There is another capital programme at this house, headed by George Lockhart's famous elephants, who go through their performance and cause much amusement. Another extremely smart, clever, and original performance is given by Radford and Valentine, smart jugglers. This is a turn quite out of the common. Archie Glen, a boy comedian and raconteur, sings a capital song, and tells a few good stories; Keen and Walad give a smart acrobatic sketch; Musical Silvo submits a capital performance of popular airs on the chimes and bamboo bells; Florence Schuberth is popular; James Brady, an eccentric comedian, causes much laughter; Wilton Warton, a young magician, is smart in his business; and the Brothers Ralston in one of their duets are good.

NEWPORT.

LYCEUM. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company is producing this week Quality Street to large and appreciative houses. Miss Florence Jackson plays Phœbe charmingly, Miss Grace Edwin's Susan is a fine piece of acting, and Miss Gwynneth Galton as Patty. Miss Isabel Merson, Miss Marie Dennett, Miss Frances Leslie, Miss Lilian Rogers, Miss Violet Holborn, and Miss Beryl Mount do exceedingly well in their respective parts. Mr Geo. Brandam as Mr Valentine Brown give an admirable rendering, and Messrs Arthur C. F. Lysons and Henry Chown are well suited to their respective parts.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—The Two M'Naughtons, who head the bill this week, keep the audience in a constant ripple of laughter. As a Negro comedian J. A. Wilson is popular, and Herr Fritz, with his remarkably clever illusions, gives a wonderful turn that astonishes the house. The British Quartette, who sing in beautiful harmony, showing that they possess well-trained voices; J. P. Hall, quite in his own style, is certainly entertaining, and Zanfretta and Napio, assisted by Mdlle. Vilbert, are heartily applauded in the manipulation of various instruments. Alice Lloyd, in charming voice, scores with her song, "The stockings on the line;" Bijou Russell is a graceful dancer, and Marie Weston is a violinist and banjoist of a high order. Robertus and Wilfredo do some clever feats in the manipulation of balls, and they are assisted by a smart terrier, which has been admirably trained.

NEWQUAY.

VICTORIA HALL.—The attraction here for the week has been Mr C. W. Poole's myriorama and variety enterprise. The pictures comprising the myriorama are many of them new, those depicting the Russo-Japanese War including a fine mechanical piece. The Cinématograph portion of the show is, as usual, well up to date. The vaudeville company includes Coma, a dexterous exponent of the juggling craft; the Three Condos, Japanese equilibrists, in a wonderful exhibition of foot-balancing; the Royal Comedy Four of descriptive vocalists; the Schaffers introducing their charming and melodious novelty musical sunflowers; Henry, a child prodigy; and Professor Fanning, with his cleverly manipulated marionettes. Mr John R Poole combines the duties of a general manager with those of cicerone, and a capable orchestra contributes much to the enjoyment.

DRILL HALL.—The English Opera Singers, whose concerts during the past season have delighted large crowds at the "cosy nook," submitted their farewell programme here on Friday, the 9th, before a crowded and enthusiastic audience. In the course of the entertainment Mr Frederick Dale, the genial manager of the "cosy nook," whose association with Newquay has made him extremely popular, was presented with a silver cigarette-case, and the other members of this talented company were each the recipient of a suitable and useful souvenir. A conspicuous item of the concert was Miss Edith Serpell's delightful rendition of "Killarney," and a song that was well suited to Mr Claude Anderson's clear tenor voice was "Take a pair of sparkling eyes." The humorous pieces included "The Railway Train" quartet, rendered with gusto by Miss Lily Pritchard, Miss Edith Serpell, Mr Claude Anderson, and Mr Frederick Dale. Mr H. Collman at the piano was an important factor in the success.

NORTHAMPTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—Mr Edward Marris, the author of As Midnight Chimes, has sent the drama here with his own company, which includes Wittie Wattie Walton, a great favourite, who, as Tat Spavin, has full scope for his abilities as a comedian; in Miss Annie Megson as Suzette, a French maid, Mr Walton has a clever partner, her French chic and vivacity is ever effective without being overdone. Mr Melville Bickford as the villain of the piece, Mr Frank E. Petley as the hero, and Miss Gertrude Price as the heroine all play well. Miss Ethel M. Ward ably sustains the part of Zamora, a Hindoo girl, and Miss Minnie Ethel, Messrs Henry Beaufort, Percy Maitland, Payne Williams, Dan Williams, A. Proctor, and others give able assistance.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr Robert Barton. — This week's excellent company includes Miss Fredrica's toy terrriers and Dot, the cake-walk pony; Tom Williams, the popular Welsh baritone singer; Solo and Mayo (Fred and Agnes) in a clever burlesque sketch; Harry Taft, whistling comedian; Alexander Royal, a pleasing and able vocalist; Jack and Evelyn, entertainers; Katie Holloway, dainty comedienne and dancer; and Wallace Whitney, a clever eccentric comedian.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—Mr Fred Karno's His Majesty's Guests company has been warmly welcomed here this week, Mr William Rokeby as Sergeant Lightning gives a humorous impersonation, and Mr George Hudson makes a capital Lord Essem; Mr J. W. Hooper is the Mr Miffin, and submits a capable representation of the character; Mr Charles Leoville scores as the Flunkey; Mr E. C. Lilley is good as Mr Minks; Mr Charles Cardon gives a satisfactory rendering of Fritz, and Mr Tom Manardo is suitably placed as Solina; Miss Marie Campbell is an admirable Lady Maude Essem; Miss Madge Campbell makes a delightful Dolly; Miss Katie Brunton is seen to advantage as Miss Manley; and the remaining parts are well sustained.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr William Mould.—Mr J. W. Rowley, the popular comedian, is the star here, and has been enthusiastically received; Mr J. K. Reynolds and his company are appearing in His Country's Curse, which has been heartily greeted; Miss Ella Dean, contralto vocalist and comedienne, renders her songs in finished style; Messrs Ryde and Beeman, eccentric acrobats, are smart; and Miss Dora Denmark, comedienne, is well received.

NORWICH.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr George Dance's company in The School Girl is here this week. Mr Leslie Holland as Sir Ormesby St. Leger is very successful; Mr Chas. Adeson is very good as General Marchmont; Mr Alfred Leslie is amusing as Tubby Bedford; and the same remark may be made concerning Mr Frank Sutton as Corner. Mr Lester Morrah is good as Edgar Vernley, both in singing and acting; Mr Cameron Carr does well as Peter Overend; Miss Ethel Beech is winsome as Lilian Leigh, both in her singing and dancing; Miss Gracie Sinclair is a pleasing Cicely Marchmont; Miss Mildred King a satisfactory Mother Superior; and Miss Molly Walbran a fascinating Mamie Rockfeller. Miss Grace Wixon is dignified as Mrs Marchmont.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt; Musical Director, Capt. Selby.—Miss Millie Hylton, the star of the week, is received with outbursts of applause, and has established herself a firm favourite; Pat Carey is very good in his Irish songs and dances; Wal Grace, actor-vocalist, is a good turn; Charles Ferris and George Farnley are amusing in their songs and cross-talk; John Lloyd, the original singing collier, possesses a pleasing tenor voice and takes well; Zeta Gray and company are amusing in their sketch, The Lancashire Lass; the Boccaccio Minstrels are clever mandolinists; and Signor Francia astonishes with his skill. The Jalvans are very good as trick jugglers and top spinners, and the Cabiacs exhibit some extraordinary acrobatic and equilibristic acts.

NOTTINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—The visit of Miss Olga Nethelsole has given playgoers another opportunity of seeing this eminent artiste, in Sapho, and further interest is added by the inclusion of Magda and The Second Mrs Tanqueray in the week's répertoire Sapho was in the bill for Monday, and Miss Nethersole gave an impassioned rendering of the part, using her emotional powers with a delicate and subtle expression that evoked the utmost enthusiasm. Mr Edward Fielding played excellently as Jean Gaussin, and the house showed its hearty appreciation of his embodiment. A delightfully amusing Uncle Cesaire was seen in Mr Harry Dodd, and Dechelette and Caoudal were acceptably portrayed by Messrs G. S. Titheradge and Slaine Mills. The small part of Flamant was well interpreted by Mr Berte Thomas, and Mr Maskell made a decided success as Hettema. Miss Frances Ivor was a vivacious Madame Hettema, and Francine had a smart interpreter in Miss Annie Esmond. Miss Rosalind Ivan assumed Divonne with energy, and Miss Constance Raymond made a spirited Alice Doree. Miss Madge Field acted sweetly as Irene, and Miss Irene Wakefield deserves praise in the part of Joseph.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas P. Cooke.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company has given great enjoyment here this week by a capital representation of the sporting comedy-drama In Old Kentucky. Mr George Steel offered a bold and animated portraiture of Frank Harley, a typical Kentuckian gentleman, who made everything happy all round. Mr Alfred S. Bankes as Colonel Beauchamp, a kind of Micawber, was much in evidence throughout, and the scoundrelly character of Jasper Grafton was made amply base by Mr Eric Hudson. Mr Gerald Kennedy was appropriately keen and resolute as Joe Lory, gaining much appreciation among his audience, and Mr Harry Leander was also a general favourite as the faithful old servant. A winsome and attractive Madge Brierley was found in Miss Amy F. Hermann, and Miss Alice Smith did well as Minnie. Miss Beatrice Shirley's incisive method was suited to the part of the callous Barbara Grafton, and further interest was added by the appearance of a stud of horses, and the Dahomian Cake-walk Troupe.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr H. W. Bull.—Rogues and Vagabonds, a clever mixture of sensation and humour, found instant favour here. Mr Bert Morley fills the part of Harry Stamford with a natural ease and manliness that gains him many friends. The rascality of Fernand Delair receives a vigorous portrayal at the hands of Mr E. Pyne, whose associates in crime, Natham Baxter and John Lamb, impersonated by Messrs John Cullen and Harry Creamer, contrive to get a lot of fun out of their rôles. Mr Frank Denis scores throughout as the kind-hearted Police-constable Clegg, and Miss Marjory Armstrong as the homeless street arab evokes feelings of sympathy. Miss Billie Doyle's interpretation of the adventuress, Vera Laverne, is pervaded by dramatic intensity, and Miss Lizzie Webb renders the part of Hilda Jeffries with the right touch of feeling. Miss Lillie Wainwright adds much to the success by her sprightly bearing as Sarah Tilley.

OLDHAM.

ROYAL.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—The variety company here includes the Kremo Family, marvellous Risley performers, who top the bill; Madame Ella gives a clever wire performance; Harry Weldon, comedian, is well received; Sister Jonghmans, meister singers, give an excellent turn; Geraldos bring down the house by their clever club juggling; Alfred Barker, Continental clown, and his performing dogs, monkey, and donkey, cause roars of laughter; N. F. Kioto gives a marvellous equilibristic performance. Gweenie Hasto, refined vocalist and dancer, and Will Bell, comedian and dancer, conclude an excellent programme.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire company opened here on Monday in The Mikado. Mr Albert Kavanagh interpreted the title-rôle with marked ability. Fred Billington as the portly Pooh-Bah still maintains his popularity, and Mr Workman scores as Ko-Ko. Mr Fred Drawater ably portrays Pish-Tush, his bass voice being very pleasing. Mr Pacie Ripple as Nanki-Poo gives an artistic rendering. Miss Norah Maguire is a success as Yum-Yum. Jessie Rose and Miss Mable Burnege being also well received. Miss Theresa Rassem as Katisha is excellent.

GAIETY.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr E. J. Dexter.—A very attractive programme is here this week, including Charlie Deane, comedian, who is a great success. Mr H. K. Bradshaw, tenor ballad vocalist, does well; Mill May excels as a quick change artist; Cinizelli gives some clever acrobatic displays in "Silence and Fun;" Les Lanens are good in their novel statuary act; the Two Jagos (Chris and Lillian), American speciality artists, are successful; Will Harvey, character comedian, is well received; and the Bioscope maintains its popularity.

OXFORD.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—This week Mr Milton Bode's excellent company is paying us a welcome return visit with Gentleman Joe, which was received on Monday by a full house with great favour. Mr Kennedy Allen in the title-rôle hits the character off to a nicety; Mr R. Vincent is an acceptable Lord Donnybrook; Mr P. Benson does well as the butler Dawson; and Mr Harry A. Gribben works hard and with success as Pilkington Jones. Miss Hebe Bliss's smooth and artistic impersonation of Mrs Ralli-Carr meets with keen appreciation; Miss Mabel Kerridge is well suited as Miss Potts; Pilkington Jones's daughters find acceptable exponents in the Misses E. Russell, M. Linscott, and M. Hayden; and Miss Maude Marriott scores a big success as Emma. The Edingdale Trio of dancers give great satisfaction, and the play is capitally dressed and staged.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. P. Wells.—Mr Stanley S. Gordon's company is here with For the Woman He Loves. Mr Stanley S. Gordon enacts Philip Meredith with considerable feeling and power; Mr W. Protheroe is effective as Silas Bradley; Mr Dacre Baldie makes a successful Charles Dean; and Mr Charles M. Daly is amusing as James Stilton. Mr Walter Manfree does well as Muggleton, and Mr Charles Dennis is humorous as Police-constable Michael Murphy. Miss Eva Lyndhurst as Virginie and Miss Ida Bell as 'Tilda work well, while Miss Saddie Adelstone delights her audience as Bessie Bramble. Miss Marjorie Simcox is pleasing as Evie, and Miss Nina Vaughton scores heavily as Mrs Mary Vernon, her acting in act three being especially good.

PONTYPRIDD.

ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr Rex Dooley.—This week we have Gladys Sylvester and Fletcher Sansome's company in the musical comedy, Cissy. Mr Fletcher Sansome excellently portrays Victor Carleton. Mr Geo. Butt is admirably suited as Gilbert Temple. Mr Dan Clifford evokes laughter as Titus Thomas, B.A. Dossy Bowers is ably impersonated by Mr Frank Heller. Miss Florence Barnes displays ability as Cissy. Other characters are well sustained by Miss Rosa Dramaundy as Olive Temple, Miss Nellie V. Warden as Mary Mopps, &c.

PAISLEY.

PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—Two Little Sailor Boys, by Mr W. H. Hallatt and company, is being presented here this week. Mr Hallatt furnishes a capital embodiment of Commander Noel Tregarthen, and capable assumptions are submitted by Mr Leonard Booker as Lieut. Richardstone, Mr George Cecil Murray as Admiral Grey, Mr Edward Warden as Capt. Tom Yorke, and Mr Ambrose Horton as Jim Royston. Miss Blanche Steele plays powerfully and in realistic fashion as Lola Grey; Mildred Grey has a sweet and sympathetic exponent in Miss Marie Daventry; and Cyril Grey and Tom Yorke, the two little sailor boys, are cleverly and characteristically delineated by Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Frances. The comedy scenes with Miss Hilda Taylor as Lucy Wilson, Mr Oscar Power as Jack Jolly, and Mr Sid Cotterell as Ben Baxter are full of humour and extremely entertaining.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—Heading the bill here this week is the Forrest comedy sketch company in My Friend the Enemy, which meets with approval. Sam Martin, Scotch comedian; Cousin Fred and Maud, in their sketch Engaging a Servant; the Dorian Trio, gymnasts; and the Empire Cinématograph also form an attractive programme.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, Magistrates and Council.—W. F. Frame, the renowned Scotch comedian, with his company provided the entertainment at this place on Saturday evening. The company included Miss Helen Martin, ballad vocalist; Austin Mahony, tenor; Miss Bessie Tavis, lady ventriloquist; Norman and Leonard Trio, musical sketch artists, in their success The Itinerant; the Jeneys, coloured coon comedians and dancers; Little Billee, comedian and sand-dancer; the Apollo Quartet, mandolinists; and W. F. Frame himself, who kept the large house convulsed by his genuine humour and funny business.

PENZANCE.

ST. JOHN'S HALL.—Mr Chas. Frohman's Sherlock Holmes company, under the direction of Mr Robert Macdonald, has played a successful two nights' engagement here this week. Mr Kenneth Rivington fully realised the interesting personality of Sherlock Holmes, his quiet intensity making the famous detective of fiction stand out in real flesh and blood. Mr Ernest Grey as James Larrabee was a most unconventional villain; Mr Edward Heanley as Dr. Watson was most natural and easy; and the John Forman of Mr Harry Mann was distinctly good. Special mention must be made of Mr Walter Hicks as the lively and ubiquitous Billy. Mr Arthur B. Murray as Professor Moriarty presented a strong and clever character study; and Miss Florence Radcliffe won the sympathies of all by her impersonation of Alice Faulkner. Miss Clara Lacey looked well as Madge Larrabee. Miss Marjorie Murray gave a finished performance as the French maid Thérèse. On Wednesday Mr Chas. Macdona opened here for one night in the merry farce, Saturday to Monday, with Miss Emma Hutchison's company.

PERTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Mr E. Oswald Brooks's entire No. 1 company, in the successful farcical comedy, The New Housemaid, is drawing good houses here this week. Mr Somers Bellamy is seen to much advantage in the part of Peter Pinkerton, J.P.; Mr H. Montague Ashley enjoys a really good time of it as Arthur, Pinkerton's nephew; Mr Chas. Calvert cleverly depicts the susceptibility of the Rev. Stephen Stingles for the fair sex; Mr Pan E. Draco scores as Marmsbury Doom, a detective; Mr John H. Costello is most amusing in the part of Rosebery, a butler; Mr Ralph Roberts in the rôle of the Hon. Bertie Rashleigh, the new housemaid, is entirely successful in his endeavours to amuse; Miss Ella Edgar and Miss Madge Haines ably perform the duties of Nellie Haddock, a housemaid, and Lettice, a cook, respectively; Mrs William Mallalieu successfully acts the part of Caroline; Miss Pattie Elliot is seen to advantage in the part of Agnes; and Miss Ethel L. Caryllon displays decided talent and scores a success in her impersonation of Dulcie. The new one-act play, entitled Buffo, the story of a broken heart, by Ralph Roberts, in which the author, in the title-rôle, "shines," and Mr Charles Calvert and Misses Ella Edgar and Pattie Elliot ably assist, precedes.

PORTH.

POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—This week a welcome visit is being paid by Messrs Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, in the play entitled The Village Blacksmith. Mr Sam Livesey as John Strong, the village blacksmith, shows much ability, and is well received by the audience. Mr Joseph Carter gives an able representation of the villainous Captain Leo. Mr Frank Harrison is decidedly good as Lucas Marler. Miss Ethel Kay as Kate Strong sustains the part in capital style. Much praise is due to Little Christobel, who impersonates Harry Strong in an excellent manner. Mr George V. Campbell is deservedly popular in the comedy part of Billy Twig; so, too, are Mr Thomas E. Marshall as Jeremiah Parkins and Miss T. C. Livesey as Sal Parkins. Miss Maggie Edwards is well placed as Ruth Parkins, and receives great applause for her singing. The wrestling match between Captain Leo and the masked wrestler is much appreciated.

PRESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt.—The reappearance of Mr and Mrs Kendal at this theatre, after an interval of eight years, has been an event of great importance and interest to local playgoers. Supported by their own company, they commenced a three nights' engagement on Monday with The Elder Miss Blossom. Mrs Kendal's simple and unaffected impersonation of Dorothy Blossom was a wonderful example of refined comedy acting; and in the rôle of Andrew Quick Mr Kendal acquitted himself with rare distinction. Christopher Blossom had a robust and amusing representative in Mr Ernest Hendrie; and Mr Bassett Roe very humorously delineated Major Twentyman. Mr Leonard Hubert was well suited as the Rev. Arthur Leacroft. Mr Metcalfe Wood gave a really clever embodiment of Withers; and Mr W. M. Rutherford capably depicted Wells. The Sophia Blossom of Miss Elise Clarens was a vivacious and charming portrayal; and the parts of Cooper and Mrs Wells were commendably sustained by Mrs A. B. Tapping and Miss Lola Duncan respectively. The handsome and effective staging of the play calls for a special word of praise. On Tuesday evening Still Waters Run Deep was the attraction. Amateur performances of Jedburg, Junior, were announced for Thursday, Friday, and to-night.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company in A Beautiful Fiend is appearing here this week on a return visit. On Monday there was a large audience, and the unfolding of the interesting plot was followed with interest. Mr Montagu Beaudyn in the role of Ivan Paulovitch sustains his part in a praiseworthy manner; Sergius Strogoff is well taken by Mr A. F. Dudley; Miss Irene Munroe plays the part of Nadine Karateff in convincing style; Mr A. G. Polson Turner is quite successful in portraying the villainies of Count Fedor Karateff; Miss Sidney Crowe gives a clever and captivating performance of the title-role; Christopher Crackles (Mr Chas. Kean) and Patty Woodlands (Miss Annie Clunn) cause much merriment; and Mr Robertson Foulis as Malachi, Mr Frank H. Stanley as Nicholi Trolski, Mr John Kean as Captain Hardy, and Mr Tom Evans as Henri render efficient aid.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—Miss Ellen Terry and her excellent company are here this week, and appearing to full houses nightly. On Monday was presented Shakespeare's comedy, The Merchant of Venice, with Miss Ellen Terry, of course, as Portia. The impersonation was watched with intense interest by the delighted audience. It is needless to say that her admirable rendering was received with great enthusiasm. Mr Alfred Bucklaw's Shylock was a very realistic and well-balanced effort, and well deserved the appreciation bestowed. Mr Charles Thursby made a capable Antonio. Bassanio was successfully played by Mr Matheson Lang. Mr Harcourt Williams did well as the mercurial Gratiano. Nerissa and Jessica were ably sustained by Miss Audrey Campbell and Miss Hutin Britton. On Wednesday Much Ado About Nothing was played.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—This week we have here G. R. Sims and Wilson Barrett's play, The Golden Ladder, performed by Miss Mary Austin and Mr E. Vivian Edmonds' company. It has been well received by large audiences. The company, a full one, is very capable, and the mounting is satisfactory. As the Rev. Frank Thornhill, a young missionary, Mr Harry Cullenford gave an excellent study; Mr E. Vivian Edmonds' impersonation of Michael Severn, a cashier, was a very able one; M. Peranza, a Greek adventurer, was well sustained by Mr Graham Winsford; and Mr John Owen did well as Samuel Peckaby, a pastrycook. The heroine, Lillian Grant, was sympathetically portrayed by Miss Mary Austin. Miss Ethel Patrick as Victoria Alexandra Peckaby was a success. The remainder of a long cast all did good work.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—An excellent programme has been provided for the amusement of the patrons of this hall. The return visit of Joe O'Gorman, the witty Irish raconteur, is a big draw. Alma Obrey, character comedienne, has a capital voice, and uses it to the best advantage; Bob Baxter, genial comedian, is very good indeed; the Lundgreens, American comedy aerial gymnasts, is a taking turn much appreciated; and Emma Don and company, in vocal scena Scenes of London Life, and Harry Lynn and company, in sketch His Last Night Out, are successful in gaining applause. The Zizas, low comedy duettists; Charles Clifford, vocalist and solo harpist; and Payne's Photo-Bioscope complete the bill.

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Miss Ida Millais and company, under the direction of Mr Henry Herne, in No Man's Land, is paying a return visit. Mr Henry Herne as Harry Oaklands gives an excellent portrayal. Silas Moore is well sustained by Mr Fred Conyers. Mr Wm. Matthews as Mat Marsden is a typical first mate, and Mr Claude Haviland plays with earnestness as Dr. Buxton. In the dual rôle of Gilbert and Captain Bathurst Mr Alfred Byrom is satisfactory, while Mr Sydney H. Morton as Solomon Jacobs leaves nothing to be desired; and he is ably supported by Miss Dora Hilstrom as Bessie Poodle. Mr Alfred Burrows is a vivacious office boy; Miss Kate Maynard as Mrs Poodle appears with success; and Miss Ida Millais scores as Mary Bathurst.

RAMSGATE.

AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr Henry Bowman.—On the first three evenings of the week the boards at this place of entertainment were occupied by Mr A. Hart's company, in the charming comedy-opera My Lady Molly. Miss Mabel Lait was excellent in the name-part, and Miss Maud Thorne did admirably as Alice Coverdale. Mr Arthur Powell was highly diverting as the Irish servant, Micky O'Dowd; Mr George Grundy sang and acted in first-rate fashion as Captain Romney; while the Lionel Bland of Mr Frank Stather was a meritorious performance. All the other characters were sustained in commendable manner. On Thursday Mr Charles R. Stone's company commenced a three nights' engagement in What Became of Mrs Rackett.

VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr J. Herbert Jay; Business Manager, Mr N. Arthur Hornby.—A strong attraction has been furnished here this week by the appearance of Miss Ida Molesworth, Mr Mark Blow, and company, in the dramatic adaptations of Anthony Hope's "Prisoner of Zenda" and Ouida's "Under Two Flags." The first-named play was in the bill the first three nights of the week. Miss Molesworth scored a distinct success as fair Princess Flavia, and Mr Mark Blow did ditto as Rudolf V. and Rudolph Rassendyl, the dual-rôle of the unfortunate King and the daring Englishman. Mr Charles D. Pett impersonated Black Michael in an eminently satisfactory fashion, a remark which can also be made of the Colonel Sapt of Mr J. Nesbit, the Von Tarlenheim of Mr R. Harby-West, and the Bertram Bertrand of Mr W. Hook. On the Thursday evening Under Two Flags was played, Miss Molesworth appearing as Cigarette.

MARINA AND PROMENADE PIER.—Proprietors, Ramsgate Marina Pier and Lift Company; General Manager, Mr H. Smith; Entertainment Manager, Mr Fred Pollard.—The entertainments provided here have given much pleasure. The programme at each place has been of a varied character, including vocal and instrumental music, dancing, swimming and daring feats, &c.

RAWTENSTALL.

GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—An exceptionally good variety performance took place on Monday, when Messrs Ediscope and Barnum's variety company opened here for six nights. The chief attraction is the series of animated pictures, most of which are charming and wonderful examples of the photographer's art, notably the fine picture of Canadian scenery. The intervening turns proved most enjoyable also, and there was not an uninteresting minute during the programme's progress. Miss Jessie Harper gained tumultuous applause for her singing, as did also Musical Corilettie for her instrumental contributions. Lebrun and Irene gave an excellent juggling display, and Edgar was responsible for a clever display on the balancing trapeze. Clown Ohmy submitted an enjoyable turn with the assistance of his clever dog, Toby; Miss Ethel Lucerne contributed tricky serio songs; and Will Ivor brought down the house with his high stilt performance. An exceedingly good comic duet was contributed by Belford and Mars, and an uproarious sketch by the Three Funnyosities completed a strong programme.

READING.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr Reginald Taylor.—On Monday Mr John F. Preston's company presented Rogues of the Turf, under the personal direction of Mr George R. Montford. A stud of racehorses and some special scenery added to the success of the production. Miss Gertrude Godart as Marion gave a clever impersonation; Nellie Flaxman was sympathetically portrayed by Miss Susie Fradelle; as Phyllis Warzell Miss Mabelle F. Barlow acted with charm and vivacity. Mr George R. Montford and Mr Harry H. Rignold as Captain Dudley Clinton and Moses Solomons, rogues of the turf, were good; Mr Harry Phillips was successful as Joe Flaxman; as also were Mr Alfred Wade as Steve Burton and Mr Ernest R. Allen as Arthur Somerton. Mr Harry Benson as Sam Flaxman earned well-merited applause for his clever acting and dancing, his singing of the inevitable "Bill Bailey" being vociferously encored.

REDHILL.

PUBLIC HALL.—Miss Maggie Morton's Two Little Drummer Boys and Sunday were the attractions at this house during the past week, both companies showing to good business.

DRILL HALL.—Prof. E. K. Crocker's wonderfully educated horses are drawing good houses here nightly, the sagacity and skill displayed by some thirty equine performers delighting old and young. The animated pictures are also very pleasing.

MARKET HALL.—Mr Joseph Poole's Myriorama opened a week's engagement on Monday evening with a capital house, which has been continued with each performance since. This up-to-date exhibition is highly entertaining as well as educational. The variety turns are furnished by Zelda, instrumentalist; Wal Owen, silent comedian; Sulli and Saroni, duettists; Professor Howlett's clever marionettes; H. Clinton, comedian; and the Magnet sketch party, in In a Looking glass, which creates much amusement.

RHYL.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield; Secretary, Mr E. W. Parry.—The programme submitted here includes the Brewster troupe of dancers, who repeat in every particular the many successes they have previously made in Rhyl. The engagement of Walter Munroe, Irish comedian, is a most popular one, his catchy songs and quaint style of rendering them making him a general favourite. Adelaide Marks, vocalist; Ruby Bijou, dainty dancer; and Mollie Doone, comedienne, also appear. On Wednesday a complimentary benefit was accorded Mr Edmund Bosanquet, the conductor of the Palace orchestra. In addition to the programme for the week the following assisted:—Whit Cunliffe, A. R. Sutcliffe, Little Beattie, and Louie Williams.

TOWN HALL.—On Monday a large audience testified their appreciation of Mr E. H. Williams' efforts as an amusement caterer, the occasion being his sixth annual benefit. Charles Drew was loudly applauded; Percy Gallino, in a smart musical act; Robb Gilmore, the funny little man of the troupe; Alf Walker, Scotch comedian; Fred Woellhaf, a clever dancer; Bert Seroni, comedian; and Willie Reid, all merit commendation.

ROCHDALE.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—In the Ranks is in possession of the boards here this week. Mr Edward Lloyd finely portrays Ned Drayton; Mr Herbert Cecil cleverly sustains the part of Gideon Blake; Mr Arthur Palling as the fiery Colonel Wynter is exceptionally good; Mr Archie W. Chappell makes the most of Captain Holeroft; Farmer Herrick is in the safe hands of Mr Lionel Sullivan; Mr Cecil Clayton is highly amusing as Joe Buzzard; and Mr Walter H. Wilson submits an effective portrait of Richard Belton. Miss Annie Beaumont is capital as Mrs Buzzard; Miss Ella Wilmer enacts with skill the part of Barbara Herrick; and Miss Edith Blair Staples wins all hearts as Ruth Herrick.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr Lee.—The company here this week includes the Picquays, acrobats; Amy Clack, coon comedienne and dancer; Casselli and James, banjo players; Hermann Frisoari, juggler; the Five Sunbeams, singers and eccentric dancers; the Clarion Trio, comedians, vocalists, and dancers; Arthur Beecham, comedian; and Spring and Spring and Rosie Carlo, acrobatic barrel jumpers.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Hargreaves.—A capital programme is submitted here. Henry Carlton, in "One Night Only;" Charlie Craston, comedian; Percy Farrimond, singing collier; Maggie Rimmer, comedienne and dancer; Rappo and Mdlle. Ella, equilibrist and acrobat; Tom Hayes, juvenile comedian and mimic; Vera Mayne, burlesque actress; Massona, juggler; and Mark Anthony, comedian and mimic, complete an enjoyable list.

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey are presenting here for the first time A Traitor Prince, an Oriental drama. Mr G. M. Montanini gives a clever representation of the title-rôle, and Mr Austin Mortimer is a manly Lieut. Frank Derrick. Mr E. Carter Livesey is smart as Billy Bright, and Mr T. G. Vane is amusing as Hon. Bobby Vavasour Dalrymple. Mr G. Edward Hall scores as Cara, and Mr Austin H. Longford is deserving of mention in the dual part of Richard Vane and Colonel Vane. Miss Lilian Roseberry is pleasing as Lola Vane, and Miss Beatrice Western gives a strikingly realistic portrayal of the part of Vashti. Miss Maudie Grayson is a sprightly Pansy Blossom, her dances and songs being well received, and Mr E. C. Mathews is seen to advantage as Mrs Martha Blossom. Misses Annie Carrier and Florence Bryne as Rosie St. Clair and Gertie Devere respectively give a clever Terpsichorean exhibition.

RUNCORN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—Mr Oswald Cray's company is here again with My Native Land. The company is a good all-round one, Mr Joe English specially scoring as Solomon Moses. The other artistes of this excellent combination include Messrs Oswald Cray, John Riley, L. H. Stevenson, H. Beresford, John S. Chamberlain, and W. Lawes; the Misses Cissy Vyna, Marian Holmes, Ray Rochefort, Nellie Lomas, and Daisy Rochefort.

RYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard; Business-Manager, Mr J. Westbrook Poole.—Mr Chas. Macdona's Chinese Honeymoon company fulfilled a three nights' engagement here this week. The company is a strong one and the piece is well staged. Miss Ettie Cinders is a quaint and amusing little figure as Fi-Fi, and gains enthusiastic encores for her songs. Mr Sidney Burt is excellent as Mr Pineapple, and the part of the jealous Mrs Pineapple is cleverly embodied by Miss Mabel Carlton. Miss Adah Lacroft is a charming Soo-Soo, and Mr Arthur Foote is good as Tom Hatherton. Mr Steane Louch is a commanding Emperor Hang Chow, and his officers, Chippie Chop and Li Hung, are creditably impersonated by Messrs Louis Ashmead and Lindsay Harmon; the official mother-in-law, Mrs Brown, being in the hands of Miss Gertrude Le Sage. Mr Jean Desormes is the musical director.

SHEERNESS.

TRANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr T. G. Transfield; Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Melvin.—Amongst the premier turns appearing here this week are the Brady and Johnson Combination in the amusing comedy sketch, Turning the Tables. In the equestrian line the Charles Ernest Trio make their first appearance here, and are responsible for some clever horsemanship. O'Connor and Brady, eccentrics, are decidedly good, and Professor Bennett, ventriloquist, also scores. Other items meeting with equal favour are the Sisters Gilbert, comediennes and top-boot dancers; Welda and Wynn, burlesque and comedy jugglers; and Bandoni, in a musical performance described as "The One-Man Band." The Bio-Tableaux, by Bertram Theobald, concludes one of the best programmes of the season.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr P. Reymond.—A well-arranged programme here includes the Calden Combination, in the dramatic sketch, The Deserter, in which they are eminently successful. Miss Gracie Drew, comedienne, sings in a pleasing manner, and Mr Will Manton, comedian, with Mr Frank Royland, comedian, are much appreciated. Oak and Ash, comedians and patterers, are also included in the bill.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—Messrs E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday in the drama The Traitor, which is effectively staged, and under the general management of Mr Stephen E. Scanlan, who plays the villain's part of Chief of the Police in capital style. Miss Georgette Thierry is excellent as Zula; Mr W. Draper's Prince Rudolph is a clever performance; and Capt. Ross, R.N., and Lieut. Nicholas are capably undertaken by Mr Edward Jenner and Miss Isabel Hunt. There is much comedy introduced by Mr Bernard Lieil as General Hertz, Mr Edward Lowrie as Zoff, Mr Frank Sutherland as Jack Boult, Miss Anena Walton as Cen-Cen, and Miss Hetty Senior as Elsie Duprey. Miss Lily Roselle is also to be commended for her impersonation of Countess Zicks.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—An excellent programme is provided here to good houses. Joe Almasio, with his funny servant, give a smart juggling exhibition; Geo. W. Leslie and Co., in Chums, keep the house in roars; Brown and Nevarro give an American speciality turn which is much enjoyed; a clever performance on mouth-organs is submitted by George Schindler; the Valdares, with their cycle speciality, are duly appreciated; Felton and Manley are decidedly clever athletes; and Ethel Yorke, comedienne, and Harry Walker, comedian, with the animated pictures, fill the bill.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—Large audiences are attracted here twice nightly. Carl Mysto, monarch of manacles, heads the bill and mystifies his audiences by escaping from numerous locks and handcuffs; Mdlle. Florence gives a sensational exhibition of globe-walking; an excellent turn is provided by Abdul Kader, assisted by Fatma Bent Kader and Aicha Bent Kader, in lightning picture painting; and good turns are given by Barton Howard, musical and farmyard mimic; Verin, a comical contortionist; Lily Foy, comedienne; Sandy and Carl, comedians; Charles Denton, eccentric vocal comedian; Astley's circus, with revolving table, &c.; Condon and Preston, speciality dancers and patterers; and the Three Floradoras, refined comediennes and dancers.

SEACOMBE.

IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—After a thorough renovation and many important alterations and improvements this handsome theatre reopened its doors on Monday with the very latest series of animated pictures, including many specially taken records of local passing events. A crowded auditorium testified in no uncertain manner its warm approval of the generous and well-varied programme. The Reveria Duettists and the Meister Glee Singers rendered some excellent items between the pictures, and the well-known orchestra under the bâton of Mr Thomas Shaw left nothing to be desired.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—Mr Charles March and company are presenting The Priest of the Temple here this week. Mr March gives a vivid and pleasing impersonation of Valerius. Decus Tronto is admirably suited to the capabilities of Mr Ronald Bayne. Mr Henry Moxon as Applus Herdonius gives a vigorous and effective reading of the part. Hermanus is played in masterly style by Mr Stanley May. Mr Whit Rogerson as Alertius is distinctly good. Camillus is successfully presented by Mr John Simpson. Miss Evelyn Hope merits the many encomiums pronounced on her portrayal of Polita. Miss Maria North as Praestantia is charming in her appearance and style, and the principals are capably supported.

SEATON.

TOWN HALL.—Quite a record audience assembled at the Town Hall on Monday evening to witness a performance of Charley's Aunt by a company under the direction of Messrs Baring Bros. Mr Edmund Baker played the aunt, and acted and looked the old lady admirably. His college chums, Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham, were impersonated by Mr Hastings Lynn and Mr Basil Lynn. Miss Lucy Sibley as Donna Lucia, Miss Mary Fletcher as Kitty Verdon, and Miss Renée Roy as Amy Spettigue were charming in their respective parts. Mr Walter Beaumont played well as Stephen Spettigue, and Mr Sidney Lynn as Colonel Chesney also put in good work. The part of Ela Delahay was charmingly played by Miss Winifred Ingham.

SHEFFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter.—Mr W. W. Kelly's company is again here in the successful play A Royal Divorce. Miss Edith Cole on Monday repeated her tender, graceful, and altogether queenly impersonation of Josephine. Mr Frederick Victor was again seen to advantage as Napoleon, and all the other characters were well played.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Carl Rosa opera company opened on Monday, in Tannhäuser. On Tuesday Faust was given, with Mr E. C. Hedmondt and Miss Lizzie Burgess in the cast, and the other operas billed for the balance of the week were Maritana, on Wednesday; Carmen, on Thursday; Don Giovanni, on Friday; and The Bohemian Girl, on Saturday, with Miss Pender Cudlip and Mr Edward Davies in leading rôles.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—In A Path of Thorns, which was acted for the first time in Sheffield on Monday, Messrs A. Shirley and Sutton Vane have conceived a drama full of the true healthy English spirit. It is finely acted by Hardie and Von Leer's company, and some of the minor parts are perfect little studies, notably Mr Harry F. Wright's Dr. Gaye, a contemporary portrait of the highest order. Mr Claude King plays the part of John Edmonds with a simple, unaffected honesty and frank manliness that go straight to the hearts of his auditors. Mr Cyril W. Mackey earns the hearty good-will of the house as the good-hearted young clergyman, Frank Selby. A clever and convincing piece of work is the Jonas Deane of Mr Cecil Du Gué. The humour and genial Lancashire qualities of Sam Hallett are depicted without any exaggeration by Mr Alfred Lester, Mr Mayor Cooke acts carefully as Edward Langley, and good work is done by Mr Dunstan Haye as Mr Pickford and Mr J. Chevington as Prescott. In the Sykes-like character of Jim Price Mr J. H. Booth is well suited, and the artful Ratty Gibbitt has a clever representative in Mr Forrester Harvey. Miss Winifred Pearson is a tall and handsome Constance Howard, and a picture of real pathos is Miss Stanley Burt's Nellie Hallett. Miss Violet Luddington is a pretty and sympathetic Bessie Edmonds, Miss Amy Rogerson acts with her usual vivacity as Jane Adelaide, and Little Mabel May is a natural and pleasing representative of Lucy. The drama is carefully staged, and its reception was extremely cordial.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—Clark and Hamilton, musical comedy entertainers, are starring this week. The other artistes are Abel and Welch, two surprising grotesques; the Tribune Trio, in their laughable skit; Florrie Forde, the dashing burlesque actress; the Kreegers, in a novel

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. C. Burns.—Engaged here are those old local favourites, the Clayton Twins; Howe and Andie, acrobats; Ruby Winstone, serio-comic; Fred Herbert, comedian; and Gusto, a mirth-provoking comic cyclist.

ALBERT HALL.—Under the direction of Madame Augusta Lyons the following artistes are appearing:—Sill and Silcott, comic sketch artistes and acrobats; Gus Gauntlett, the well-known military comic; the Balzons, jugglers; Mab Venus, serio-comic; Charlie Cowen, comedian; and the Binghams.

SITTINGBOURNE.

TOWN HALL.—Lessee, Mr George W. Bowes.—Roberts' animated photo. company opened here on Monday to a crowded house for a three nights' engagement. The pictures of the Russo-Japanese War were a special feature, and were highly appreciated. There was also a fine display of plate spinning, &c.

SMETHWICK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr C. Barnard; Manager, Mr E. Hewitson.—This week Mr Tom H. Taylor's company pays its first visit to this house with The Female Swindler, which is proving a great attraction. Miss Violet Ellicott in the title-rôle establishes herself a warm favourite by her fine representation of a difficult and trying part; Mr W. S. Hartford submits an admirable reading of Jack Coulson, the criminal investigator; Mr Weldon Atherstone gives an excellent performance of Geoffrey Warden, the villain; Mr Luke Forster as Bill Binkes creats much merriment; Mr George Unwin capitally portrays Harold Travers; Mr Rule Pyott successfully depicts the Jew; and Mr A. Kenyon Grey does well in the part of James Oliver. A pleasing and effective rendering of May Andrews is given by Miss Florrie Kelsey; and Miss Ada Maud is a capable exponent of Mary Ann. The dresses and scenery are worthy of special note.

SOUTHAMPTON.

GRAND.—That ever-welcome opera Florodora is paying a return visit here. Mr Tom B. Davis's company is responsible for the presentation, and under the experienced direction of Mr P. Howard Sturgess the success of the production is assured. Mr Daly Cooper again appears as Tweedlepunch. He keeps the house in a continual state of merriment, and easily carries off the honours of the evening. Miss Rene Steadman is delightful as Lady Holyrood, her singing of "Tact" and "I've an inkling" being particularly good. She is a bright, vivacious little actress. Miss Leonora Grieve sings beautifully as Dolores, and Mr Cyril Dane as Frank Abercoed wins applause for his effective singing. Mr Charles J. Barber is successful as the millionaire; Mr Derick Knowles, a soldierlike Captain Donegal; and Miss Daisy Byford, a dainty Angela Gilfain. The chorus are well trained, and the orchestra, under the direction af Mr J. H. Hutchinson, render Leslie Stuart's tuneful music in admirable style. The popular "Tell me, pretty maiden," as usual, brings down the house.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Mrs Bandmann Palmer and company are appearing here in a répertoire of plays, including Mary, Queen of Scots, East Lynne, Sapho, Nell Gwyn, and Hamlet. Mrs Palmer's impersonation of the ill-fated Mary Stuart on Monday evening was distinctly good; Mr F. Skeln as the Earl of Leicester was successful; and the other members of the company lent valuable assistance.

PALACE.—Considerable disappointment was expressed at the non-appearance of Kate Carney owing to indisposition, her mouth-organ brigade scena having been looked forward to with a deal of pleasure. However, the management secured the services of Leon Morris and his trained ponies, who prove a great attraction. Ian Colquhoun's excellent singing was well received, and Cruikshank, a quaint and droll artist, was exceedingly popular. Spry and Austin, Alix Lukos, Roze and Calvert, Dave O'Toole, Chas. Russell, and Kitty Clover's sketch company, in Not a Word, all add their quota to a capital programme.

PIER PAVILION.—A delightful quintet of pseudo-musicians, known as "The Ragamuffins," are appearing at this favourite resort, under the direction of Mr H. G. Pelissier. The entertainment is a capital one, and thoroughly enjoyed. The artistes consist of Miss Muriel George, a pleasing vocalist; Miss Gladys Ward, a comedienne with a fascinating style; Mr Bert Ansell, a 'cello soloist and vocalist of remarkable ability; Mr Arthur Davenport, a droll humorist; and Mr Reginald Mountfield, who presides at the piano with marked ability. "The Rags" are a very talented combination, and they have scored a huge success on this their first visit.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—Mr C. P. Levilly's company is presenting here this week the comic opera entitled Amorelle, and is meeting with success. Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crow is well impersonated by Mr Leon Simpkin, who is exceedingly droll; Mr Arthur Cozens acts and sings creditably as Jules; Miss Empsie Bowman makes a delightful and clever Amorelle; and Miss Nellie Mackenzie well expounds Lesbia. Dotard is capitally impersonated by Mr Fred Carrington; Miss Von Bargin is highly successful as Marina; and Mr Horace Manger as Francois is good. The minor characters are all excellently performed.

THE KURSAAL.—General Manager, Mr J. Sydney Childs.—This week's programme is an excellent one, and the management is to be congratulated upon the success obtained. The Rocky Mountain Wonders are pleasing in their unique act; Billy Ferguson earns favour as an eccentric pantomimist and speciality performer; the Vezzeys and their clever and wonderful musical dogs are heard to great advantage; Jones's Cycle Track is beautifully illuminated by electricity during the concluding part of some marvellous riding; Mdlle. Gracio is vociferously received; and the Amstell Louies are two excellent vocalists and dancers. The Bioscope continues to exhibit new and interesting films, and the circus draws large audiences to witness a capital show. The Kursaal Pierrots are Messrs Alf J. Lawrance, Harry Gifford, Alfred Hales, and Bert Atherton, with Miss Nellie Castling, who still maintains the reputation of the café chantant.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—A capital variety entertainment is being given here this week, and good audiences find plenty of amusement. Margot is a chic comedienne and dancer; Tom Carney, Irish comedian, meets with a good reception; Alf Levarvi causes wonderment in his wire act; the Four Dahomeyans win favour in their plantation extravaganza; some clever comedy bar acts are given by the Rozelles; Marie Santoi is a comedienne of good repute; and the Sisters Smart contribute some capital songs and are clever dancers. Wrestling matches are given each night.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; Resident Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—Mr Fred L. Cunninghame's company is paying a return visit here, in A Mother's Love. The drama ably upholds its former good reputation. Mr Fred L. Cunninghame by his highly eccentric rendering of Matt Ruddock contributes to the success; Mr Arthur Rose is excellent as Paul Wingate; and Mr Geo. P. Beresford gives a sufficiently villainous delineation of Geoffrey Mannering. Miss Lallah Davis as Mary Smart and Mr Willie Barrett as Joe Jackson are smart and witty; Miss Violet Macaree sustains the rôle of "the Mother." Winnie Wingate in a pathetic manner; Miss Laurie A. Pardy pays every attention to the rôle of Ellaine Mervin; Miss Bertha Hanbury as Marjorie Wingate is promising.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—A return visit from Mr and Mrs William Maclaren's company in the romantic costume drama Proof is an acceptable attraction here. Mr William Maclaren acts Pierre Lorance with his accustomed skill, and a charming and clever portrayal of Valentine is submitted by Miss Lily C. Bandmann; Adrienne, and Miss Bandmann's old part of Madeline, having an admirable exponent in Miss Gertrude Evans, a young lady possessed of considerable charm and histrionic ability. After being out of the cast on the last visit it is pleasing to find Mr Ardene Linden again as Chamboran, a part he treats admirably. Mr Richard Fulton boldly, yet cautiously, sustains Lazare. Mr Alfred Wareing makes an earnest and devoted Victor De Lauguey, and the Duke D'Aubeterre is amusingly handled by Mr Kingsford Pearse. Mrs S. Hay is still the clever little Madame Deprets. The Duchess is stately as played by Miss Wynne Hanley, and Miss Gertrude Coote creditably acquits herself as Little Adrienne. The scenery, costumes, and effects are praiseworthy.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—Mr A. C. Lilly and company in Drummed Out are paying a return visit, and their reception on Monday was hearty. Mr A. C. Lilly in the heavy part of Troop Sergt.-Major Usher gives a capital interpretation, and the rest of the company are well placed in their respective parts. Carle and Carmanelli, in the latest sensational novelty, "The Electric Moulding Wheel," are diverting and versatile. Phil Herman is a smart character comedian, and Ben Albert may also claim to be a funny comedian. Woodhouse and Wells are able patter comedians and dancers. Some pleasing songs and dances are provided by the Three Cape Girls. The M'Kays, comedy sketch artistes, are old favourites. Mention should be made of the Two Romers, operatic soloists and duettists, and the pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr Jos. Sweeney.—Brothers Lavelle, quaint comedy acrobats, head the bill this week. Sisters Adelaide sing and dance in charming style; the Tokio Trio, musical Japs, are well received; Dale and O'Malley score with their patter; Adam Tomlinson, Tyneside comedian, is exceedingly popular here; and Will Lytton, eccentric comedian; Madame Louie, and Edie Anderson appear successfully.

SEASIDE PAVILION.—Proprietors, the South Shields Corporation.—The season of Mr W. Catlin's Pierrots drew to a close on Saturday last. Altogether a financial success has been the outcome between the Corporation and Mr W. Catlin. The entertainments given have been above the average, and noticeable have these entertainments been for their scrupulous refinement. Therefore it is no surprise that a further agreement has been made between the two parties, and a lease upon the place granted for three years, mention of which was made from the stage.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—The presentation for the first time in Stockport of The Never-Never Land, by Messrs John Hart and H. Armitage's company, has provided the numerous habitués of this theatre with a genuine treat. Mr Edmund F. Kennedy acts admirably as Jack Mowbray, and Mr Arthur Bolton is a manly Tom Hurley. As Nat Rudder Mr Edward Rochelle is distinctly amusing, and Mr Simon Ord is a capital Raphael Moses Wolff. Miss Julia Kennard impersonates the character of Sal Baker with satisfactory effect, and Miss Carry Barrett as Sybil and Miss Blanchette Grand as Lorna Mannerley are charming, whilst Miss Margaret Parker as Smudgee is clever in a marked degree. The applause bestowed upon the company at the close of the performance is thoroughly well deserved.

OHMY'S GRAND CIRCUS.—A hearty greeting from a crowded audience awaited "King" Ohmy on the reopening of this establishment on Monday for the season. As usual, a plethora of varied talent provided a delightful entertainment in addition to the equestrian display, the special star being Charles Matthews, the well-known jumper. Among others were the Brothers Lloyd, the Royal Victorian Trio of international dancers, the Bros. Leone in their feats of strength, and Joe Hennessy, juggler and club manipulator.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—After a long absence Mr William Greet's company is here again in The Sign of the Cross again, and large audiences testify to its still great popularity. As Marcus Superbus Mr F. B. Woulfe dignifies the part with a fine presence and some very powerful acting; Mr A. B. Turner's Nero is a fine conception of the wily and vicious tyrant; as Tigellinus Mr Charles Aldred is admirable; Mr L. Winning's Viturius is also forcibly done; and Mr Robert Hare's Flavius is made very impressive. Miss Ethel Land's Poppæa is good, and Miss Alma Bolson's Berenice is invested with much power. Miss Cissie Carlton's Dacia could not well be improved upon and Miss Ivy Millais as Stephanus plays with effective realism. As Mercia Miss Evelyn D'Alroy acts with pathetic sweetness and charm. A good deal of humour is shown in Mr Frank Wood's Glabrio, whose bibulous propensities are cleverly depicted.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—Good all round must be the verdict on this week's programme, which includes the Matweef and Hugoston Troupe of clever acrobats, dancers, and singers; Winnie Scott, soubrette Parisienne; Freda Spry and B. S. Monti, in their comedy act; Marie Winsome, male impersonator; the Glendenbecks, on the silver rings; Molly Seymour, a sweet singer and expert violinist; Edie and Harold Finden, in their sketch A Desperate Remedy; Payne's Bioscope, and the ever-popular Geo. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, in new songs.

SUNDERLAND.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—There was a crowded house here on Monday night, when The Worst Woman in London was presented by Mr Melville's company. Mr Edward J. Collins impersonated Jack Fulton with distinct success. Miss Constance Medwyn gave an interesting portrayal of Frances Vere. Mr F. B. Lewers as Vincent Lyle, Mr Roy Byford as Milford, Mr B. Mervyn as Philip Armstrong, Mr Joe Bracewell as Hugh Drayton, and Miss Lilian Ross as Ruth are worthy of special mention.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alfred Browne.—The chief attraction here this week is G. H. Chirgwin, the white-eyed Kaffir, who has had a great reception. The Jackley Wonders give a sensational acrobatic display; the Hoopers, who submit ridiculous and other juggling feats, are an acceptable turn; and Ernest Rees, comedian; Kopski, classical pianist; Charles Lilburn, comedian; The Four Trees, comediennes; and Flo Elvin, comedienne, complete an excellent programme.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—The attraction here this week is A Modern Adventuress, produced by Messrs Carson and Granville's company. As the notorious Violet Meredith Miss Beatrice M. Anderson acts with force and vigour; Mr Leonard Ardale makes a clever Piedo Donelli; Harry Delby finds an excellent exponent in Mr Charles Stirling; and Mr W. R. Winning is well cast as Wallace Danton. Miss Alice Defoe makes an excellent Vivette Delby, and the comedy element is safely entrusted to Mr Evan Roland (Crompton) and Miss Minnie Fisher (Sally).

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—Heading the bill here this week are the American Quintet of vocalists and dancers; Auto Atlas astonishes all with his teeth lifting; Murray and M'Mahon create much hilarity as Irish comedians; Miss Kenna Russell scores well as a comedienne; Hurman shows skill as a juggler and hoop manipulator; Professor Edmunds ranks high as a ventriloquist; Anastasie and Barrett display talent as boxers"; and Zasma and Mdlle. De Loule give a clever, smart, and entertaining turn as society gymnasts.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—The Kauffmann Troupe of cyclists head the bill this week, and are enthusiastically received. The Estrellas are athletes of much ability, several of their feats being quite new. Ryder Davis sings his songs well, and Slade Murray is always popular in his items. Eva Ward is a highly capable artiste; Norah M'Evoy sings her songs cleverly; the Percys, in their speciality turns, are well received; and Rennie, the singing ventriloquist, is most successful.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Messrs Garside, Knowles, and Ludlow's company is here with The London Fireman, which is proving a big attraction. Mr Arthur Pringle as Viscount Fleming appears to great advantage, while a capable representative of the Countess Fleming is found in Miss Violet Temple. A finished impersonation of Hal Curtis is provided by Mr J. Forbes Knowles, and the same can be said of Miss Mona Grey as Ida Curtis. Mr Edward L. Garside as Henry Curtis deserves praise for a capital performance. Mr Charles A. Preese as Nixey Stinger and Miss Nellie Garside as Polly Bramble keep the audience in a good humour whenever they make their appearance. Others who contribute to a successful performance include Messrs J. Court Harvard, Frank Hertle, and Miss Adeline Raby.

STROUD.

SUBSCRIPTION ROOMS.—Manager, Mr H. J. Twitchett.—Mr F. F. Benson's North Shakespearian company was here the first three days of the week. On Monday The Taming of the Shrew was played. As Petruchio, Mr Henry Herbert greatly distinguished himself, his clever work being thoroughly effective. The character of Katherine was admirably depicted by Miss Dorothy Green; Mr F. Owen Chambers made an excellent Baptista; Mr Bernard Limpus as Lucentio, and Mr Guy Leigh as Vencentio gave capital interpretations; Gremio and Hortensio were well acted by Mr Arthur Fayne and Mr G. Wallace Johnstone respectively; Bianca had a capable exponent in Miss Christie Lawa; and Miss Maud Garth was decidedly good as the widow. The Merry Wives of Windsor was played on Tuesday, and The Merchant of Venice (matinée) and Hamlet on Wednesday.

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr F. H. Lucas.—The Osmond Tearle Shakespearian and classical répertoire company, under the personal management of Mr Herbert J. Montague, is paying what has now come to be called its annual visit to this town. The visit opened on Monday with a delightful performance of David Garrick to a house well filled in all parts. The staging of this popular play reflected every credit on Mr John Burton. In the title-rôle Mr Alexander Marsh was remarkably successful, his embodiment of the character being earnest and interesting. Miss Carrie Baillie, who has become a great favourite here, submitted a charming impersonation of Lillian, while Miss Fannie Chamberlain and Mrs Wm. Lowe must also be commended for good work in their respective parts. Mr John Burton as Squire Chase was always prominent, and Mr Cyril Grier deserved praise for his capital Sir Humphrey Basing. In the pretty curtain-raiser Delicate Ground Miss C. Baillie, Mr Alex. Marsh, and Mr J. Burton greatly distinguished themselves. On Tuesday Hamlet attracted a crowded and appreciative audience. As Hamlet that rising young tragedian Mr Alexander Marsh proved himself not a mere elocutionist, but a Prince in figure, face, and deportment, thus gaining an unbounded success. By her admirable portrayal of Ophelia Miss Carrie Baillee again established herself an artiste of no mean ability by her charm and naturalness. Mr W. Lowe gave marked effect to the part of Polonius, and Mr C. Grier was a success as the Ghost. Mr Godfrey Tearle as Laertes and Mr Julian J. Gallier as Horatio each played with commendable judgment, while Mr J. Burton and Miss Fannie Chamberlain as the King and Queen of Denmark did very good work. For Wednesday a matinée was arranged, when The Merchant of Venice was given, and As You Like It that night. On Thursday Romeo and Juliet, while for Friday a special performance of School for Scandal was arranged, under distinguished patronage, with Mr Alexander Marsh and Miss Carrie Baillie in the leading rôles.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—The Darling of the Gods, presented in an excellent manner by Mr Beerbohm Tree's company, has proved a great attraction here during the week. Mr G. W. Anson gives a powerful rendering of Zakkuri, the War Minister. Kara, the outlaw prince, is remarkably well played by Mr Gerald Kay Souper, and the delightful impersonation of Yo-San, the Darling of the Gods, by Miss Lilian Stafford, is all that can be desired.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—The attraction here during the week has been H. P. Sylva's powerful drama, Greed of Gold, played by Mr Powell's own company. On Thursday night Mr Wm. Coutts, the acting-manager, took a complimentary benefit.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—A capital all-round programme is arranged here this week with the following:—Donaldson Bros. and Ardel and company, on a return visit with their sketch, A Zoological Comedy; Johnny Dwyer, a capital comedian; Brown and Robinson, The Bricklayer and his Labourer, who are greatly applauded; May Henderson, a charming coon singer and clever dancer; the American Bioscope, with a series of comic animated pictures, "Off for the Holidays;" the Mascotte Trio of ladies, in a clever gymnastic act; Flo Burris, a charming comedienne; Miss Norah Emerald, a dainty little songstress and clever dancer; and the Manhattan Comedy Four.

TON-Y-PANDY.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Counsell.—Miss Cissie Moxon's company, in A Trip to Rum-Fum, is here this week. The members of the company have been selected with evident care, and their allotted tasks are one and all performed in a praiseworthy manner. The staging is meritorious, and the sparkling music is greatly enjoyed.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Burland.—Pride of place this week is accorded Mr George Leyton. Prominent also are Hilton and Hilton in a comedy bar act, the Brothers De Wynne; Hector, the wire prince; the Sisters Volbeque, Asra, billiard saloon juggler; and Bert Lytton and Mabel Comely.

TORQUAY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director and Licensee, Mr R. Smerdon; Secretary, pro tem., Mr Arthur Pearce.—Mr Charles Macdona's Three Little Maids company is here this week. Misses Vera Vallis, Nellie Groves, and Doris Trevor are exceedingly captivating. Mr F. Hulme Sharp convulses the audience with his drolleries, and Mr Jules Charnette is exceedingly quaint as the French lover and plays the 'cello admirably. Mr Ewart Drake's Caddie is immense, and with Miss May Wright contributes a successful Dutch dance.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr Morton Powell's company opened on Monday in the drama Bigamy. Mr Wilfred H. Benson gives a powerful rendering of Lionel Craven; the part of Edgar Craven is ably filled by Mr E. S. Earle; Mr Charles Burdon acts well as Frank Merrivale; and Mr Colin Hazlewood does good work as Sir Charles Dresden. The comic element is provided by Mr Fred Moule as Rufus Cherrybull and Mr Francis Searle as Polyphemus Voltaire. Miss Alwynne Ermon submits an excellent interpretation of the villainess, Diana Courcelle; Miss Elsie Capell depicts with ability the rôle of Sylvia Dresden; Miss Lydia Mannington is successful as Lilian, and Miss Edith Fleetwood is efficient as Esmeralda Grapes.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—A visit is being paid here by Mr Fred Karno's company in the musical comedy, Saturday to Monday. Miss Aggie Morris makes a charming Clorinda Blake. Miss Gladys White does well as Violet Blake. Miss Carlotta Blondin is satisfactory as Aunt Skinner. Miss Amy Francis is an excellent Flora De Vere. Mr Tom Wallace appears successfully as John Willie Jaggs. Mr Henri Duval is a capital Alphonse De Gagge. The dresses and scenery are exceedingly good. Among the extra attractions are the Daisy Dancing Girls, who are well received.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Messrs Charles Draycott and H. B. Peppin's company is here in The Best Must Win. Mr Charles Draycott as Gaston Marcel gives a fine portrayal of his part. Mr Robert Watson plays the rôle of Paul Dumaresq in robust style. Mr H. B. Peppin makes an excellent Juan Minos. Mr Fred Aldworth acts ably as Sabretache. Praise is due to Miss Lilian Loyde for her refined acting as Denise Dumaresq. As La Marquise De Marcel Miss Mary Vincent is well placed, as also is Miss Violet Ospringe in the part of Thérèse Dumaresq, and Miss Florence Lovell is seen to great advantage as Lucille La Fouche.

WALLSEND.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Wallsend Theatre Company; Manager, Mr T. Richardson.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company is appearing here this week in The Plucky Nipper. Mr A. F. Dudley is exceptionally smart as Captain Frank Leslie, and Mr Edward Fryer infuses considerable power into the rôle of Richard Vanbruh. Mr G. B. Wright makes a successful Colonel Fenwick; Mr Elward Surrey is excellent as Bill Burgess; Mr Douglass Campbell is amusing as Tommy Atkins, and scores with his songs; Miss Bonwin Carlton as the Plucky Nipper adds much to the success; Miss Fanny Morse brings much dramatic ability to bear upon the part of Ina Fenwick; and as Daisy Paget Miss Esther Lamonte acts with great intensity. The minor parts are well portrayed, and the scenery is excellent.

WALTHAMSTOW.

KING'S THEATRE.—A capable and, in some cases, excellent performance of the comedy-drama, Money Makes the Man; or, The Pedlar, attracts the interested attention of the King's adherents this week. As the quack doctor, Theophilus Podophylin, Mr Coleman Davies has a part in which his rich, ripe humour finds ample scope, and he keeps his audience in a constant simmer of merriment. The Arthur Egerton of Mr V. W. Carlyle is a manly performance. Mr Archer Terry gives a good account of the villainous Squire, Norman Travers. Willie, a street arab, is touchingly acted by Miss Eunice Udall, and Miss Evelyn Clare looks pretty, and acts with no inconsiderable emotional force as Ella Gordon. The other parts are adequately sustained by Mr E. Meehar, Mr W. H. Harlington, Mr W. A. Stanton, Messrs Syd Lyons, C. Martin, and A. Bradley, Miss May Neilson and Miss Kitty Marriott.

PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—A liberal supply of good things is provided this week by Mr Barclay for the delectation of his patrons. The pride of place is accorded to the pretty musical extravaganza, The Belle of the Orient, which is still in all the freshness and charm of youth. The story, if slight and partially reminiscent, is sufficient for its purpose, and is set forth with much lively music from the pens of Messrs Paul Knox and J. W. Tate. The mounting of the piece is of the most elaborate nature, the dresses are lovely, and—in the case of the ladies—their wearers equally so. Interpreted as it is by Mr Joe Peterman and his talented company, the entire performance is well worthy the abundant applause it receives and the shouts of merriment it creates. The scenery does credit to the brush of Mr Francis

Liver Trouble

IMPAIRED DIGESTION, AND PAINS IN THE SIDE CURED.

A disordered liver, if not attended to, very often brings in its train most serious results. The stomach, the digestive organs, and the kidneys become lax in their duties. Pimples and blotches appear, and the complexion generally assumes a nasty sallow tint. All the symptoms of liver disorder are too numerous to mention, but the most common are pains in the back, chest, and sides—especially after eating—difficulty in breathing, a general feeling of depression and discontent, and loss of appetite. A disordered liver needs to be corrected in a natural and easy manner, and NOT by taking strong purgatives, mineral salts, or other injurious preparations. The finest natural vegetable remedy known to medical science in this century is Bile Beans for Biliousness. They cure all disorders of the liver quite easily and naturally. They also cure permanently by righting first causes, and for this reason there is absolutely nothing else that is "just as good."

This is illustrated in the following case of Mrs. Emily Sophia Clarke, a shopkeeper of Ipswich Street, Stowmarket, Suffolk, who says: "I had suffered from liver disorder for twenty years, and gradually got worse until my health completely broke down. My digestion was impaired, and everything I ate turned sour on my stomach. I had also a constant aching in the back. In the morning I got up feeling heavy, weak, and tired. So reduced was I that even after the simple act of lighting the fire I was compelled to lie down to rest. Soon I became quite unable to do any work. The pains in my side, the headaches, and the sensations of heaviness were most troublesome. I attended the Royal Free Hospital in London for some time, and tried several kinds of so-called 'remedies,' but I got no better. After reading of a similar case to mine which Bile Beans had cured, I decided to undergo a course. The result of persevering with the Beans was that I soon began to improve. After taking the contents of a few boxes I found that I was on the highway to recovery, and I am glad to say I can now get up in the morning feeling well and strong, and am able to attend to my shop from seven in the morning till eleven at night."

Bile Beans for Biliousness are the safest family medicine, and a certain cure for Headache, Constipation, Piles, Change of Weather Worries, Colds, Influenza, Liver Chill, Rheumatism, Liver Troubles, Indigestion, Biliousness, Bad Breath, Flatulence, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, Nervousness, Debility, Anæmia, and all Female Ailments. Obtainable of all Medicine Vendors, or post free from the Bile Bean Co., 4, Redcross Street, London, E.C., on receipt of price, 1s. 1½d.; or large family size, 2s. 9d. per box (2s. 9d. size contains three times quantity 1s. 1½d. size).

Bile Beans for Biliousness.

H. Bull, and the furniture, effects, &c., are well supplied by Messrs Du Moria and Co. The elaborate costumes are from the atelier of Messrs J. Harrison and Co. A very striking entertainment is given by the Five Whiteleys, who as acrobats, wire-walkers, and musical performers work wonders. The lady of the troupe is quite remarkable for her strength and the daring of her exploits. Captain Slingsby is an admirable ventriloquist. A couple of good songs are given by Mr Tom Parker. Barnard's marionettes elicit roars of laughter by their antics, the manipulation of the little figures being neat and clever. Ned Kennedy and Cheevers are capital in their Dutch, Irish, and Negro specialities, the last-named being perhaps, the cleverest. Miss Dorothy L. Clarke, a handsome lady with a beautiful and well-cultivated voice of great range, sings "Blue Bell" in good style. Mr Bert Gilbert gets a big reception, first as an elderly gentleman of the patch and powder period, singing of "The long, long ago," and afterwards as a swell of to-day, who, celebrating a prolonged birthday, comes to loggerheads with his Jehu. The overture of the week is "Coup de Main," from the prolific and versatile pen of Mr H. Petersen, the musical director of the Palace, to whose graceful score the orchestra under his guidance does artistic justice.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—After a lengthy absence A Trip to Chinatown, played by Mr Leslie Norman's company, made a reappearance here on Monday evening and was accorded a warm welcome. Mr Charles Seguin scores as the hypochondriac Welland Strong, and Mr Jerrold Manville plays Ben Gay with much humour. Mr Leslie Norman as Rashleigh Gay and Mr Oswald Gray as Saxon Blood are excellent, and Mr Will Smith contrives to render Noah Heap a very diverting individual. Mr F. Champion extracts amusement as Slavin Payne, and Mr Little Britton must be credited with a humorous impersonation of Jones, of Chinatown. Miss Harriet Fawn as Mrs Guyer shines equally as actress, singer, and dancer, and it would be difficult to imagine a more fascinating or delightfully coquettish exponent of Flirt than Miss Dorothy Vicot. Miss Florrie M'Innes gives an agreeable rendition of Tiny Gray, and Miss Winifred Davies is an interesting Isabel Dane. Miss Beatrice Earle plays Willie Grow capitally. The piece is liberally mounted.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmot.—Another capital company is here this week. Carlo and Maie, comedy acrobats, head the bill, and other excellent turns are Henriette, instrumentalist and vocalist; H. O. Wills, vocalist; C. E. Ernest, comedian; Fordyces, sketch artists; Almon, speciality artist: Harry Clifford, vocalist; and pictures by the Royal Bioscope.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr J. C. Cranston.—Mr Gus C. Livesey's company in the play called The Crimson Club is here this week. Mr Livesey in the rôle of Richard Fenton scores successfully; Mr Lionel Belmore as Sir Philip Garside, Bart., and Mr Herbert Belmore as the Hon. Herbert Selby give capital studies of their respective parts; Mr Chas. Nugent is seen to advantage as Richard Steele; warm applause is accorded Mr H. C. Gilpin as Reginald Adolphus Garside; Miss Bertha Cousins as Julia Marsden is highly commendable; and as Esther Craddock Miss Kate Cameron makes the most of her opportunities. Miss Elsie Mesnerd as Muriel Lockwood and Miss Lily Day as Soponisba Garside are all that can be desired.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Fred Conneaux.—Mr George Dance's company is having a flattering reception on a return visit with The Chinese Honeymoon, which goes as strongly as ever it did. Hang-Chow as interpreted by Mr Frank A. Wood is entirely satisfactory. Miss M. Sadie in the rôle of Fi-Fi is an excellent exponent of the character, and throughout the piece keeps her audience in one continual bubble of merriment. Miss Jessie Collins renders the part of Mrs Pineapple with considerable verve and spirit, and is repeatedly recalled for her songs and dances. Mr Harry Brayne works hard in the rôle of Mr Pineapple, and his efforts meet with every evidence of success. Tom Hatherton, as played by Mr Percy Yorke, is a typical musical comedy hero, and in conjunction with Miss Marie Adair, a charming Soo-Soo, are frequently rewarded with encores for the admirable style in which their allotted numbers are rendered. Li-Hung has a capable representative in Mr Leonard May, and a success is scored by Miss Alice Drummond as Mrs Brown.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The premier position on a bill of exceptional talent is occupied by Jake Friedman, whose "one-man-opera act" gives him full scope for the display of his remarkable vocal abilities, and his inimitable patter keeps the house in one continual roar the whole of the time he is on the stage. The remainder of the programme is filled by the Four Jumels, in a musical act; Frank Coyle, as popular as ever; Alber and Amber, coon jugglers, in a sketch, The Tramp and the Waiter; Reuben Hill, character vocalist; Harrigan and Holt, comedians; the St. Johns, in musical act and dance; Pattie Bella, comedienne; and Max Langslow, in an exhibition of shooting.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Komedy Koncert Kompany commenced a week's engagement here on Monday. Miss Mabel Ashton was charming in her songs "Ping-Pong" and "Sammy," and Miss Emilie Cookson's rendering of "Mr Moon" was loudly applauded; Mr Sammy Shields gained a decided encore by his singing of "The Clyde;" Mr Nuttall Cross delighted the house with his exceptionally clever musical illustrations; and Mr Oswald Williams's chapeaugraphy and experiments in sleight-of-hand were much appreciated. The American Biograph showed some excellent pictures.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Payne.—The Ben Greet company is paying a return visit here this week in Hall Caine's popular play, The Eternal City. Miss Edith Anton Laing gave an intensely dramatic and artistic impersonation of Donna Roma. Baron Bonelli found an exponent of exceptional histrionic ability in Mr D. Lewin Mannering; Mr Henry Deas presented a powerful and well-thought-out interpretation of David Rossi. Especially good was Mr P. L. Julian as Bruno Rocco; and Mr Leonard Gray deserved the highest praise for an excellent performance of Pope Pius XI. Mr E. Sharp was a capital Commendatore Angelelli; while Mr Lowther made Charles Minghelli sufficiently detestable. Master Geoffrey Carlisle deserved praise as Joseph, and Mr A. Edwards was commendable as Tomassa. Mr Russell Thorndyke (Felice), Mr E. Clowes (Father Pifferi), Miss Alice Maud (Elona), Miss Rubardt (Francesca), and Miss L'Estrade (Nattalina) all gave satisfactory representations of their respective characters.

WEXFORD.

WHITEHAVEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Clark.—Mr Leslie Vyner's company is appearing here in the drama Saved from the Sea. As Dan Mr Leonard Robson is particularly good, and Mr Leslie Vyner is capital as Jim. Mr W. Attfield as Richard Fenton and Mr Sydney C. Kearns as Peter Scalcher are both creditable in their respective characters, and Miss F. Russell Spiers as Nancy makes a pleasing heroine.

WINDSOR.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E. Rickitt.—Mr J. A. Campbell's No. 1 company has achieved a notable success here this week with The Sin of Her Childhood. In the leading character Miss Mary Fulton as Mary Haysel presents a convincing and deeply touching picture of a woman's sufferings for the "sin of her childhood" and the working out of her atonement. Miss Jennie Hicks very effectively impersonates Maria Haysel, the reformatory matron, and Miss May Pratt is admirable as Eliza Muggins, a servant and a loyal friend of Mary. Little Edith takes the double part of Erick Dugdale and Little Mary cleverly and Little Dott Moss as Hannah Sprye is a charming "infant actress," dancing, singing, and acting in a most captivating manner. Her performance on the banjo is also skilful. The villain of the piece, Stephen Haysel, alias Dr. Henry Grainger, finds a forceful and striking exponent in Mr Austen Milroy, this part being set in bold relief by the stern, dignified delineation of the Rev. Alan Grey by Mr Charles Fancourt. Mr Fred Elvin as Barney O'Reilly presents an excellent conception of a rollicking Irishman. Mr Campbell assumes the rôle of Captain John Thornton with admirable military method, and other parts are satisfactorily played by Mr Frank Brunell, Mr Sam Edwards, Mr Richard Dick, Mr Thomas Kemble, Mr John Berry, and Mr Arthur Lait. The final scene, the garden of the vicarage, is a beautiful example of floral decoration by Miss Olive Fulton.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—This week the Wolverhampton Operatic Society has possession of the boards, and is performing Maritana. On Monday night a highly creditable performance was given. Mr Henry Beaumont was specially engaged to appear as Don Cæsar De Bazan, and filled the part admirably. Mr Arthur Sedgley was excellent as Don Jose, and Mr G. R. Mayland was seen to advantage as the King of Spain. Mr Ernest Darby, Mus.Bac., ably conducted. Tuesday night's performance was given in aid of local charities.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr Fred Benton and Mr Fred J. Little; General Manager, Mr Fred Benton.—This week's attraction consists of A London Actress, which is being performed by Miss Emma Litchfield's company, under the direction of Mr Stuart Cleveland.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Barnard; General Manager, Mr W. H. Lennon.—This week's bill is headed by James Day, the Aston postman, who frees himself from half-a-dozen pairs of handcuffs in very quick time. The Marconis give some electrical and other experiments; Florence and Lillian are clever musicians; the Brothers Durant are amusing comedians and acrobats; and Alethea is a clever and graceful gymnast. The Sisters Lee, dancers; Mueller and Coyne, Percy Maye, and Herbert Rule also appear.

WORCESTER.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager Mr Arthur Carlton; General Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—Mr Bert Coote's company is here this week, giving representations of The Fatal Wedding, which had a very favourable reception accorded to it on Monday night. Both as regards its sensational and amusing features the performance was an excellent one and elicited much applause. The children's singing and dancing were especially popular. The winsome character of Jessie was charmingly portrayed by Miss Maldie Andrews, whose song afforded much pleasure. Miss Helen Russell was very good as the heroine, Mabel Wilson, and Miss Doris Gilham played well as Cora Williams. Mr Ernest Outtrim gave a capital rendering of the part of the husband, and Mr Wallace Stranack was clever as Robert. Miss Maud Looker as Bridget and Mr W. R. Chewd as Toto were responsible for much of the fun.

WORKINGTON.

QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr C. F. Porter.—There was an enthusiastic and large audience on Monday night during the presentation of A Life's Revenge. Mr John F. Traynor gave a fine portraiture of the hero; Mr F. C. Somerfield was powerful as the villain; as Orloff Mr Walter Roberts was excellent; in the part of Trevor Mr P. Roberts was satisfactory; Miss Marie Dagmar played with feeling and effect the part of the Princess; as Marcia Miss Katherine Eckhart evinced dash and fire, the duel scene producing great interest; Miss May Davis was sprightly as Daphne; and she was well partnered by Mr C. F. Warne as Tumbleoff. The mounting was picturesque.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Helsby Wright.—I Defy the World was presented here on Monday by Mr Julian Malvern's company. Mr Lewis Gilbert was manly as Darville. As the Count Mr J. W. Worley was capital. Mr W. Denning was capable as the General, and Mr C. Conway was dramatic as Laroche. Miss L. Nazeby gave a satisfactory impersonation of Blanche, and Miss G. Shilton was pleasing as Pauline. Miss M. Lillian and Mr G. M. Julian as Mrs and Mr Wozzle caused frequent laughter. Little Vera Guyon was good as Fanchette.

WORTHING.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. B. Dixon.—Mr Scott Buist and West-end company presented a new play here on Monday, entitled The Axis, by Cyril Harcourt. A notice of the production will be found in another column.

WREXHAM.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls.—This week a really good company has drawn capital houses, the artistes being T. B. Fayme, a clever and eccentric comedian; Les Barrs, tricky comedy gymnasts; Chester and Leo's Marionettes; Miss Kate Le Blanche, comedienne and dancer; Miss Nelly Colverd, top-boot dancer; and La Belle Sylvia, clever child vocalist, acrobatic dancer, and club swinger.

YORK.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—The Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Arabs form the the principal attraction this week, their clever and unique entertainment being received with great favour. Prince Ishmael is an illusionist of the first rank. His tricks are certainly astounding. Andy Burn is a first-rate comedian; the Bohemians are particularly clever musicians; and Matt Wilkinson's comedy combination in the sketch. The Registry Office, does well. Resford and Hunt, duettists; Maude Courtney, American songstress; the Four Olympian Dancers; and the Singing Pit Boy complete the bill.

IMPORTANT NEW ELGE FILMS.

No. 257.

GENERAL BOOTH PREACHING.

EXTRA SPECIAL SUBJECT.

General Booth's Motor Tour has been the sole absorbing topic in Great Britain for a month past. A campaign of the kind, with such a leader at the head, was sure of success, and successful it proved in the highest degree. Our operator, who had been following up "the General," succeeded in taking on the very last day of the tour a unique picture, briefly described as follows:—

PART 1.—General Booth's arrival at the Burgh Hall, Montrose. The procession of cars dashes up, and an exceptionally fine portrait is obtained as "the General" alights, assisted by his son. The Provost of Montrose extends a hearty welcome to his distinguished guest, and after chatting for a few seconds the pair walk into the hall, a close portrait being obtained.

PART 2.—At Bervie, Kincardineshire. A small coast village, all the inhabitants of which have gathered round the market cross; the children grouped around, hymn-books in hand, ready to give a hearty welcome of an appropriate kind to the aged patriarch. The procession then enters the square, and the General, with bared head, stands up and welcomes the dignitaries of the village. This formality over, he again rises to address his audience. The scene is unique. The aged preacher surrounded by the humble villagers form a most striking picture, and the vitality of this wonderful man is illustrated in a remarkable degree. Every movement of his face is distinctly seen, and one can almost imagine the words the General is uttering. We may add that General Booth is seen during the whole of the picture. Length, 160ft. Price, £4.

No. 214. SHOOTING THE RAPIDS, KILLARNEY.

An illusion, producing upon an audience the same effect as if they were undergoing the risk of being actually in the boat. A most extraordinary effect. Nothing of the kind has ever been attempted before. Length, 160ft. Price, £4.

No. 203. THREE LITTLE MAIDS.

No. 192. THE ELECTRIC SHOCK.

Some tiresome boys tamper with an electrician's door bell, much to his annoyance. He calls into service a 10,000 volts battery, which he connects with the bell chain. Result—postman, Jack Tar, Mary Jane, &c., are all nearly electrocuted. Length, 120ft. Price, £3.

No. 200. THE FATAL WIG.

A maiden fair, past the first bloom of youth, resorts to artifice in the hopes of renewing her charms. But youth will be served, and while the damsel is making a hit with her Sunday boy, some children on the other side of the garden wall procure their pa's fishing-rod, and hook a wig at a moment when the infatuated pair are locked in each other's arms. Length, 118ft. Price, £2 19s.

THE JONAH MAN;

OR, THE TRAVELLER BEWITCHED.

This is a trick film of an entirely new character, embodying tricks which have never before been seen. It depicts in a very convincing manner the various troubles through which an unfortunate traveller has to pass in the endeavour to catch his train. First we see him in his bedroom just completing his toilet. His coat and hat are on, and he is just stooping down to lace up his boots when his coat gradually dissolves off his body and slowly appears on its original hook on the wall. He seizes it and puts it on again, and rushes to the breakfast-room. There his breakfast-table and all slowly disappear before his eyes, and various other discomforting accidents happen to him. He reaches the street, hails a 'bus, and climbs to the top. The horses gradually fade away, and the traveller descends again to look for them. While he is searching the omnibus disappears slowly, and leaves him in the road alone. He sits patiently on his portmanteau and waits for another 'bus, but it fades away while it is going along before he has time to get in. Then he decides to walk, but he overtakes another 'bus and jumps quickly upon it before it has time to fade. But it fades, nevertheless, and, dropping him through the bottom, leaves him rolling in the road. At the railway station even the trains behave in the same manner, and at last the traveller himself, seized by an invisible enemy, gradually fades and disappears altogether.

PANTOMIME ARRANGEMENTS FOR 1904-5.

Last Year's Exceptionally Low Offer for Cleaning Pantomime Costumes in Quantities, being determined not to be beaten either in Price or Quality of Work.

XMAS PANTOMIMES.

WE ARE NOW GETTING BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR THE ABOVE,
but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist,
WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are still Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We continue to hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional Work takes Precedence over all other orders.

By Special Arrangement,

TOURING MANAGERS

can have their Wardrobes Cleaned between Shows, when in or near London.
'Phone, wire, or write to T. HARRIS.

T. HARRIS, Manager.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS.

LAST UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL.

Lyceum Theatre, Crewe,
Sept. 8, 1904.

Dear Sir,—
Received parcel containing jacket and suit safely. We are very pleased with the way they are done; couldn't be better.

Faithfully yours,

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr Max Goldberg's liking for historical subjects, though based fairly well upon an appreciation of historical "atmosphere," seems at present to be governed by his sense of the demands of modern melodrama rather than by the remoter crises of events enacted purely for historical effect. His play, Ancestors of the Crown, produced at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, on Monday last, is an example of illustrated history, more or less authentic; spectacular in parts after the manner of some great originals; told, moreover, in blank verse; and informed with the imagination of an author who realises (from habit and a business point of view) that an audience of to-day is looking on and expecting the usual inventive twists as the tale progresses. Such a method is doubtless unavoidable, unless the author's object be the depiction, in the literary manner, of some great character or a series of known events. It is a way of popularising the historical subject into a kind of instructive melodrama, and if it contains a percentage of the usual heroics, so much the more certain is it of inducing popular applause. Mr Max Goldberg has written his drama on these lines; but it is to his credit that the historical element is not without some interest of its own. The period is that of the Black Prince, afterwards Edward the Third, and the setting includes the valiant Edward's warlike achievements in France against the Dauphin. The prologue depicts an episode of ten years previous, in which the Earl of Kent is murdered by Raymond De Montfort and one Roger De Mortimar, of whom the former desires to obtain documents relating to the legitimacy of Joan, the Earl's daughter, surnamed the Fair Maid of Kent, so that he may benefit himself thereby. In the acquirement of these documents he succeeds, being fortunate also to make his escape from the scene of the murder. En passant, the matter of this prologue might easily be merged in the subsequent first act with great advantage to the total effect. After the lapse of ten years Joan has grown up, and the situation is that she is being wooed by the Black Prince, who has made himself known to her only as Sir Edward Mowbray, originally, it would seem, with not the most honourable intentions. Rumours of war are in the air, and much village bustle consequent upon the presence of soldiers, led by De Montfort. Also at hand is Blanche of Bordeaux, a French Princess, and a former flame of Edward; and her object is to thwart the love-making of the Prince and Joan, at the same time, as occasion happens to arise, doing France a service at the expense of England in the approaching wars. Edward will have none of her, nor is Joan dismayed by her scornful tongue; but the parting of the lovers is close at hand. Edward is called away to service, and Joan, by a temporary trick against the Princess Blanche, goes—dressed as a boy—upon an expedition to a beleaguered town in France, which the Princess would betray. Active in the movement of affairs to this point is Walter of Hemingborough, Captain of the King's Archers. This is a faithful, honest fellow, full of resource, and a former retainer of the Earl of Kent, Joan's father. In the subsequent disaster to Joan, who is captured by the myrmidons of Blanche of Bordeaux and delivered to the tender mercies of Raymond De Montfort in the Dauphin's camp, the stalwart Walter, disguised as an old soothsayer, figures to great advantage, effecting the rescue of Joan and the annihilation of a whole troop of French soldiers at one blow. A scene ensues in which Prince Edward appears unarmed at a banquet to which he is invited by the treacherous Dauphin. Here again Walter, the Archer is in evidence, and here also Joan is enabled by friends to masquerade as Medusa, this character being called upon to manipulate a loving cup between the Black Prince and Blanche of Bordeaux, who has taken care to poison the wine intended for the Prince. The poisoned wine, however, is given to Blanche, who dies. The soldiers of the Dauphin thereupon close about Prince Edward; but in this crisis some curtains on the stage are drawn aside, and a tableau of Walter and his archers, each with drawn bow, is disclosed, effectively disposing of the danger.

The last act takes place in the Palace of the Black Prince at Berkhampstead, where the inaugurating incident of the Garter is introduced, and the King's sanction is obtained by Joan to her wedding with Prince Edward. All ends happily, of course, and, on the whole, it may be said that the story is an interesting one well told.

Mr John F. Preston, who produced the play, well deserved the chief honours of the evening, for his depiction of Walter Hemingborough, his impersonation of the old soothsayer in the French camp being especially well done. Perhaps the next best performance was that of Miss Therese Osborne as Blanche of Bordeaux, a part demanding passion, tact, and a certain self-control. Miss Grace Lester's delineation of Joan was also highly commendable, and a performance that should not be overlooked was that of Mr James Duncan as the Constable of France. As Edward, the Black Prince, Mr Lewis Leslie carried himself with dignity, delivering his lines with vigour and precision. The villain of the piece is Raymond De Montfort, a part effectively rendered by Mr Arthur Keand. On the comedy side, Mr Dan F. Roe as Nick Thompson stood out as a host in himself, but he received valuable assistance from Miss Nina Westerleigh as Prudence, his wife. Mr James E. Page's comic interpretation of Black Judas might be modified with advantage. Other notable parts were well played by Mr Clifford Marle, Mr Percy Norman, and Mr Henry Ernstone.

The drama was well received by a fairly large house, and may develop into a marked success with judicious manipulation.

A CONCIERGE of a house in the Rue de Condorcet, Paris, was passionately fond of music. It had been the dream of her life to become a great singer, but fate willed that she should lead a more modest existence. Three rascals got to know of her devotion to the art, and resolved to profit by it. Two of the triumvirate asked permission to execute the most brilliant morceaux of their repertory. The concierge readily consented, and for half an hour they sang. The harvest of sous they reaped was large, but her sorrow was great when she entered her lodge and learnt, to her great dismay, that a sum of £10 and some jewels were missing. The third vocalist had rifled the lodge while his companions entertained the concierge in the courtyard.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 14.—The Duke of Killicrankie, with Mr John Drew in the title-rôle, has scored an unequivocal success at the Empire Theatre, and the house has been "sold out" at every performance. Mr Drew appears at his very best as the eccentric young Duke of Killicrankie, and he has the support of an excellent company. Miss Fanny Brough is simply inimitable in her impersonation of the sharp-tongued Mrs Mulholland, and Mr Ferdinand Gottschalk as the pompous Mr Pitt-Welby contributes a very clever and amusing characterisation. Miss Margaret Dale as Lady Henrietta Addison is charming, and the other rôles are in good hands. There is every indication that the play's success in London will be repeated here. Mr Drew has told an interviewer that he likes the rôle of the Duke of Killicrankie very much. He said that the New York production was as near like the London one as possible, but he did not wear kilts in the last act because Americans were not used to them, and might look askance at bare knees. So he compromised and wore the kind of clothes that an Englishman would wear in Scotland. "As for the play," Mr Drew remarked, "it was a find. Mr Frohman had passed a thousand manuscripts until this play came along. It happened just right."

MISS CECILIA LOFTUS made her début as a star under the management of Mr Daniel Frohman last night at the New Lyceum Theatre, appearing in the title-rôle of The Serio-comic Governess, a comedy-drama in three acts, by Israel Zangwill. As Eileen O'Keefe Miss Loftus plays the part of a governess in an aristocratic home, who, to eke out a living for herself and her mother and pay her father's debts, is also a music hall singer on the sly. In the first act Eileen is receiving her education in an Irish convent when the news of her father's financial ruin is brought to her. Before she leaves the convent she meets and falls in love with Captain Doherty, a young army officer, who is shortly ordered to the front. In the next act we find her employed as a governess in a Mayfair mansion, from which she steals each night to do her serio-comic turn at the music halls. The son of her employer falls in love with her, which leads to her dismissal. In the last act the dramatic interest is supplied by the clash between Eileen's two admirers, the son of the rich woman whom she served and the soldier, who has come back to fall a victim to the charms of the music hall singer without knowing that she is really his own sweetheart. Eileen remains true to him, however, in spite of his fickleness, and when Captain Doherty at length recognises "Nellie O'Neill," the serio-comic, as the young convent girl of his early days he carries her off to share his fame and fortune. Miss Loftus made a decided hit, and at the close of each act was enthusiastically applauded.

"LETTY," a drama in five acts, by A. W. Pinero, had its first representation in America at the Hudson Theatre last Monday. A large audience was in attendance, and prolonged applause followed each descent of the curtain. The critics have discussed the play at considerable length in the newspapers, and altogether its reception has been such as to make every playgoer wish to see it at the first opportunity. Mr William Faversham, the star, received an ovation. As Nevill Letchmere he has a part that fits him well, and he gave a fine interpretation. Miss Carlotta Nillson has received the highest praise for her impersonation of Letty. Miss Julie Opp's Hilda Gunning was a graphic portrayal, and Mr Arthur Playfair's Bernard Mandeville was a clever character study.

"THE COLLEGE WIDOW," a satirical comedy, in four acts, by George Ade, was produced by Mr Henry W. Savage at the Columbia Theatre, Washington, on the 12th inst. The play is due at the Garden Theatre, New York, a week later. The author reproduces, in whimsical fashion, the atmosphere and various types familiar to American college towns, and satirises the prevailing craze for athletics. The hit of the piece was a representation of a football game in the third act. This scene proved very exciting, and Mr Ade was summoned before the curtain and warmly applauded. He said, "I do not think I deserve any credit for this; it belongs to the man who invented football." The "college widow" is the name given to the vivacious daughter of the president of the institution, with whom all the freshmen are wildly in love. Then there is the hero, the physically perfect son, whose father, a hustling capitalist, endows colleges indiscriminately, and among the other characters there are the mild and learned tutor, who is guiding the hero through the intricacies of calculus; the breezy young married woman, who chaperons the village girls; an uncertain young woman, with whose mother the students board; a retired prize-fighter, who trains the eleven; a young boiler-maker, who has been surreptitiously entered by the coach in the art department that he may be available for the football team; the town marshal, stern members of the faculty, and rural undergraduates. The play met with a very favourable reception.

MISS FLORENCE BINDLEY is appearing at the American Theatre in a play called The Street Singer, by Hal Reid. She impersonates Violet Vodray, a singing comedienne, who is also an expert fencer, and who fights a duel with the villain in order to save her lover, afterwards disguising herself as a street singer to foil the detectives employed by a wicked old millionaire whom she has been forced to marry. Miss Bindley sings several songs, and easily maintains her popularity.

MR J. H. STODDART, who is nearly eighty years of age, is appearing as Lachlan Campbell, in The Bonnie Brier Bush, a dramatisation of Ian M'Laren's stories, at Proctor's Fifty-eighth-street Theatre.

"THE SPELLBINDER," an American comedy, in three acts, by Herbert Hall Winslow and Charles Dickson, was produced at the Herald-square Theatre last week by Mr George W. Lederer. Mr Dickson appears as Howard Colby, the "spellbinder" (Anglicé, campaign orator) of the play, who finds himself the rival of his political "boss" in a love affair. The latter is anxious to marry the girl in order to further his social ambitions, but Colby refuses to obey the district leader and give up the girl he loves, and defies the entire committee. An onion plays an important part in the love affair of the young "spellbinder." He has lost his voice after making a number of speeches, and to clear his throat has eaten an onion. After a love-making scene with his sweetheart, he begins to pop the question. But she gives him a look which makes him think that she scorns him, and they part for a time, separated by an onion. The scene of the second act is a manicurist's parlour, where the various characters drop in to have their beauty restored, and some of the best action in the play takes place. Mr Ralph Delmore as the political "boss" shared the applause with Mr Dickson.

"ARE YOU A MASON?" a capital farce adapted from the German by Leo Ditrichstein and produced here two years ago, has been revived at the Garrick Theatre. Mr Ditrichstein, Mr Henry Kolker, Mr Thomas A. Wise, Mr Henry V. Donnelly, and Miss Gertrude Whitty play the principal parts.

MRS SARA STEVENS, an American actress, who had been a member of the Way Down East company for the past eight years, died on the 8th inst., at the age of seventy. Mrs Stevens was the widow of John C. Heenan, "the Benicia boy," and with him she visited England in 1862, and appeared at Drury-lane Theatre as Eily O'Connor, in The Colleen Bawn. In 1877 she was a member of Ada Cavendish's company at Abbey's Park Theatre, Boston. During the past twenty years Mrs Stevens had been associated with Mr Joseph R. Grismer and his wife (Phœbe Davies) in their various enterprises.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, SEPT. 22.—Herr Heyermanns calls his new work "a merry play on the domestic hearth," which is intended to be understood as bitter irony. The piece is as gloomy and realistic as the others we have known by the same author. The plot is as follows:—Pancras Duif is a widower, midway between fifty and sixty. In his young days he was poor, and his marriage was not a happy one. By hard work and industry in his trade of a locksmith he has attained to affluence and founded a company, the Kettenglieder Company. After a quarter of a century's loneliness—his children are grown up and independent—Duif wishes to marry again, and his choice falls upon his housekeeper, Marianne. She, poor woman, has had a hard life of it. Left to bear the brunt of the world, with a nameless child to care for, she had been driven from door. In desperation she forged certificates to prove she was a widow, but to Duif she confesses the truth, and his good heart is touched by her struggles. It is different with his children, who are as heartless, brutal, mercenary a pack as ever existed. They find poor Marianne's papers and drive her forth, they form a plot to declare their father insane, and the end of the matter is that Duif succumbs to the army of sons, daughters and sons-in-law; he breaks down utterly, and finds refuge in drink. The scenes, many of them, are exceedingly effective, the characters are drawn with great talent, each type being clearly and rigorously defined, but it is not a pleasant play by any means. It was splendidly acted and well mounted. In response to hearty applause Dr. Lindau appeared, thanking the audience in the name of the author, "who was present, but opposed to calls."

HERR RICHARD ALEXANDER, the new lessee of the Residenz, is still giving Eine Hochzeitsnacht (Une Nuit de Noces), three-act farce, by MM. Keroul and Barre, with much success. Herr Alexander has succeeded Herr Lautenburg—the esteemed and energetic director of the Residenz Theatre for a number of years—and he is continuing the same genre. Berlin's cleverest comic actor, and certainly the most popular, Herr Alexander, drew crowded houses for Herr Lautenburg, and is now doing the same for himself. His style of humour has a charm all its own, and has earned him the by-name of "der feine Alexander." In the riskiest of French farces the actor-manager always preserves his innate refinement, in addition to his sunny drollery, which nobody can resist. Herr Alexander is taking the part of Anatole in Die Hochzeitsnacht. He is admirably supported by Fräulein Rohland, Fräulein Witt, Herr Soldeneck, Herr Georg, and others of the first-class company. The piece has already been described in your columns, so to detail the plot is unnecessary.

FRAU AGNES SORMA made her appearance at the Neues Theatre last week in Lessing's fine play Minna Von Barnhelm. Frau Sorma gave the title-rôle in her customary sympathetic manner, gaining unbounded applause. Herr Engels made a hit in the part of the Landlord, a rôle in which he is well-known here, and the remainder of the cast was satisfactory.

A SHORT opera of Mozart's, which is but little known, Der Schauspiel-Director, was produced at the Royal Opera last week. The results were not quite all that could have been desired, for the interpretation was not an even one, notwithstanding the pains taken by Kapellmeister Von Strauss and the head stage manager, Herr Droescher. Herr Philipp was evidently indisposed, and sang the title-rôle very unsatisfactorily. The same may be said of several of the other artists, and the orchestra was too loud and heavy throughout the greater part of the work.

THE programme for the coming season at the Royal Schauspiel-Haus has been issued. Owing to the alterations—which will last until January—the company is playing at present at Kroll's, or the New Royal Opera, as the auxiliary State Theatre at Berlin is called. A few novelties will be produced before Christmas, among them Lubliner's comedy Ein Kritischer Tag, A. Lindner's four-act historical drama Die Bluthochzeit, and Die Tochter des Erasmus, Herr Von Wildenbruch's new play. The first absolutely new productions in the renovated Schauspiel-Haus will take place in January—Die Herzmarke, drama, by Philipp Langmann, and Venus Amathusia, a play by Max Dreyer.

OSCAR WILDE'S Salome was given for the 100th time at the Neues Theatre on Wednesday last, and created as profound an impression as ever. Frau Gertrud Eysoldt gave her customary masterly rendering of the name-part, and Fräulein Durieux was admirable as Herodias. Dr. Wüllner disappointed everyone by his impersonation of Herod; the popular singer would do well to be content with his triumphs of the concert-room. Dr. Oscar Blumenthal's new verse-play, Der Tote Loewe (The Dead Lion), has been acquired by the management of the Berliner, and will be produced next month. The author will superintend the rehearsals himself.

THE Schiller Theatre N. made an attempt to arouse public interest in Ibsen's John Gabriel Borkmann last week. It was an unsuccessful experiment. This is, many people think, the great dramatist's poorest production, and it certainly needs the most skilful acting to make it "go down" at all. The cast at the Schiller was—in the main—thoroughly inadequate. Herr Holthaus, in the title-rôle, was only satisfactory in passages, and the one rendering which was really good was that of Fräulein Ullerich's Ella. The Schiller audiences are proverbially grateful, but their patience was not adequate to the demands made upon it.

L'ARRONGE'S always-popular volks-play, Hasemann's Töchter, has been revived at the Luisen, and made a decided hit, more especially as the part of Hasemann was given by that amusing comedian Emil Thomas. Herr Thomas had but to appear and the audience had a smile on their faces, while at the close of each act there were delighted calls for the favourite artist, and a quantity of flowers were handed up to him. The star was capitally supported, and the comedy ran smoothly from start to finish.

HERR OTTO ERNST'S latest work—a political comedy entitled Bannermann—will be produced at the Imperial Burg Theatre, Vienna, early in October.

SCARCELY were the above words written than the news of Emil Thomas's sudden death was in everybody's mouth. Hasemann's Töchter, with the popular actor in the title-rôle, was to have been given again on Sunday, but Herr Thomas was taken unwell, and compelled to remain at home. Shortly afterwards he lost consciousness, and he expired on Monday morning. Recovering consciousness for a moment he cried, "Emil Thomas is dying," and as the words left his lips he was a corpse. With him has passed away one of Berlin's most genuine comedians. Herr Thomas was a born humourist, and in his particular line no one could touch him. He was sixty-eight years of age, and had been on the stage for forty-five years. His place will not be readily filled, and his memory will be kept green by thousands.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.

NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Z. Andrews.—Mr James Hare's company is here this week in The Golden Chance. Mr Herbert M. King is a manly Hubert Zac, Mr James Hare portrays the villainies of Stephen Clinton well, Mr Tom Arkinstall is amusing as Isaac Shelberg, Mr Hill Cremer is good as Edward St. Clare. The comedy element, of which there is plenty, is supplied by Mr John A. Stimson, who is aided by Miss Jenny Hallworth as Susan Brown. Miss Agatha Halford is charming as Lydia Hastings. Miss Irene Clifford, in the dual-rôle of Mother Hawk and Viva Zac, shows that she is an actress of no mean ability; and minor parts are in excellent hands.

ABERDEEN.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore; Acting-Manager, Mr H. C. Cavanagh.—The performances of A Country Girl, by Mr George Dance's company, crowd the theatre this week. Miss May Glen is heartily encored for her gay rendering of her songs as Nan; Miss Maud Hervey's sweet, cultivated voice is heard to advantage in the "Coo" song; and Miss Aimee Roberts renders the chief song of the Princess, "Under the Deodar," with splendid spirit. Miss Veronica Brady is as lively as could be desired as Sophie; Mr Johnny Osborne is almost inimitable as Barry; Mr Cyril Thomson as Geoffrey Challoner makes a hit with his rendering of "My own little girl;" while the topical song of "The Rajah from Bhong" has also a decided success. The chorus is strong and efficient, and the orchestra is admirably conducted by Mr Llewlyn Hughes.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Ernest Sheldon.—The event of the week is the visit of Mr George H. Chirgwin, who is raputurously received by the crowded audiences. The Sisters Sprightly are as vivacious and fascinating as ever, and among other members of an exceptionally strong combination are Miss Violet Wilton, Miss Louie Hurman, Frank Coyle, the Brothers Obo, and Jack Foley, all of whom are highly attractive in their various lines.

ABERTILLERY.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. W. Ventom.—The attraction here this week is Mr Penrhyn Foster's sensational play At Break of Day. Miss Rose Ralph gives a fine reading of Dora Thorneycroft, while little Miss Ida Thompson as Phillis Thorneycroft proves herself to be a charming and clever child actress. Miss Edith Stalman is a praiseworthy Mrs Amelia Peck. Miss Doris Regan is good as Violet Brand; Henrietta Stubbs is ably represented by Miss Annie Thomas; Mr James English gives a capital impersonation of Richard Thorneycroft; Mr Dennis Hennessey scores as Arnold Fletcher; Mr J. H. Gallier does well as the Rev. Ernest Brand; Mr E. Porter is an excellent Marmaduke Manners; and Mr T. E. Conover achieves success as Jeremiah Stubbs. On Thursday and following night Miss Cissy Moxon's Trip to Rum-Fum occupied the boards.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—On Monday Mr Arnold Bell and company opened in Ben-My-Chree. Mr Arnold Bell scored as Dan Mylrea. The company includes Mr Frank C. Robson, H. M. Clifford, Cuthbert Imrie, William Read, Joe Berdsley, Webster Norcott, Royston Craig, William Mansell, Misses Violet Campbell, Marine Heildon, Lillian Carlo, Mrs Henly, and Miss Francis Campbell, who did well as Mona. The scenery and dresses were appropriate. On Thursday and Friday The Shaughraun and The Octoroon were played.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—Amorelle, a pretty comic opera, is being presented here this week by Mr C. P. Levilly's company. There is much fun of a legitimate kind, and the music is distinctly good. The audience is charmed throughout, and the auditorium frequently resounded on Monday with hearty peals of laughter, caused mainly by the amusing grimaces and droll acting of Mr Leon Simkin as Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crowe, the wily old pseudo-scientist. Mr Arthur Cozens as Jules is quite successful in his delineation of the character, and sings the music with artistic expression and taste. Mr F. Carrington as Dotard also sings very well, and acts the part of the old sea-dog excellently. Mr Horace Manger's martial bearing suits the character of François to a nicety; and the part of the Count and the rich merchant, Boissey are capably portrayed by Mr A. Elwyn and Mr G. Paulton. Miss Empsie Bowman makes a sprightly and charming Amorelle, her singing and dancing being very captivating; Miss Von Bargen as Marina, the gauche native female in love with Dr. Crowe, acts with much drollery. Miss Belle M'Kensie, a graceful Lesbia, sings very sweetly. The chorus and orchestra work well together, and the performance as a whole is very enjoyable.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot.—Novelties are constantly being put forward here, and this week's programme includes a great international boxing act between Louis Anastasie and Joe Barrett. Charlie Craston is a really funny comedian, with songs up to date; Carlo and Male give a good speciality act; Dainty Maggie Rimmer is fully entitled to be so designated; Bob Gardner, the popular double-voiced vocalist, takes well; as does H. O. Wills. Fyne and Hurley are good in their novel coster act; and Barton and Franklin are justly celebrated as the "Scottish princes of music." The Hippo. Bioscope has always something attractive in the way of pictures.

AYR.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry W. Day.—Seldom have we heard such genuine laughter from an audience as that provoked on Monday by the absurdities of Laughter Land. Mr Harry Rousby revelled in his opportunities as Dick Marlow; Mr Harry B. Lewis was droll as Professor Sylvanus Wood; Mr G. Westacott was most effective as Sir Vincent Marlow; and Mr Craigie Edwards and Mr Victor T. Raymont as Alderman Trentman and his Nephew respectively both did well. Miss Agatha Rose made a whimsical Clothilda. The truly wonderful Craggs brought down the house in their acrobatic speciality. The setting of the piece was carefully carried out, and in the Bungalow scene on the Scilly Islands, where Miss Cecilia Hawthorn and Miss May Leslie sing and dance so charmingly, the electric colour-light appliances of the theatre made the scene a very pretty one. Messrs Grenville and Osmond's company appeared in The Still Alarm on Thursday.

BEDFORD.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter R. Wilson.—There was a delightful change at the theatre on Monday, when Mr Graham-Falcon introduced the romantic comic opera The Fisher Girl. Mr Jones did full justice to the part of Vanderdecken; Mr Chas. Fisher made a jolly Hendrick; Mr C. Innis-Brown gave a good impersonation of Kasper; Mr Frank Crouch was capital as Jan Stofel; and Mr Walter Champney was well suited to his part. Mr Will Raymond and Mr J. G. Forde as the twins were simply uproarious in their fun. Miss Maud Desborough, who sang herself into Bedford's favour some years ago with "Here is a pure White Rose," capably filled a difficult rôle; Miss Marie Rito possesses an excellent voice; and Miss Alma Evelyn made an effective Frau Stofel.

BACUP.

NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—The Convict's Daughter is here this week, played by Mr Frank Bertram's company. Mr T. W. Hurst is alert and earnest as the hero; Mr G. Moreton Williams as Jasper Thorn presents a very good specimen of the out-and-out stage villain; as Frederick Neville Mr J. K. Watton submits a lifelike presentment; Mr Frank Bertram puts convincing work into his rendering of Michael Graham; Mr Alfred Terris as Patrick O'Laragan, an Irish constable, does much towards enlivening the play; Miss Edith M. Savery acts with much feeling as Edith Caville; Miss Maud Osmond as Marion Thorn is satisfactory; and Miss Julie Alexander is a sprightly Betty Hyne.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell. Mr J. Gar Kiddie's company in A Chinese Idyl is here. Miss Mabel Mainwaring is a pleasing Pitti Pat; Belle Brighton is cleverly portrayed by Miss Marie Rainbird; Mr Fred Danvers makes an excellent Viceroy, whose Secretary, being played by Mr Dawson Dewick, keeps the house in roars of laughter; Lieutenant West has an able exponent in Mr F. H. Dundas; Ching Foo is well represented by Mr J. G. Maine, and Princess Stephanie is charmingly played by Miss Emma Milsted. The chorus, dresses, and scenery are worthy of special mention.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr Jasper Redfern.—John Callan is a smart comedian, Wirson is seen in a clever equilibrist act; Leslie Murray gives a neat exhibition of card manipulation; Mdlle Rosini's miniature menagerie is very good; Le Brun and Irene are at home in their juggling act; M. Edgar presents a good gymnastic piece of work; and the Two Clarkes, Harry Dawbrey, Charlton Howarth, and the animated photographs complete a good bill.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long.—Mr C. Lubbock's company has occupied the boards this week, presenting in a lavish and elaborate manner the musical play called The Cherry Girl. Mr Harry Herbert, a first-rate comedian, as Moonshine and Happy Joe, helps the piece along, his dancing being exceedingly smart. Unfortunately at the opening performance Miss Elsie Molloy, the leading lady, was suffering from a severe cold, which prevented her as the Queen from doing her songs justice, but her winsome acting carried her through with undoubted success. Miss Dorothy Frostick as Pas Bas proves herself a finished juvenile dancer. A trio of youthful artistes are Master Harry Williams (Snowball), Little Decima Brooke (Dimples), and Master J. Saxo (the Rose of Riviera), each of whom shows ability that will surely develop with experience. Mr E. St. John Medley is good in the dual characters of Starlight and the Squire. As the two Chamberlains and Beadles Messrs Charles Seymour and F. Delane strive their best to assist in keeping the fun going. Mr Fred Le Franc portrays animal life as the monkey and horse in clever fashion. The artistic and humourous glee singing of the Avondale Quartette secures the loudest applause of the evening, and they are very popular. Good dancing by most of the principals is often forthcoming, in which also the efforts of Miss Lottie Stone's Troupe come in for their due share of approbation. The strong chorus and full orchestra under the direction of Mr Clement Locknane deserve commendation.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—Welcome indeed is the reappearance locally of Miss Millie Hylton, whose charming presence and finished rendering of her latest successes wins for her many additional admirers. Amber and Alber give one of the smartest comedy juggling turns ever witnessed here, and they obtain loud applause. Prominent are the talented Watson Family of vocal and instrumental repute, whose efforts gain them much approval. An old favourite is Oliver Conroy, comedian; the lady facial expert, Adelina, scores, particularly with her representation of Royal personages; Tom Parker, eccentric comedian and dancer, is well received; the Clayton Twins, assisted by two fair partners, return to amuse in a diverting sketch; Kloof and Ramsey's musical novelties always cause pleasure.

SYDNEY GARDENS.—With brilliant weather and a good bill Messrs Adeler and Sutton's Pierrots continue to delight large audiences. The fresh arrivals include that accomplished comedienne, Elsie Steadman, also J. H. Scotland, whose fine bass voice is always a pleasure to listen to. The excellent banjo playing of Olly Oakley is well received; Mr Frank Hook, comedian, is well to the fore with some capital songs; Archie Nash, entertainer, is a favourite. Mr Forshaw Kershaw is the pianist.

BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr James M'Cann.—Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr Charles V. France's company opened here on Monday with Whitewashing Julia. Mr Asheton Tonge filled the rôle of Mr William Stillingfleet with finished effect, and in the rôle of the heroine, Julia, Miss Ruth Maitland was exceedingly charming. One could not desire a better representative of the rôle of Lady Pinkney than the delightful actress Miss Kate Bishop, and a fine character sketch of the Hon. Edwin Pinkney was submitted by Mr Willox Cadogan, Mr Archibald M'Lean being the lawyer, Mr Samways, to the life. Mr H. Carter Bligh was well suited to the rôle of Hon. Bevis Pinkney, and praise is also due to Miss Marie Lohr for her capital representation of Trixie Blenkinsop. Admirable interpretations of Mrs Benbow and her daughter, Rosie, were furnished by Miss Kate Osborne and Miss Lillian Brennand. Six-and-Eightpence was the curtain-raiser.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr John P. Beardmore.—The chief attraction at this popular theatre is provided by the original Caledonian Boys, who on Monday were enthusiastically received. The cycle racing by Lotto and company on their unique track is of a sensational nature; Miss Nellie Lovell is a male impersonator of decided excellence; and the Brown and Kelly combination, in the comic sketch The Butler's Baby, cause roars of laughter. The Brothers Artois appear to advantage in their smart comedy bar act, and the Haywards are to be commended for their admirable act, A Dress Rehearsal. Miss Ada Cerito is a vivacious and clever comedienne; and Mr A. G. Spry is a most entertaining and funny comique. The bill is completed by Master Alec M'Nulty, juvenile vocalist.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brock.—Messrs Williams and Brown, clever comedians, head the bill here, and their humorous songs and witty patter have been enthusiastically received. Ben Brown and George Le Clerq appear in one of their screaming Negro sketches which has created roars of laughter; a novel turn is provided by Stave, described as "the Indian electric comedy artiste;" Miss Nellie Coleman is a wonderfully clever little comedienne, her character songs meeting with much success; Mr Tatton Hall is a really funny comique with capital songs; and the acrobatic feats executed by the De Kock Brothers are decidedly smart. Mr Norman French is one of the best eccentric dancers that has been seen here for many a day, and the bill is completed by Dome, the clay modeller, and Miss Georgina Leonard, comedienne.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—At this popular hall the Ernestine Trio are the chief attraction, and appear to the utmost advantage in their mirth-provoking sketch, The Yorkshire Lad, the audience being kept in roars of laughter. Mr Bob Stephenson, the clever Irish comedian and dancer, has been most successful with his capitally rendered character songs. The Five Foys stage their entertaining sketch, The Excursion Depôt, which is quite a feature; Royal Best is a marvellous facial expert; and Wallau, boy juggler, performs some difficult feats with consummate ease. The Sisters Bartholomew, vocalists and dancers, have been accorded a good reception; and Princess Lulu is an exceedingly clever transformation dancer. Also appearing are Billy Hubbard, comedian; and Mephisto, contortionist.

BERWICK-ON-TWEED.

QUEEN'S ROOMS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. M. Mather.—After an absence of three years Mr Edmund Tearle and company have again paid a visit to Berwick. He opened with The Three Musketeers. His D'Artagnan was a rollicking and daring adventurer. The company includes such well-known people as Miss Kate Clinton (Miladi), Miss Mary Campbell (Anne of Austria), Mr T. W. Benson (Boniface), Mr Frederick Barlow (King), Mr Edmund Grogan (Buckingham), and Mr William J. Miller (the Cardinal).

BILSTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—A London Actress is presented each evening by a first-rate company. Miss Emma Litchfield displays exceptional ability as Hilda Mannering; Messrs Stuart Cleveland (Sergeant-Major Crawford), Charles E. Leicester (Lieut. Kingston), and John Worth (Captain Mannering), are admirable exponents of their respective rôles. Mr Fred Tenaur is a clever representative of Moses Mendoza. Miss Louisa Millward as Biddy Maloney and Miss Maud Steeples as Mrs Skinner do well. As the policeman Lewis Mr Jack Clyde is distinctly good; and Miss Elsie Roberts handles the part of Phyllis Crawford very carefully. Mr Sam Wilford is funny as Pat Maloney.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—John Hart and H. Armitage's company, in The Never Never Land, forms an undeniable attraction. A fine performance is supplied by Mr Edmund F. Kennedy, who is, in every respect, an excellent Jack Mowbray. Mr Edward Rochelle is equally good as Nat Rudder, and the Tom Hewley of Mr Arthur Bolton is a most meritorious effort. Miss Caroline Barrett is an irreproachable Sybil, the somewhat difficult rôle of Sal Bendar is well played by Miss Julie Kennard, Lady Walgrove is appropriately represented by Miss Marion Fawcett, M. Simon D. Ord is efficient as Moses Wolff, and other competent artistes include Miss Margaret Parker, Mr Sidney Bancroft, Mr Selby Murrell, Mr John Hart, &c. The scenic effects are good.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Mr Douglas Bruce's combination in A Girl's Cross Roads is the attraction here. Mr George Galsford gives an effective and telling rendering of Jack Livingstone; Mr Wm. Frazer Brunner is an able exponent of the thankless part of Cuthbert Lumley, and Toby Turver is humorously played by Mr Will Corrie. Miss Lily Hammersley is a great success as Barbara Wade, and Mr W. E. Griffiths, Miss Ethel Bracewell, and Miss Kate Walfred appear with distinction.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—Valazzi, a clever juggler and equilibrist, is a leading turn, and Jimson's comedy animal act is well received; Miss Minnie Cunningham, an accomplished comedienne, is fulfilling a highly successful return engagement; and an excellent combination also includes Miss Lily Marney, the popular Irish comedienne; the Four Ramlos, in their acrobatic feats; Professor Bernar, in a clever marionette show; Miss Lillie Lonsdale, a talented soprano vocalist and a great favourite; Mr Ernie Myers, an entertaining comedian; Mr Barney Vox, ventriloquist; and Mr Sydney Lee, in his feats of magic.

BLACKBURN.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. H. Page.—The attraction here this week is provided by Mr T. Edward Ward's company, in the drama, Her Fatal Past. Mr Joseph Miliane submits a powerful and convincing portrayal as Mark Desmond, and Mr Edward De Vere is efficient as Leonard Fernside. Mr Wilson Coleman displays histrionic ability as Gilbert Fernside, and Messrs T. Edward Ward and Algie Spalding as Jonathan Nobbs and Dickey Bird create much amusement in their respective parts. Miss Helen Ingelow adequately fills the rôle of Belle De Lara, and Miss Ward makes a graceful and sympathetic Honor Symes.

BLACKPOOL.

HIS MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—My Lady Molly, played by Mr F. Mouillot's company, is again proving attractive here. The name-rôle is in the hands of Miss Beatrice Edwards, who sings and acts in capital style; Mr John T. MacCullum is exceedingly successful in the part of Mickey O'Dowd; and Miss Rita Everard does well as Alice Coverdale; Mr Harry T. Davies as Captain Romney; Mr Ernest Mozar as Lionel Bland; and Mr Augustus Cramer as Sir Miles Coverdale also give every satisfaction.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. Sergenson.—Mr George Edwardes's company is here this week with The Cingalee, and business is tremendous. Mr Rutland Barrington is the Boobhamba and Mr Frank Danby the Chambuddy Ram. The merits of both artists are warmly appreciated. Mr F. Pope Stamper is entrusted with the part of Harry Vereker, and sings his numbers with fine effect. Mr W. J. Manning is good as Sir Peter Loftus, and Mr Willie Ward, jun., creditably plays Mvamgah. Nanoya has a charming exponent in Miss Florence Smithson, and Miss Eva Sandford has a part that suits her in Peggy Sabine. The staging out-Edwardes's Edwardes; it is gorgeous. Mr C. J. Abud is a courteous acting-manager, who regrets that the seating capacity of the theatre is limited.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Co.; Manager, Mr T. P. Duignan.—Ada Colley, the Australian prima donna, tops the bill here this week. The Hoopers contribute a juggling turn, and the Bretons appear in a sketch. Lil Hartley is a smart comedienne, Earl and Earl are expert banjoists, Florence Deighton sings well, Dan Thomas is a clever comedian, the Falcons provide an acrobatic turn, and George Barnard is a popular vocalist. Reed and Lerne, the Sylvines, the Manzanares, and the Raies also appear.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller.—The programme here this week is one of the most popular of the season. Lydia Yeamans is an enormous favourite whose presence is felt at the box-office. Edwin Barwick is also a very clever comedian who is warmly welcomed, and the Motoring sketch supplied by Harry Tate's company simply convulses the audiences at every show. The other contributors are Florence Wood, comedienne; the Bros. Onda, acrobats; O'Neil and Torp, jugglers; Fred M'Arthur, mimic; Will Onda and company, pantomimists; and the Cycling Elliotts and the Seven Savonas, who are rightly described as musical marvels.

BLYTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr George E. Good.—Mr George Dance's excellent company, with the musical comedy, The Chinese Honeymoon, has met with a flattering reception. Hang Chow has a satisfactory exponent in Mr Frank A. Wood. Miss Jose Collins as Mrs Pineapple, and Mr Harry Brayne as Mr Pineapple are highly successful and receive repeated recalls. Mr Percy Yorke is an amusing Tom Hatherton, and Miss Marie Adair makes a charming Soo-Soo. A capable Hi Lung is found in Mr Leonard May, whilst Miss Alice Drummond scores well as Mrs Brown. Charmingly dressed and mounted, the piece is most enjoyable.

BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—Mice and Men has secured for Mr Forbes-Robertson and company a flattering reception, and the attempt, made in vain though it was, to squeeze a speech out of the popular actor at the conclusion was another tribute to an excellent performance. Mr Forbes-Robertson, in his finished and masterly essay of the guardian-scientist, is supported by Miss Gertrude Elliott, whom none could surpass in her impersonation of the foundling ward, Peggy. Miss Ada Mellon is successful in bringing out the points of Mrs Deborah, and Mr George Sumner as Roger Goodlake, Mr Frank Gilmore as Captain George Lovell, and Mr Ernest Cosham as Peter are successful. The Light that Failed has been given later in the week.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr V. Turner.—Amorelle has, for the second time of coming, created much of a furore among the Grand habitués. Mr Eric Thorne, with his welcome and mirth-provoking strut, plus his other resourceful devices, appears as successful as ever in his rôle of Dr. Crow. Miss Stella Gastelle once more charms with her delightful handling of the title-rôle. Mr Phil Carlton as the true lover scores high in the public's esteem, and Mr Newton Ide puts good work into the character of Francois. Mr Fred Seymour makes the part of Dotard duly prominent and popular, and the Misses Kitty Cavendish and Madge Avery are in favour as Lesbia and Marina respectively.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—Dare-Devil Dorothy is once more winning favour here, played by Mr Henry Swinerd's company, under the direction of Mr J. W. Cordiner. Miss Marjorie Cecil as the charming and robust heroine, Dorothy Montrose, acts and sings in a most acceptable manner, and Miss Kathleen Garnon plays with much skill the part of Ruth. Mr Wm. Francis Green as Captain George Fielding sustains his part in excellent style, and, moreover, sings "One touch of nature" with feeling. Mr Henry C. Ward as that consummate villain Captain Edward Dudley is most successful, and Miss Nelly Harcourt, who appears as Judith, is also responsible for the training of the children engaged in the cake-walk, &c. Mr Arthur Verne shines as Silas Crump.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—The Grip of Iron proves as awe-inspiring and just as attractive as ever, and Messrs E. H. Knight and Geo. Denham's company has been accorded a hearty welcome. Mr Fred Powell as the central character, Jagon, otherwise Simmonet, plays the part with all its old and grim repulsiveness, a repulsiveness which attracts even while it repels. Mr Charles Grant does justice to the rôle of Lorentz; Mr Geo. Denham is successful as Paul; Mr Harry Agar-Lyons makes the most of his chances as the detective, Alphonse; and Mr John Brittain as Dodot, Mr J. G. Stevenson as the lawyer, Mr Andrew Liston as "the smiler," and Mesdames Georgie De Lara and Hilda Baynton as Cora and Marie respectively do well.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—The Rich and Poor of London engages the present sympathies of the Carltonian house, and that in the fullest sense of the word. Messrs Preston and Doherty have presented a powerful company, which does excellent justice to the plot, and Messrs Sidney C. Cranston and Sidney Dench, under whose joint direction the play is produced, are very popular as Gussy Lamb and Daniel Drake respectively. Miss Dora Dench as May Braithwaite has acted like a true heroine, and Mr Harry Hiller as Dr. Leonard Morton enjoys absolute confidence. Mr Andrew Money is marked out as the villain, Mark Stanley; and Miss Belle Tilbury, Marie Ramez, Sybil Viney, Harry Tilbury, and J. Laurier score in their well simulated parts.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard.—The Lady Slavey appears in our midst at frequent intervals, and is invariably successful in drawing large audiences, this visit proving no exception to the rule. Mr William Greet's company is in evidence in the present instance, and Miss Addie Lennard as Phyllis acts, dances, and sings in the most approved manner. Miss Millicent Marsden shows off the airs and graces of Flo Honeydew charmingly; Mr Frank Sherlock as Roberts is a generous contributor of mirth; and Mr Harry Walsh as Major O'Neill gains favour. Mr Walter T. Hybert shines as Lavender; Mr Allan Morris is acclaimed as the millionaire; and the Misses Jean Van Dalle and Ethel Ashton are included in the cast.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—The star turn this week is that popular comedian, Harry Randall, who is delighting packed houses. Another welcome turn is that of Florrie Forde. The operatic selection submitted by Les Voces is far above the average; the Tribune Trio appear in a good sketch The Cheerful Idiot, which goes well. Some smart juggling is presented by Henry Kaiser and Kahn and Kahn; Rafayette's performing dogs are wonderfully trained; Marie Reeve is an entertaining comedienne; and Harry Sheldon, tenor; the Parros Bros., equilibrists; and Abel and Welsh, grotesque comedians, add to the success of a brilliant programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Albert Bushell.—The Soldiers' Promenade is the title of the scena presented by Leonard Barry and his company of comedy artists. Some excellent items are rendered by the Sisters Jonghman, the lady meister singers, while the Stella Quartet, vocalists and dancers, are equally successful. The Brothers Laurie go through their acrobatic performance in a manner which denotes experts, as also do the Three Novellos in their tumbling act. Harry Bedford, Arthur Forrest, the Haldyne Duo, and Forest and King are as humorous as ever. James Shingleton, the Staffordshire collier, completes the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford.—De Biere and company, with their marvellous illusion entertainment, are drawing full houses, while Hardeen, the handcuff king, is paying a return visit. J. W. Churchill is well encored for his songs and patter, Dave Marion is also responsible for much laughter. Belrose and De Velin are an operatic turn of a high order, while Ida Gladstone has a fine contralto voice. The Bob Hanlon Troupe are exceptionally clever in their flying trapeze act. Joe Almasio, the jumping juggler, is smart. Tray and Rich, comedians; and Marie Elsie are highly appreciated.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr Edw. Foster.—Sam Redfern is well received. Jerry Hart and Beatrice Leo have a long scena, which is heartily appreciated. George Gulliver, ventriloquist; the Desmores, jugglers; the Sisters Cora; Tom O'Neill, comedian; Sybil Montague, ballad vocalist; Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian; the Wurtenburg Bros., foot speciality; and Carle and Carmanelli, in their novelty "Animated Electricity," are also in the programme.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Manageress, Miss Gladys Gilchrist.—Mr Sanderson Moffat's No. 1 company is here with A Woman Adrift. Mr S. Moffat successfully appears in the dual rôle of Don Leo Castro and Ferdinand Castro; Miss Phyllis Hamilton's interpretation of Cora Leigh is excellent; Miss Phyllis Grahame gives every satisfaction by her clever performance of Rupert Ingleby; Mr Leslie Beaufort submits a capital portrayal of Sir John Ingleby; Miss Violet Keand shows experience in the rôles of Lady Ingleby and Stella; Miss Maud Merrick is a sprightly Molly. The comedy is ably accounted for by Mr Watson Hume as Dennis, Mr W. H. Mackersey as Roderick, and Mr Charles Wilson as Jibbs. East Lynne was announced for Thursday and Friday nights.

BOLTON.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon.—A strong company is appearing here, made up of George Gilbey, character patter comedian; Will Candlish, black comedy musical speciality; Elsie Claire, soprano vocalist; Lupino Brothers, eccentric comedians and speciality artistes; the Maples, duettists and speciality dancers; Ernest Rees, droll comedian; Abadaroffs, prehistoric mountebanks; the Brothers Carr, head and hand balancers; Percy Farrimond, singing collier; Conan and Doyle, comedians; and the Imperial bioscope.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Mr W. Hamilton's latest excursions to the Far East opened here on Monday for a three weeks' (annual) stay to a large audience. In addition to the excursions a good variety company is engaged, including Mdlle. Raffin's troupe of performing monkeys; the Three Sisters Urma on the trapeze; the Harlem Brothers, manipulators of rifles, novelty acrobats, and sand dancers; La Belle Idalia, with feats of equipoise on the electric cable; Tom Le May, eccentric musical clown; together with the latest living pictures. Mr Claude Howell is again the guide and lecturer.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Mr Bert Coote's company is here this week in The Fatal Wedding. Miss Marie Housley plays the part of Mabel Wilson with great feeling; Mr Wilfred Payne is a dignified Howard Wilson; Miss Beatrice De Burgh is effective as Cora Williams; and Robert Curtis is well played by Mr Leyton Cancellor. Miss Ida Valli is very successful as the Little Mother. The humorous element is supplied by Miss Harriet Clifton and Mr Charles H. Kenney, who as Bridget and Toto cause much laughter. Mr Fred Dobell as Peter Schwartz and Mr Harry Welbeck as Policeman O'Reilley are equally successful. Mr Arthur Law-Raynor is good as the Rev. Dr. Lanceford. Mr W. Devin deserves praise for his well-trained choir of children. The songs by Miss M. Barber and Little Nora are much approved of, and Miss Gladys Rose Jones recites with considerable ability. The piece is capitally staged.

BOURNEMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee, Mr Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company is here in Cousin Kate. Miss Lilias Earle plays with charming grace and natural ease and naïveté as Kate Curtis. Mr Yorke Stephens acts the part of Heath Desmond with ease and characteristic humour. Mr Walter Ringham capitally hits off the idiosyncrasies of the Rev. James Bartlett. Miss Hilda Honiss is demure and pleasing as Amy Spencer. Miss Helen Leyton is well suited as Mrs Spencer. Master Vyvian Thomas is amusing as the irrepressible Bobby Spencer, and Miss Betty Castle as Jane completes the cast. A Case for Eviction, in which Mr Walter Bingham, Miss Betty Castle, and Miss Hilda Honiss appear, precedes the comedy.

BRADFORD.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—It is some years since Mr George Daventry's military drama, The Indian Mutiny was last presented here, and the piece was warmly welcomed on Monday, when Mr Frank E. Burdett's company gave a stirring representation. Mr H. Ryeland Leigh gives a convincing performance of the part of Lieut. Manley, Captain Manley is well taken by Mr H. G. Brandon, and Nebu Singh is a vigorous and picturesque effort on the part of Mr Villiers Stanley. Miss Maud Digby as Guz-nah is effective and powerful.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Crawford Swann.—The fine programme here this week is opened by Phillips and Terry in a humorously acted sketch, The Revolt of Man, followed by Wilson Hallett, the clever whistler and imitator of children's voices. Baker and Balfe come next with a clever performance on xylophones; Stelling and Revell give a screamingly funny turn on the triple bar; a marvellous example of animal training is shown by Charles Baron; Paul Conchas, the Herculean juggler, reappears in his wonderful feats; Phil Ray's patter is irresistible; Horace Golden provides a bewildering performence as an illusionist; and the American Bioscope is responsible for a fund of amusement.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr E. Harrison.—A prominent feature of the entertainment here this week is the humorous turn by Will H. Fox, "Paddywhiski," who is skilful and vastly entertaining with his piano and patter. Ruby Winstone, comedienne, commands well-deserved success, and Howe and Ardie are clever acrobats, whose performance teems with fun. Ted Young's songs find favour; Ada Twibell, comedienne, also contributes successfully to the programme; and H. E. High is a good eccentric comedian. In a capital pantomimic turn, Hot Time for One, the Five Bon-Bons are distinctly clever and amusing; and Walton and Lester in their diverting Chinese burlesque juggling, &c., are a source of much amusement. Animated pictures are shown by Pallister's American Bioscope.

BRIDLINGTON.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—Mr Arthur Chennery and his Willow-Pattern Serenaders, who have been so popular at the Oriental Café during the season, took their benefit here on the 16th inst., when they had the assistance of most of the talent from the Parade, Spa, and Café. The Willow Patterns, in addition to their usual business, played an original sketch, The Willow-Pattern Tea Shop. Miss Amy Brookes' songs were charmingly rendered, and Miss Zoe Styles was equally good. Mr E. Lu Pike and Mr Arthur Chenery gave some amusing ditties, and the whole programme was well received. Mr H. Flockton Foster's entertainers took their benefit on Wednesday, and provided a big programme.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr Charles Palmer.—The popularity of Herr Sigmund Winternitz and his Royal Viennese orchestra is still testified to by the large audiences, who are delighted with the admirable rendering of first-class musical programmes by this talented body of musicians. The vocalist at the promenade concerts this week is Mr William Riley, whose baritone voice is highly effective. The Flockton Foster costume entertainers still draw large audiences to their "show," and give good programmes of songs, duets, and concerted pieces.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Henry Hague.—This week Mr Sydney James and his Strolling Players are the attraction. Miss Madeline Rossiter was soon a favourite with the large audiences, her dancing being very clever, while her duets and dances with Mr G. W. Desmond were very artistic. Mr Desmond's songs and dances were well received, and Mr Sydney James, who is an old favourite at the Spa, was applauded for his songs and whistling solos. Mr Oldbury Brough gives some capital musical sketches, and is an able accompanist.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs Beanland, Bath, and Danton. Novelty and variety continue to rule at the "Waterloo's" summer resort, this week's programme including the amusing absurdity Madame Lavinia's Orchestra. A Beauty Show is also billed, and the genial trio of lessees are keeping up the good reputation they have enjoyed here for years.

BRIGHOUSE.

ALBERT THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr T. Morton Powell; Business-Manager, Mr Martin Manley.—The return visit of Mr S. F. Cody's American company, in The Klondyke Nugget, has received a large share of public patronage this week. The Cody Brothers are smart in their shooting acts, whilst the specially trained ponies go through their performances very cleverly.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Miss Ellen Terry and company opened here on Monday, with The Merchant of Venice. Miss Ellen Terry gave a charming and thoroughly artistic portrayal of Portia, and evoked very enthusiastic applause. Mr Alfred Bucklaw also achieved great success as Shylock; while Mr Charles Thursby made an admirable Antonio, and Mr Matheson Lang a very effective Bassanio. Mr Harcourt Williams' Gratiano was well played; Miss Audrey Campbell's Nerissa and Miss Hutin Britton's Jessica merit warm praise. The play was superbly staged. The programmes for the week also included Much Ado About Nothing, The Good Hope, and Nance Oldfield.

GRAND THEATRE.—Under the control of Mr Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr W F. Crowe.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company is here this week with In Old Kentucky. Mr George F. Steel is distinctly successful in his enactment of Frank Harley; Miss Amy F. Hermann is a delightfully winsome Madge Brierley; Mr Alfred S. Bankes presents a capital character study as Colonel Beauchamp; and Mr Eric Hudson gives a powerful impersonation of Jasper Grafton; while Miss Alice Smith as Minnie and Miss Beatrice Shirley as Barbara Grafton show able acting. The specialities introduced are warmly appreciated.

AQUARIUM.—Manager, Mr W. J. Hardy; Secretary, Mr S. H. Andrews.—Under the direction of Mr Philip Lascelles, the Lascelles, entertainers, are sustaining some popular programmes here this week. Comediettas, banjo and musical sketches, mimicry, dances, duets, and choruses are given with great success, and the efforts of Mr and Mrs Philip Lascelles, Mr Alfred Field Fisher, Miss Kate Ward, and Master Leopold Lustig are warmly applauded. Their performances are supplemented by a series of animated pictures.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—The Pantzer Brothers, marvellous head and hand balancers; Jack Lorimer, comedian and entertainer; the Rambler Troupe, in their juggling act; Ethel Ra Leslie, in "snacks from grand opera;" Spry and Austin, vaudeville artistes; Johnny Gilmore, "the quaint Australian; Roze and Calvert, comedy artistes; Alma Obrey, comedienne and burlesque actress; Kitty Clover's company, in Not a Word; Bob Baxter, "the genial one;" Sterling and Love, musical comedy artistes; and the Alhambra pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—Miss May Edouin and Fred Edwards, in A Bachelor's Dream; Vansart, "the man with the grip of iron;" Brown and Nevarro, American speciality artistes; Jules Keller, "the human enigma;" Harry M. Stewart, Hebrew comedian; Dion Wade, quaint singer; Miss Alexandra Dagmar, burlesque artiste; Lalla Selbini, trick cyclist; Arthur Slater, siffleur and mimic; and Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas, in the musical duologue Her Birthday.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr C. Thompson Ford; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Miss Annie Stalman and company are here this week with One Summer's Day. Mr Drew Mackintosh is seen to great advantage as Major Dick Rudyard; Miss Annie Stalman (Mrs Drew Mackintosh) submits an admirable portrayal of the gipsy Chiara; Captain Herbert Manley achieves much success as Theodore Bendyshe; Miss Marguerita Delmore makes a charming Maysie; and Miss Nancy Harding is a vivacious Irene.

WEST PIER PAVILION.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Mr Leonard Pagden and company are here this week with When We Were Twenty-one. Mr Leonard Pagden gives an excellent portrayal of Richard Carewe; Mr Orlando Barnett makes an admirable Sir Horace Plumely; Mr James P. E. Hussey acquits himself very effectively as the "Imp;" Miss Katie Johnson is a charming Phyllis; and Miss Madge M'Intosh acts with great skill as the "Firefly." Able assistance is given by Mr J. Knox-Orde, Mr Howard Brooke, Mr W. D. Fazan, Mr Edward H. Bowen, and Miss Dorothy Garth.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—The bill here includes a sensational play in five scenes, entitled A White Demon, in which Miss Florence Tench has made a great impression in her character of May Elliott. Mr Charles Freeman as Dr. Richard Leyton, Mr A. J. Hastings as Robert Elliott, Mr Will White as Jeremiah, and Miss Ivy Derry as Mary De Bean also work well. Pianoforte solos by Kopski are much applauded; Harry Wenburn, comedian, has some songs which are well received; and the impersonations by Syd May are appreciated. Other excellent turns are given by Lil Esplin, comedienne; Mona M'Donald, comedienne and vocalist; Fred Bronte, actor-vocalist; and Ryde and Beeman, comedy acrobatic artistes. Some good Matagraph pictures conclude a most enjoyable entertainment.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr John Waller.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is here with the Two Little Vagabonds. Opening on Monday to a good house, a favourable reception was accorded this popular drama. Mr Talbot Homewood gives a finished representation of Geo. Thornton. Captain Darville is tellingly represented by Mr Douglas Cecil, and Mr Harry B. Major acquits himself creditably as John Scarth. Mr Hesslegrave as Bill Mullins proves himself a good comedian, and, along with Miss Eleonora Papera (Biddy Mullins) fairly convulses the house. Mr C. W. Crowe is well suited as Leeson, and Mr Chas. F. Doe (Dido Bunce) and Mr Chas. W. Hughes (the Coughdrop) both do well. Barbara Scarth finds a good exponent in Miss Edna Eden and Miss Kate Hasselgrave as Sister Randall is a typical nurse. Dick and Wally are pleasingly acted by Miss Freda Ettrick and Miss Violet Carr respectively. Miss Elene Lonsdale is worthy of a special word of praise for her Marion Thornton, which is a pathetic and telling piece of emotional acting.

BUXTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Arthur Willoughby.—For Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week we had the Hutchison company in A Country Mouse. Mr Law's sparkling comedy met with a good reception and, perhaps needless to say where the Hutchison name appears, was faultlessly played. Mr Sydney Stirling still appears most successfully in the part of the Hon. Archibald Vyse and Mr Charles Harley repeats his sound and efficient reading of John Bowlby, M.P. Mr Arnold Lucy is admirably cast as the amorous little Duke of St. Kitts, and Mr Wilson Lumley plays with discretion the part of Lord Robert Wykeham. Mr J. E. Watson makes a capital part out of Jephcot. Miss Dorothy Drake is exceptionally good as Lady Sylvia, and Miss Evie Erskine is successful as Violet Aynsley. Miss Emily Levettes extracts much humour from the part of Mrs Cropper, and Miss Dido Drake is quite irresistible as Angela. Mr and Mrs Kendal opened on Thursday.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's very capable company is here with the sporting farce, The Money-Makers, which is capitally staged. On Monday evening the play went remarkably well, and caused much amusement. Dot and Mabel are excellently played by Miss Muriel Ashwynne, her original part, and Miss Lorna Lawrence. Bella has a clever exponent in Miss Frances Davie, Miss Marie Griffiths presents a good study of Mrs Bannerman, her original part, and Miss Violet Ley is stately and effective as Baby Berkeley. Mr Frank Lacy acts well as Captain Archie Fitzgerald, Mr Edward Bonfield is advantageously placed as Charles Clifton, Mr Allen Thomas is highly successful as Matthew M'Dougall, and Mr Townsend Whitling and Mr C. H. Hartley distinguish themselves as Fred and a Butcher. The performance commences with Two in a Trap, the amusing curtain-raiser, being nicely played by Miss Violet Ley and Mr Frank Lacy.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Messrs Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is appearing here in The Village Blacksmith, the interesting drama being nicely staged. Mr Sam Livesey presents a fine exposition of John Strong; Miss Ethel Kay is equally successful in the sympathetic part of Kate Strong; Mr Joseph Carter acts with considerable power as Capt. Leo; Miss Maggie Edwards is effective as Ruth; Mr Frank Harrison acts with considerable care as Lucas Marler; Jeremiah and Sal Parkins have full justice done to them by Mr T. E. Marshall and Mrs F. C. Livesey; Miss Edith Giddens displays humour as Martha Mopps, as also does Mr George V. Campbell as Billy Twig. The sensational wrestling match in the closing scene obtains prolonged applause.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—The George Bonhair Gregory Troupe of Risley acrobats obtain much applause for their clever feats; Edwin Boyde, comedian, is appreciated; Miss May Evans, comedienne, has some good songs, and is popular with all parts of the house; R. H. Douglas is successful with a monologue, and does some smart dancing; the M'Connell Trio have a good speciality, "The Airship;" George Antill, comedian and dancer, is successful; Miss E la Retford does a pleasing coon song and dance; Miss Elly Adair, comedienne and dancer, obtains well-earned applause; Grant and Allen are amusing eccentric comedians; and the Superba Quartet scores heavily in song and dance. The performance concludes with pleasing animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—There is a good programme here, the artistes including Miss Rosina Casselli and her wonderfully trained Mexican Chihuahua dogs, the pretty little animals presenting a most interesting and amusing performance. De Gracia's elephants evince most careful training, their various acts being both comic and novel. The Jackson Family are very successful with their refined musical entertainment; Miss Marie Blythe sings remarkably well, she has a fine contralto voice, and her songs are selected with much taste; Miss Marie Gibson, soprano vocalist, sings well, and with expression; Sibb and Sibb are experts on the trapeze; the Australian Twin Andersons (Lillie and Minnie), are smart skipping-rope dancers and vocalists; and the Waldrons amuse with song, dance, and patter. The performance concludes with some effective animated pictures.

BURY (LANCS.)

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Mr F. R. Benson and his Shakespearian company opened here on Monday in Hamlet. The Prince of Denmark becomes a very real personage indeed as portrayed by Mr Benson. Mr B. A. Pittar is excellent as Claudius. Mr Arthur Whitby is successful as the Ghost. Mr H. O. Nicholson's acting as Polonius is effective. The part of Laertes is ably sustained by Mr Cyril Keightley, and Mr Clarence Derwent scores as Horatio. Mrs Benson is an admirable Ophelia. Miss Gertrude Scott plays gracefully the part of the Queen of Denmark. Othello, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Macbeth, Taming of the Shrew, The Merchant of Venice, and Richard III. are also in the week's bill.

CAMBRIDGE.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—On Monday night this place was opened for the season with a return visit of the ever popular play The Silver King. Messrs G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company was responsible for the production and gave every satisfaction. Mr Melford's Wilfrid Denver is well known, and on Monday he did full justice to the rôle. Miss Emelie Polini also had a part in the unfortunate wife that suited her, and was most successful. Jaikes was faithfully portrayed by Mr C. C. Glanton. Mr Charles Levey appeared as the Spider. Mr Arthur H. Rooke was excellent as Coombe. Mr Warris Lindon was also to the fore as Baxter. Mr James L. Power played Corkit very well indeed, and Miss Phyllis Dailley was a stately Olive Skinner. All the remaining characters of the long cast were in capable hands.

CARDIFF.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General-Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—Mr Tom H. Taylor's company is here this week in the new drama by Walter Melville, entitled The Female Swindler. The leading characters of Lu Valroy and Jack Coulson are excellently undertaken by the charming actress Miss Violet Ellicott and the popular artist, Mr W. S. Hartford. The cast also includes Mr George Unwin as Harold Travers, Mr Weldon Atherstone as Geoffrey Warden, Mr Rule Pyott as Mikestein, Mr Luke Forster as Billy Binks, and the Misses Florrie Kelsey, Ada Maud, and Wills.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—Mr Bransby Williams, in his dramatic episode entitled 87; or, the Veteran's Birthday, is attracting unusually large houses. London's favourite, Harry Ford, and the eccentric juggler, W. C. Fields, also present their successful turns, while other names on the programme are Marguerite Broadfoote, the charming comedienne; Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer; the Brothers Cavallini, in their eccentric parodies; the Banduria Quintet, expert mandolinists and guitarists; Belle Braham, pictorial songstress; Die Schützenlieserl'n Quartet, sweet singers; and Barrère and Jule, originators of the unique parallel bars.

CHELTENHAM

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr H. Oswald Reiford.—Mr Tree's company is here in The Darling of the Gods. Miss Lillian Stafford as Yo-San holds the sympathies of the audience throughout; Mr G. W. Anson as Zakkuri admirably portrays the grim cruelty of the character; Mr Gerald Kay Souper represents the Japanese lover, Kara, as a finely heroic figure, using his elocutionary powers with telling effect; his poor rival, Tanda-Tanji, is well taken by Mr P. R. Goodyer; Miss Augusta Haviland as the scorned Geisha subtly sketches her subsidiary tragedy; Mr Ernest Stallard as Kato is convincing; and Miss Imra Foldi as Yo-San's maid and Mr Cecil Trestllian as her dumb servant are good. The mise-en-scène is the most elaborate ever seen here.

CHESTER

ROYALTY.—Proprietor, Mr Milton Bode; Resident-Manager, Mr H. Burgess Harries.—The time-honoured East Lynne this week appeals successfully to the popular parts of the house. Mr Henry Dundas has brought with him a capable company, with Miss Lilian Dundas as Lady Isabel and himself as Archibald Carlyle.

CASTLEFORD.

ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—Mr James Willard's company is this week playing here, in In the Shadows of Night. Mr Howard L. Tracy plays Gordon Allington in gentlemanly style; as Clifford York Mr Hamilton Deane is a cool and polished villain; Tom Nainby finds a most capable representative in Mr Chisholm Taylor; and an admirable bit of character-acting comes from Mr Archie Selwyn as Joe Jackson, an aged postman. Mr Selwyn is also successful as the Rev. Nathaniel Hope. Mr Fred Norburn may be credited with an able and clever representation of Jake Grudgewell. A neat piece of acting comes from Mr Arthur Jewitt as Inspector Manners, and Mr Ern Carlton is well placed as Farmer Woodstock. Miss Nellie Sheffield gains the good opinion of her audience as Molly Woodstock, her performance being particularly bright and lively. As Bob, a little tramp, Miss Millie Gordon is a warm favourite. Miss May Richardson is sincere and sympathetic as Violet Kingston.

CHATHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr Geo. G. Ridley.—Mr C. Lubbock's company is here this week in The Flood Tide, with Mr Wm. Sequin as Captain Champion, Mr Maitland Marler as George Wellington Clipp, Madame De Naucaze as Baroness Pitchioli, and Miss Marie Wright as Polly Champion.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr Frank J. Donne.—The leading attraction here takes the form of smart evolutions by Captain Bevan's troupe of Gordon Highlanders; Gilroy and Gross please with sand dances; a capital display is made by the Three Sisters Selwyn, who find many admirers; the Edisonograph continues to entertain with animated pictures; and Andy Fagan, comedian; Dora Clifford, comedienne; Elvo and Evelyn, vocalists and dancers; and Dan Kirton, singer and clog-dancer, also appear.

CHESTERFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr Holbery Hardy.—Mr John F. Preston's company is appearing here with Rogues of the Turf, under the personal direction of Mr George R. Montford. Miss Gertrude Godart gives a clever impersonation of Marion. Miss Susie Fradelle portrays with sympathy the part of Nellie Flaxman. Miss Mabelle F. Barlow is a vivacious Phyllis Warzell. Mr George R. Montford and Mr Harry H. Rignold as Captain Dudley Clinton and Moses Solomons are good. Mr Harry Phillips is commendable as Joe Flaxman, as are also Mr Alfred Wade as Steve Burton and Mr Ernest R. Allen as Arthur Somerton. Mr Harry Benson as Sam Flaxman gains rounds of applause for his clever acting and dancing and his singing of "Bill Bailey." A feature that adds to the success of the piece is the introduction of a stud of racehorses.

MEMORIAL HALL.—Mr Henry Foxwell's company opened here on Monday with Shadows of a Great City. Mr Howell Travis in the rôle of the hero, Tom Cooper, gives an admirable performance; Mr Charles Vivian well depicts the villainous George Benson; Mr Basil Mitchell as Arkwright makes the most of the part; Mr Foxwell presents a capital rendering of the character of the pawnbroker, Abe Nathan; Mr Newton Pearce deserves high praise for his acting of Jim Farren; Miss Sheila Walsh in the dual-rôle of Annie and Nellie Standish is worthy of special mention; and Miss Mary Kilpack is much admired for the manner in which she portrays Biddy Roonan. The minor parts are in capable hands, and the scenery is excellent.

CHORLEY (LANCS).

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr G. T. Sante; Secretary, Mr J. Clay.—Messrs H. B. Levey and J. H. Walter's juvenile company is here this week with the pantomime Beauty and the Beast. The pantomime is admirably mounted, and the dresses are of a very superior description. As Prince Charming Miss M. Hardacre is deserving of great praise for her excellent rendering; Miss Lottie Harper is particularly efficient as Maid Marion; Silver Star, the good spirit, is charmingly played by Miss May Gibson, whose rendering of the numerous songs allotted to her is highly appreciated; Miss D Brough as Pansy is effective; Miss La Pettie La Ray does well as Will Scarlet; Masters Dan Dougherty and George Swinhoe are excellent as the Ugly Sisters; and Master Joe Conway is capital as Short Tim. Messrs Levy and Walters have been exceptionally fortunate in "finding" Master Paddy Mills, a young comedian, whose fine performance as Long Jim displays talent of a high order. Miss Kitty Rafferty plays Beauty with success; and Miss Nella Valvona is a skilful dancers. The Marguerita Quartet are also good.

CLYDEBANK.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Wilson.—This week we are having a return visit from Dr. Walford Bodie, assisted by his clever vaudeville company. The doctor is as entertaining as ever, and his turns are enthusiastically received by large audiences. He is ably assisted by the following artists, who all do well:—Mr Norman Mills, actor-vocalist; Sisters Lyle, duettists and dancers; Tom Dewar, comedian; Miss Marie Walford, instrumentalist; La Petite Bella, burlesque actress; Helen Henri, vocalist; the Garden Troupe of dancers; Les Fontaines, in a marionette show; and last, but by no means least, Little Dolly Robson, the child vocalist, from Coatbridge, whom the doctor has trained well.

COATBRIDGE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Mary Watson; Manager, Mr C. B. Fountaine.—Mr James Stillwell and company are appearing here on a first visit with Queen of the Night. Mr A. E. Campbell successfully portrays Frank Cavendish, M.D.; Mr James Stillwell gives a powerful rendering of Philip Stoneleigh; Mr F. Thorpe-Tracey makes a good Old Briskett; Mr Edgar Morgan ably enacts Adolphus Briskett; and Mr Paul E. Teulon submits an excellent character-sketch of David Pentreath. Miss V. St. Lawrence gives a talented impersonation of Paulina; Miss Irene Tracey makes the most of the part of Dick, a waif; and Miss Catherine Barnett is successful as Maude Sylvester.

TOWN HALL.—Walker and Company's Royal Cinématograph Company appeared here on Monday and Tuesday, and drew great crowds. The following artistes gave able support:—Mr George Neil, tenor; Madame Lizzie Hunter, contralto; Mr Scott Skinner, violinist; and Mr John Allan, organist and accompanist.

COLNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Gerald Harding.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company appeared here on Monday in The Plucky Nipper. Miss Carlton plays the part of Nipper very successfully. As Ina Fenwick Miss Fanny Morse is well received, her singing being remarkably good. The rôle of the villain is embodied by Mr Edward Fryer, and as the hero Mr A. F. Dudley plays well. Tommy Atkins is in the capable hands of Mr Douglas Campbell, who is decidedly humorous. Miss Esther Lamonte deserves praise for the way in which she performs the part of the blind girl. Mr Ernest Nugent, Mr Claude Kingston, Mr W. Anderson, and Mr Edward Surrey are also in the cast.

CONSETT.

NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr Lloyd Clarance.—Mr Sydney Vereker's company is here this week in The Red Signal. Mr Chas. V. Sandford as Sir Otto Darkwood and Mr Alfred Allen as Jack Darkwood submit creditable performances; Mr John Levey gives a touching delineation of the part of Peter Sorrell; Miss Rosa Lehmann as May Sorrell is really good; and as Florence Culver Miss Norah Carronne gives entire satisfaction. Mr Sydney Vereker in his clever impersonation of the part of Sammy Gay is ably assisted by Miss Berta Hall as Jenny Jones.

CORK.

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—This week Mr Henry Johnston's company occupied the theatre in the musical play, entitled The Houp-La Girl. As Prince of Felsenburg Mr Thos. Barry sang with much taste; as Lieutenant Lambton Mr Launcelot Usher was good; and Mr Jack Durant made a pleasing Frank; Miss Florence Brandon as La Belle Rosiere was most interesting; Miss Bella Fossette capably took the part of Miss Matilda Brokins; and the Rosie Rice Quartet gave some capital speciality dances.

COVENTRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—Mr George Dance's excellent company in The Duchess of Dantzic is at the above house this week. Miss Rita Presano scores a great success as Sans Gêne, who is decidedly witty; Miss Alice Coverick is captivating as Renee De St. Mezard; Miss Mabel Bailey is stately as the Empress Josephine; Miss Edith Carlyle and Miss May Harris are respectively entrusted with Caroline Murat and Pauline, sisters of Napoleon; Lizette, a maid, is in the capable hands of Miss Amy Burton; Mr Frederick Moyes shows great force of character as Napoleon; Mr Albert Chapman is equally successful as Francois Lefebvre; and Mr T. C. Maxwell, who is an old Coventry favourite, is successful as Adhemar (Vicomte De Bethune). Mr Colin Mackay proves very funny as Papillon, a Court milliner; and Mr Ralph Forster is creditable as Captain Regnier.

CREWE.

CROOK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Wallace Davidson.—Mr Doc Watson's No. 1 company of Naval Troubadours are here this week in a serio-comic extravaganza entitled Boys of the British Empire, and amongst those specially worthy of note are Doc Watson, comedian; the Abadaroffs; the Decameo Troupe of clever gymnasts; Haroldo, club swinger, &c.; and Esk, comic juggler.

CROYDON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr Reginald Lawrence.—Messrs Edward A. Coventry and John R. Collins's company is giving amusing renderings at the Grand of Thoroughbred and Cutting Out a Prize. In the first mentioned Miss Ivy Hertzog takes a prominent position as the Hon. Wilhelmina Curlingham; Miss Mary Smith is commendable as Mrs Rimple; and Miss Katherine Parry renders useful aid as Delia Rimple. Mr Richard Boleyn scores all along the line as Lord Sandacre; Mr Percy Bell puts in some good work as John Rimple; Mr Edward A. Coventry is seen to advantage as the Hon. Blenkinsop Carlingham; Mr John Bradbury is at his best in the role of Jebb Tosh; and Mr Julian Royce is in every way a suitable A. M. Decker.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr H. D. Lyle.—The Silver Cross is winning approval here as played by Messrs Marston and Buckstone's company. Miss Maud Western acts with judgment as Ida Adams; Miss Cissy Glenney is a satisfactory Laura Beechcroft; Miss Poppy Denby is admirable as Sally Beedles; Miss Edie Sinclair is in her element as Mrs Hemily Enrietta Fudge; Mr Frederick A. Marston makes a success of the part of Ben Adams; Mr W. A. Buckstone capably impersonates the character of the Rev. Nicholas Frewin; Mr Syd Bazley is quaint and curious as Tomkyns Quinton; the Sisters Vell are encored in songs, dances, and mandoline solos; and the remaining parts are in good hands.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—The bill-of-fare here is up to the mark. Dandy George and his clever dog, Rosie, come in for quite an ovation; Billie Barlow, comedienne, is as bright and fascinating as ever; the Bale Troupe of acrobatic cyclists give a wonderful act; the Brothers Lang are expert and comical knockabout comedians; Bert Gilbert, comedian, is good; Tony and Flo Vernon, in their paper-tearing act, are much liked; the Two Bostons as novelty showmen are very quaint; the Brothers Brook, comedians, are well up in patter and business; and the Sisters Brand, serios and dancers; Stevens and Stevens (Ernest and Lily), in comedy and dancing; and Rose Waller, comedienne, deserve a word of praise. Mr Jay is an untiring manager who looks well after his patrons.

DOUGLAS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Alfred Hemming; Business Manager, Mr T. R. Wood.—The Cherry Girl was played here on Monday by Mr C. Lubbock's company. Miss Katie May as the Queen was delightful. Mr Frank Lincoln as Moonshine, afterwards Happy Joe, displayed much talent. Miss Helen Hart was charming as Pansy, the cherry seller. Messrs James and Ibberson were comical as the two Chamberlains. The Steinway Quartet contributed some pretty singing. The dancing of the Four Chameleons was excellent.

GAIETY THEATRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Brittain.—The New Clown is the attraction here. Mr Stanley Cooke, an actor of capacity, makes Lord Cyril Garston a most lovable character. Mr Fred Paul as Captain Jack is also telling. The Clown of Mr Fred Lake reeks of the sawdust, and Mr Herbert Greville as the Ringmaster recalls the days of Ducrow. The female characters in this pretty play are quite subordinate, but Miss Katie Yates, Miss Evelyn Maxwell, and Miss Violet Greville do well. The scenery and appointments are effective.

PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Limited; Manager and Secretary, Mr Charles Fox, jun.—There is an attractive programme presented here. Harry Wood's orchestra looms large as an incentive to visit the Palace. The alternative inducements are also strong. Mr George Burton's Serenaders, who perform nightly in the Opera House, have the charm of the unexpected. Mr Syd Kerry has a baritone voice of excellence, which he uses with advantage. Miss Amy Randolph has the "flair" of the true comedienne, and sings like a lark. Mr Tom Johnstone is a comedy merchant who displays his wares with commercial instinct, and Messrs Walter Kooney and Harry Karr have songs worth hearing, and render them with a humour which emphasises their value.

DARWEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Ormsby.—Mr John H. Morton's company is appearing here this week in The Rajah of Ranjapore. The most interesting characters are those of Ernest Travers, an artist, and Primrose, his fiancée, well played by Mr Charles E. Linney and Miss Nell Ascott, their songs and duets being admirable. Another capable artiste is Miss Marion Walker, who imparts the necessary "go" to Eliza, the housemaid. Mr Alvin Sawyer as Horatio Chicks causes roars of laughter as the supposed Rajah. Mr Sydney Bryant makes a good Mr Stubbs, and might with advantage have an extra song; the heavy part of Captain Hertage is in the hands of Mr Arthur Reid. Some energetic dancing is done by the Verona Quartet.

DERBY.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Chas. Denley.—The Girl from Japan made her début before a Derby audience on Monday night, introduced by Mr Fredk. E. Philpott's company, and met with a flattering reception. The Rev. John Smith has a capital exponent in Mr Ernest Spalding, whose clever and amusing personation is a distinct feature all through. Mr S. Lockridge is in every way satisfactory as Lord Allenbury, and sings in good style the songs allotted to him. Mr Chas. L Ludlow makes a mirth-provoking Bingle, and Mr Percy Baverstock is sufficiently bellicose as General Baugh. Mr Alfred Wood is amusing as Sir Mulberry Flippington, and equally diverting is Mr Tom E Sinclair as Horatio Blinks. An exceedingly pleasing depiction is the Maud of Miss Madie Scott, her singing being of a high order of excellence. Miss Nellie Valentine renders a good account of Violet Meadows, and Miss Nellie Jackson and Miss B. Deane are everything that can be desired as Polly Perkins and the Countess De La Rue respectively. Miss Nellie Parker Dent makes an excellent Lady Flippington. Charming incidental dances are introduced by the Sisters Violet and Lily English. The chorus is tuneful and well balanced, and the play is staged in a manner which reflects credit on all concerned.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes.—There is an exceptionally good bill-of-fare here this week. Marie Collins as the star comedienne renders her songs in pleasing style, and is accorded an enthusiastic reception. Asra in a unique act, "A Juggler in the Billiard Parlour," is decidedly clever, and his efforts are heartily appreciated. Charles Coverdale, a droll comedian, causes much amusement with his smart patter; Cora Gray, society vocalist, is possessed of an excellent voice, which she uses to great advantage; Ethel Loftus is praiseworthy both vocally and histrionically; Pete and Juno are amusing coloured comedians and dancers, their sand dancing being very creditable; and the Two Eltons, clever knockabout comedians, are in their way thoroughly diverting.

DONCASTER.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—Another variety programme is being presented this week. Claude Ginnett's performing ponies give a meritorious exhibition. Lillie Le Breton retains her popularity as a gymnast on the swinging trapeze. A good turn comes from George Wyres, quaint comedian, and a fine exposition of muscular development is given by Achilles. May Fallowfield is engaging in her coon songs, and Billy Taylor, Negro comedian and dancer, is an undoubtedly valuable unit in the combination. Issa Steel, ballad vocalist, has evoked the warmest plaudits. A. C. Reval, an electrical juggler, performs some wonderful feats, and wins popular favour.

DOVER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatres, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Fred C. Dew.—Cousin Kate was played here on Monday and two following evenings by Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company, and was most enthusiastically received. In the title-rôle Miss Edith Walker scored an emphatic and well-deserved success, her sympathetic voice (assisted by admirable elocution) and histrionic abilities making her portrayal of Cousin Kate an undoubtedly fascinating performance. Mr C. W. Standing gave an admirable impersonation of that delightful Irishman, Heath Desmond, his skilful handling of the part showing the touch of an experienced artiste. A clever study of a "leading light" was given by Mr Herbert H. Young, whose interpretation of the rôle of the Rev. James Bartlett was of a high degree of excellence. Master Louis Edwardes as Bobby Spencer had a manly little part which was well suited to his youthful capabilities; Miss Howard Medley played the part of Amy Spencer with natural and unaffected grace; Mrs Spencer was played with charming inconsistency and undoubted talent by Miss Amy Coleman; and the excellent cast is completed by Miss Enid Wilde, who gave a most amusing impersonation as Jane. Cousin Kate was preceded each evening by A Case for Eviction, in which Mr Herbert Young, Miss Howard Medley, and Miss Enid Wilde acquitted themselves admirably. Mr George Edwardes' company paid a return visit on Thursday in the ever popular musical comedy, San Toy.

DUNDEE.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore.—Mr Charles Collette is here this week, in the farcical comedy entitled Jones's Jaunt. Mr Collette was seen to advantage in the character of Stanley Jones, and gave a delightfully vivacious performance. Miss Rosamond Rokeby as Kate Jones acted the part in a graceful manner. Miss Sophia Harriss as Dollie Bonde made a charming appearance. Mr J. R. Crawfurd as a broken-down journalist-actor, gave a clever character study.

PEOPLE'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alf Ross.—The O'Malleys occupy the premier position, and create hearty laughter with their comedy act. The Five Vernons give a clever musical entertainment. The Swift Trio are smart trick cyclists. G. W. Fyvie is a smart Irish comedian. Flo Banks, serio, and Little Dando are well received. Frank Cumminger and the Glenroy Troupe are Terpsichorean entertainers.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Dundee Empire Company, Limited.—The drama entitled Driven from Home is located here this week. Mr J. K. Murray showed fine dramatic instinct as Anthony Raybould; Miss Lydia Donovan as Laura created a most favourable impression; Mr Jack M'Kenzie and Miss May M'Kenzie supplied the inevitable comedy.

GAIETY.—Proprietors, Dundee Gaiety Company, Limited.—Messrs Preston and Doherty's company is appearing this week in Secrets — —— ———. Mr George Davis makes a manly Lieutenant Herbert Markham. Miss Molly Hackett and Mr Fred Parke sustain the comedy element with much ability. Miss Mary Carlton as Ismalia gives a capital performance.

DUNFERMLINE.

ST. MARGARET'S HALL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr Andrew Buchanan.—Quality Street made its first appearance here on Friday and Saturday of last week, when it was presented by Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company. Mr F. Vernon Travers gave an effective rendering of Valentine Brown; Mr Edward Jephson's impersonation of Ensign Blades was good; the recruiting sergeant of Mr Frank Mann was creditable; Mr Egerton Hine made an excellent Lieutenant Spicer; Miss Nellie Bowman gave a meritorious and delightful rendering of Miss Phœbe Throssell, and was ably supported by Miss Maud Townsend as Miss Susan. Miss Violet Vivian made a capital Patty.

DEWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Resident-Manager, Mr J. Herbert Asquith.—In the Ranks, after some years' absence, is here again and meeting with much success, the company being under the management of Messrs Carlton and Armitage. That fine character Ned Drayton is admirably sustained by Mr Edward Lloyd, and the fine performance of Miss E. Blair-Staples as Ruth Herrick commends itself to all. Joe Buzzard is in the able hands of Mr Cecil Clayton, while Miss A. Beaumont as Mrs Buzzard is also good. Mr Herbert Cecil portrays the cowardly Gideon Blake in rare style, while no less convincing is the delineation of Mr Walter Wilson as the Hop-picker. Miss Ella Wilmer acts Barbara in a pleasing manner, and Mr A. W. Chappell, who is responsible for the production, is also in the right place as Captain Holcroft.

HIPPODROME—General Manager, Mr G. Weldon.—The return visit of a clever comedy couple in Jack and Evelyn is meeting with much success, while the clown Alfred Barker and his miniature circus are well received. Edgar Granville as an entertainer provides a turn much above the average. Billy Taylor, whistler, has a good reception, and Condon and Preston are smart in comedy and dance. Paddy still continues to amuse, and other turns worth seeing are Bromley and Fontein, the Coopers, and the Vernon Bioscope. The orchestra is still under the able direction of Mr A. D. Willcox.

DUMFRIES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. E. Potts.—Mr E. Oswald Brooks' No. 1 company was here the first three nights of this week with the farcical comedy, The New Housemaid, preceded each night by a new play, in one act, entitled Buffo: The Story of a Broken Heart. The principal artistes in the former play are Mr Somers Bellamy, who makes a very natural Peter Pinkerton, J.P.; Mr Montague Ashley, who is well placed as Arthur; Mr Ralph Roberts as the Hon. Bertie Rashleigh, a part that received full justice in his hands; and Miss Violet Thorold and Miss Ethel L. Caryllon, who were well suited as Agnes and Dulcie.

DUDLEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr J. W. Tilley.—A powerful attraction is provided here this week in A Royal Divorce, under the management of Mr W. W. Kelly. Miss Edith Cole plays with delicacy and refinement the sympathetic part of Josephine, and moves her audience to tears by her emotional rendering. Mr Frederick Victor as Napoleon gives a powerful and artistic rendering, and Mr Claude Agnew as Tallyrand submits a masterful representation of statesmanship. Mr Trevor Lowe displays easy and polished acting as the Marquis De Beaumont, and Mr Alfred Grenville is intensely earnest as General Augereau. Miss Ethyle Murray plays with artistic power and effect as Marie Louise, Miss Helen Richmond is distinctly winning and highly diverting as Stephanie, and Miss Violet Agnew is a graceful Blanche D'Hervas.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Tom Prichard.—Muir and Bartlett in the comedy A Clerical Complication are a great attraction here this week. Lee and Kingston, comedy sketch artistes, also give a capital turn; Eileen and Maynie, musical dancing dots, are old favourites; and Michael Nolan, Irish comedian, sings some capital songs. Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists, are as successful as ever. Agnes Hazel, comedienne, sings with good effect. Other turns are given by George Edney, comedian, and Johnny O'Rourke, Negro comedian. On Thursday and Friday the Dudley Town Prize Band played favourite selections.

DUBLIN.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr Charles Hyland.—A large and appreciative audience was present here on Monday night to witness the performance by Mr George Edwardes's company of the romantic light opera entitled The Duchess of Dantzic. Miss Evie Greene gives an exceedingly clever portrayal of the rôle of Catherine Upscher, afterwards Duchess of Dantzic, her singing and dancing being much admired; and as Napoleon I. Mr Holbrook Blinn is most successful. Mr Herbert Clayton receives due recognition for his excellent performance of Sergeant Lefebvre, afterwards Duke of Dantzic; and the Empress Josephine is played in an effective manner by Miss Mabel Sorrell. The parts of Caroline Murat and Pauline Princess Borghese, sisters of Napoleon, are efficiently filled by Miss Elizabeth Firth and Miss Doris La Tour, and the rôles of Comte De Narbonne, Comte De Chanteloup, Comte De Laborde, and Comte De Flahault (courtiers) are well sustained by Messrs Barry Neame, Frank Greene, John Morley, and E. Gard Pye. Mr Leonard Mackey as Philippe, Vicomte De Bethune, makes a good impression; and as Madame De Chatel and Mdlle. Legrange the Misses Florence Snell and Billie Burke are admirable. Mr Courtice Pounds does well as Papillon, and Miss Adrienne Augarde makes a pleasing Renée De Saint Mazard. The remaining parts are well played.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—Messrs E. H. Kelly and C. M. Hallard's company opened here on Monday with the play entitled A Man and His Wife. Miss Nina Boucicault displayed considerable ability in the rôle of Eleanor Ainslie, and she was loudly applauded. The part of Sir Noel Drage had an able representative in Mr C. M. Hallard, and as Lady Wickham Miss Blanche Wilmot was excellent. Mr C. Aubrey Smith's delineation of Roger Ainslie was a capital performance, and as Adela and Violet Antrobus the Misses Enid Spencer Brunton and Beatrice Coleman were all that could be desired. A meed of praise is due to Mr E. H. Kelly for his clever impersonation of Lord Francis Hillier, and Miss Annie Hill was good as the Nurse. Mr Reginald Dance as Joe Thorn, Mr Charles Wane as Drover, Mr George Silver as William, and Mr Reginald Rivington as Woodhouse were all creditable in their respective parts. The curtain-raiser Jerry and a Sunbeam preceded and was much enjoyed.

QUEEN'S ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—The boards are occupied here this week by Messrs Gordyn and Gelling's company with the successful drama, The Temptress. Miss Violet Cranfield gives a realistic portrayal of Stella, and the part of Pedro Gonzalez is capitally played by Mr Henry W. Hatchman. Mr Percy Ballard ably sustains the rôle of Lucas Denbigh, and Miss Vashti Wynne is graceful as Lady Fordyce. Mr Arthur Sheldon plays Sir Oswald Fordyce in an admirable manner, and Miss Ada M. Ryder is creditable as Madge Denbigh. Mr George Dalper satisfactorily fills the part of Phillip Welford, and as Trixie Templeton Miss Eva Temple is effective. Bob Tamer is well played by Mr Herbert Williams, and as Rhoda Brown and Keziah Blake the Misses Mattie Everett and Nellie Cross meet with approval.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—Topping the bill here this week we have Harry Freeman, comedian, who meets with a hearty reception. The Mayvilles, in their Liliputian comedy act, score a success, and the Venola Brothers are clever gymnasts. Hamilton Hill, baritone vocalist, sings his songs in good style and receives applause, and the Oswald Sisters are capital duettists and dancers. The eccentricities of Frank Lynne meet with appreciation, and Will Cornish is an expert musician. Josh Dixon is a smart comedian, and James Grant, who remains from last week, is also well received, and the Empire Pictures are up to date.

TIVOLI THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—Katie Lawrence is the chief attraction here this week, and is as popular as ever. Cussac Talma, illusionist, assisted by Mdlle. Yvonne De Forge, is an interesting turn; and Mdlle. De Rose renders her songs in an excellent manner. The acrobatic performance of the Brothers Terras meets with success, and the efforts of J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, are well rewarded. Will Farrell is an acceptable comedian, and Lizzie Lawrie a pleasing contralto vocalist. Fred Casburn, comedian, and Kavados, juggler, contribute, and the Bioscope pictures are also showing.

ROUND ROOM, ROTUNDA.—Proprietor, Mr Chas. W. Poole; Manager, Mr J. R. Poole.—Poole's Myriorama has entered on the third week here, and continues to attract large audiences.

WORLD'S FAIR.—Proprietor, Mr Chas. James.—The company engaged here this week are R. M. Lang, magician-comedian; Vi Owen, vocalist and paper-tearer; Alfred Lee, character comedian; Lee and Metford, duettists; and Simosa San, juggler and balancer.

EASTBOURNE.

DEVONSHIRE-PARK THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr A. Standen Trigg.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company is appearing here in Little Mary. A very capable company has been selected, and a very fine and complete performance is given. Miss Christine Silver has a beautiful voice, appealing in every word, and as Moira Loney she is a sweet and charming personality; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is an amusing Countess of Plumleigh; Miss Beatrice Kelston is a satisfactory Eleanor; and Miss Evelyn Neilda does very well all she has to do as Lady Milly. Mr Arthur Holmes-Gore again gives us the skilful, polished work of a capital actor, and he is a pleasing Earl of Carlton; Mr Arthur Kightly contributes sound work as Lord Rolfe; Mr George Mudie is a distinct, calm and dignified Sir Jennings; Mr Ean M'Donald an excellent Dr. Topping; and careful and clever work is contributed by Mr A. W. Baskcomb both as Terence Reilly and the Earl of Plumleigh. The audiences have not been great.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—Mr Charles Harrington and his large company are appearing here in Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr J. Carr again contributes his appealing rendering of the ill-used Uncle Tom; Mr Charles Harrington is again an admirable Phineas Fletcher; and Mr John Henry Rogers an effective Simon Legree. Mr Guy P. Ellis is a forceful George Harris; Mr Fred Charles causes much laughter as Marks; Mr B. Lenton is a satisfactory St. Clair; Mr J. H. Renney an effective Dan Haley; and good help is given by Mr J. Gibson and the coloured gentlemen of the cast. Miss Hettie Johnson makes much of her opportunities as Eliza Harris; Little Minnie is a sympathy-compelling Little Eva; Miss Zerlina Zerbini gives an excellent and striking account of Cassy; and Miss Sylvia Stella is fun and mischief personified as Topsy. Miss Ida Fane is a sufficiently impressive Aunt Ophelia; Mrs Carr is a natural and important figure as Aunt Chloe; Miss Mabel Bowman does excellently as Dina; and Miss Emma Stewart is a perfectly satisfactory Emmeline. The Negro songs, dances, and banjo playing add to the realism of the play.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—Mr George Edwardes' company is appearing here to crowded houses in San Toy. Mr Alfred Beers as Li contrives to arouse much laughter; Mr A. W. Clark is a genuinely humorous Yen How; Mr Edmund Sherras possesses a pleasing voice and is a happily effective Captain Bobby; Mr G. J. Williams is a hearty and excellent Sir Bingo; Mr Cliffe Davies an amusingly dignified Emperor; Mr Adam Gordon a droll Sing Hi; Mr W. P. Wright does well as Lieut. Tucker; and Mr Clinton Reynold is a satisfactory Fo Hop. Miss Don Harradine sings and acts pleasingly as San Toy; Miss Mabel Levalle is both a very pretty and attractive Poppy; and Miss Florence Arnold is a very bright and lively representative of Dudley. Miss Lydia Naylor is a gay, pleasant Yun Shi, and Miss Beatrice Gradella is an efficient Miss Tucker and contributes a clever dance, while Miss Beatrice Valnor is an imposing Ko Fan. The performances have been well attended. Mr Ben Greet's company will occupy the stage here during the latter half of the week in The Belle of New York.

EBBW VALE.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr Arthur Knight.—The first three nights of the week Miss Cissie Moxon's company, in A Trip to Rum-Fum, played to capital houses. Mr W. Garvey, Mr W. S. Hutchinson, Mr Jim Woods, Mr Charles Russell, Mr J. L. Richardson were the pick of a strong cast, while Miss Cissie Moxon, Miss Kathleen Kemp, Miss Majorie Manifold, and Miss Lilly Mayfield were popular favourites. The Saxon Troupe of International dancers were accorded a flattering reception.

ECCLES.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Hague; Acting-Manager, Mr P. Ryan-Smith.—A Fatal Crown is being presented here this week. Mr Ian Maclaren and Miss Margaret Savill as Lord Dudley and Lady Jane Grey respectively are very creditable, and Mr Leonard Montgomery distinguishes himself by a powerful portrayal of Herne, the wizard. The scenery is elaborate.

EDINBURGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Ltd; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—A return visit from The Girl from Kay's drew an excellent attendance here on Monday. Mr George Dance has brought a capital company, and mounting, chorus, and orchestra were all that could be desired. Mr H. C. Barry made a great hit as Max Hoggenheimer, his drollery being irresistible, and in a comic acrobatic act with Mr Leslie Roy Cathie, who made a clever Fitzthistle, he fairly brought down the house. Mr Charles Hanbury was a bright Harry Gordon, and Mr John Woodleigh an amusing Mr Chalmers. Miss Simeta Marsden acted and sang in a charming manner as Winnie Harborough; while Miss Alice Russon, a last year's pantomime favourite, gave a tasteful rendering of Norah Chalmers. Miss Ada Crossley made an effective appearance as Mrs Chalmers, and Miss Maisie North proved a smart dancer in the sprightly rôle of Ellen.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—Messrs Frohman and Chudleigh's company appeared in The Duke of Killicrankie on Monday, when a large audience greatly enjoyed the performance. Mr Langhorne Burton undertook the character of the Duke with complete success, and the diverting rôle of Henry Pitt-Welby was ably filled by Mr Arthur Grenville. Miss Doris Templeton appeared to advantage as Lady Henrietta Addison; and Mrs Mulholland was admirably represented by Miss Aida Jenoure. The piece was effectively mounted. A Case for Eviction preceded.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—The Poluski Brothers had a hearty reception at this house on Monday, when a holiday audience crowded the building to the doors. Equally popular were the Haytors, whose quaintly amusing sketches are well known here. The Tally-Ho Trio made a hit in their medley of comedy and music, and a capital comedy turn by Frank and Marie Free was also cordially received. The Onllaw's daring feats of balancing on the wire were hailed with applause, and the smart picture-painting of the M'Kays also came in for general appreciation. My Fancy, most brilliant of sand dancers, caused quite a furore, and the duets of the Sisters Govell were also attractive features of the bill. The three Sisters Chester, vocalists and instrumentalists, gave a bright and pleasing turn, and the Lannons, duettists and dancers, and Ganty, comedian, also appeared.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Tom Ellis.—There was a big attendance at this theatre on Monday, when Mr Fred Bulmer's company appeared in the favourite melodrama, Sentenced for Life. Mr Harry Lloyd played the hero Roy Stillwell with marked effect, and Messrs E. Vaughan and R. Bosco were successful in other leading parts.

EXETER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr Henry Dundas's company is presenting the well-known drama Human Nature here this week. Nellie Temple has an admirable exponent in Miss Batho-Griffiths; Paul De Vigne is ably embodied by Mr C. B. Keston; and Mr Henry C. Cooper portrays Matthew Hawker in capital style. Both Stephen Mardyke and Rev. Arthur Lulworth find capable representatives in Messrs J. Jarrett and G. Franklin; Mr Sidney Young is responsible for considerable merriment as Horatio Spoffkins; while Dick is pathetically depicted by Little Marion Ryder, Frank also being prettily played by Little Daisy Cooke. Mr Reginald Weighill displays considerable ability as Captain Temple; Miss Rose Helene is lively and entertaining as Maggie Wilkins; Miss Maud Tremayne makes an excellent Cora Grey; and Miss Esther Carthew as Mrs Lambkin is praiseworthy.

FALKIRK.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt.—The boards of this theatre have been occupied this week by Mr and Mrs Charles Mackey's company in The Shaughraun. Mr Mackey's Conn is a good conception of the harum-scarum, devil-may-care Irish peasant; as Claire Ffolliot Mrs Chalmers Mackey's acting is characterised by quiet dignity; Mr Henry Danson makes an excellent Robert Ffolliot; and Mr H. Sainsbury as Father Doolan looks and acts the part to the life. Arte O'Neil finds a capable exponent in Miss Bessie Carlisle, and Miss Kathleen L. Russell is artless and winning as Moya. The parts of Corry Kinchela and Harvey Duff are capably filled by Messrs Conway Hastings and W. Reuben Payne respectively.

FARNWORTH.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell.—The popular drama When London Sleeps is being presented here this week by Mr C. Finch-Hatton's company. A pleasing performance of Queenie Carruthers is given by Miss Ella Sennett. Mr R. S. Trelawney scores many points as Captain Rodney Haynes, and Miss Grace Baring makes a distinct success of Hilda Carode. Little Miss Turner plays daintily as Lelia, and David Engleheart is in the admirable hands of Mr Tom Ronald. Sammy Blyth (Mr D'Arcy Kelway) and Adele (Miss Marie Kelway) add materially to the strength of the company.

FOLKESTONE.

PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—The first three nights of the week Mr Silvanus Dauncey and Mr M. V. Leveaux's company was here in the successful comedy Joseph Entangled. Miss Mona K. Oram as Lady Verona Mayne scores a distinct success; Mr H. B. Warner gives a fine performance as Sir Joseph Lacy; Mr Stanley W. Ashworth is a first-rate Hardolph Mayne; Mr Horace Lane as Harry Tavender is praiseworthy; Miss Shelley Calton acts well as Mrs Tavender; Mr Everard Digby is natural as Knapman; Miss Claire Cavendish as Mrs Knapman displays considerable talent; Mr Arthur Bell as Gerald Fanmere is well placed; and Mr Lawrence Grant renders good service as Jerman Pyecroft.

VICTORIA PIER.—Lessees, Messrs Keith Prowse and Co., Limited; General Manager, Mr H. De Manche.—Mr James Davies, tenor, has a good voice, and receives applause; Miss Jessie Wood, soprano, is heard to advantage in the song "Awake;" Mr Walter Walters, humourist, sings some amusing songs; Mr Harry Carsdale, in his farmyard imitations, is a general favourite; Miss Ethel Walker contributes some clever musical sketches; Herr Venanzi is warmly applauded for his pianoforte solos.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr F. Seabrook.—Mr Seabrook, the new manager, is likely to be popular here. Madame Shrimpton is the vocalist, and her songs are much appreciated; Mr Willie Rouse excels as a humourist, and meets with hearty applause. The Ladies Blue Salon Band and the animated pictures never fail to please.

GAINSBOROUGH.

ALBERT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Kirk.—A musical version of the evergreen East Lynne was presented here for three nights last week by Miss Dorothy Oswald's company. Mr Herbert Barry was successful as Archibald Carlyle, Mr Pascoe Bioletti gave a finished rendering of Levison, and Miss Dorothy Oswald was an effective Lady Isabel. The comedy element was in the hands of Mr Geo. Harvie and Miss Maggie Stewart as P.C. Jorkins and Joyce; and they introduced several songs and dances. Miss Tilly Stewart as Barbara Hare sang "When other lips."

GLASGOW.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphrys.—The late Mr Wilson Barrett was always a prime favourite in Glasgow, and was at all times welcome. On no occasion was his absence more missed than on Monday evening on the production of his last play Lucky Durham. A brilliant performance was given by Mr William F. Grant, who essayed the title-rôle, John Durham. Manly, straightforward, firm, compassionate, kindly and courteous to a degree, the performance of Mr Grant elicited praise and sympathy, wonderment, and admiration. The character is a very powerful one, and the representation was quite brilliant. As Lord Mountfallon Mr Henry De Solla once more proved a sound and capable actor, his appearance in the closing scene—act four—being worthy of unstinted praise, an act in which Miss Mary Relph rose to distinction as Lady Mountfallon. Richard Vallerton by Mr Daniel M'Carthy was a fine performance of a struggle between family pride and the dictates of conscience as to the permission to "Lucky Durham" to woo his daughter Helen. This part was placed to Miss Phyllis Relph's charge, and she gave an exquisite rendering. Two interesting parts were those of Margaret Steighton and her brother Reginald, the former very winsome but modest and shy, and the latter the embodiment of a brainless fellow, devoted to the gaiety of life. In their scenes with John Durham they, Miss Jessie Winter, and Mr Paul Belmore were particularly effective. Mr W. F. Clitherow as Ben Verstein, a Jew money-lender, was capital in a small part, and Mr Stanley Harrison—a Glasgow gentleman, by the way—as Arthur Walcomb shows steady advance in his profession as friend and confidential attaché to John Durham. The Duchess of Harcourt had in Miss Gertrude Robins a good exponent of a graceful part, and as Mrs Durham Miss Nellie Bonser quite captivated by her modesty and charm.

ROYALTY, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. M. Downie.—Mr J. M. Barrie's Quality Street is here again after a six months' absence. Messrs Gatti and Frohman's company is almost the same as on last visit, Mr David Glassford being the dashing Captain Brown, Miss May Whitty the Susan Throssell, and Miss Grace Armytage Noble, the Phœbe, all the parts being excellently played. Miss Lizzie Sooble again acts the assertive servant, Patty, with a fine gift of humour. Mr Gordon Tomkins as the Recruiting Sergeant is very good, and the Ensign Blades of Mr A. Carlaw Grand is cleverly played. Master Robbins as a cheeky schoolboy and Misses Rollo Deas, Bertha Woolcote, Evelyn Mills, and Alma Reeves Smith as the various visitors at Quality Street are all valuable members of the cast. The play is mounted with much taste.

KING'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr H. Macfarlane.—The second week of this new house commenced auspiciously on Monday, when Miss Olga Nethersole and her company performed Magda before a large and fashionable audience. In the part of Magdalene Miss Nethersole gives a study of absorbing interest, and rivets the attention of the spectator from the very start. The Leopold Schwartze of Mr G. S. Titheradge is also a striking feature in the performance, his acting and make-up as the stern old soldier being alike admirable. Mr Edward Fielding's Von Keller is a finely-finished piece of acting, and the difficult part of the Pastor is handled with complete success by Mr Berte Thomas. Miss Rosalind Ivan plays Marie with effective simplicity, and the young lover Lieutenant Windlowski is gracefully represented by Mr W. Burchell. Miss Francis Ivor as Augusta, and Miss Winifred Pearson as Franziska enliven the scenes with a touch of humour. Excellent character sketches are provided by Mr Slain Mills as Professor Beckmann; Mr Harry Dodd as Von Klebe, and Mr Gerald Aylmer as Zanetto. Miss Rose Stanley, Miss Frances Wood, and Mrs Wakefield are very good as the censorious Fraus; and the parts of Giulietta and Theresa have good representatives in Miss Madge Field and Miss Constance Raymond respectively. Magda was repeated on Thursday, and three performances of The Second Mrs Tanqueray, and two of Sapho complete the week's programme.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr Hugh Murdoch.—Messrs Armsdale and Warren's company is here with The Face at the Window. Mr E. Hoggan-Armsdale again gives a strong portrayal of Lucio Delgado; Mr T. W. Dunscombe is a clever Paul Gouffet, the detective; and Mr G. Paythian as the old banker and Mr A. Richards as his clerk, Cortier, are both well suited. Miss Marie Florence is an engaging Marie De Brisson. Miss Lizzie Chambers as Babette and Mr Bob Anderson as Peter enliven the play with their humour. Mr C. Alan-Hineson as Le Blanc and Mr F. C. Raphael as Barbelon ably fill their parts.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Mascard.—Mr Douglas Bruce's company is here this week with In a Woman's Grip for the first time in Glasgow, and full houses are giving it a good reception. Miss Beatrice May in the part of Mary Langley and Miss Marguerite Trevosper in that of Lillian Fairley have the leading parts, and show ability of no mean order. Maurice Stanton is well depicted by Mr Bernard Copping, and, with Mr John H. Firman as the unscrupulous lawyer, is responsible for the villainy of the piece. Mr Herbert Pearson is exceptionally well placed as Frank Haydon, and Mr F. Summers gives a lifelike study of Mr Fairley, the old prizefighter. Mr Geo. A. Davis and Miss Daisy Maynard have the care of the humorous element, and as Joe Butters and Molly Smithers soon instal themselves favourites. Mr Robt. Purdie as the mad doctor, Mr Edwin Clarke as Sir Edward Morton, and Mr Jas. W. Manning as the old sailor are all successful.

METROPOLE, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—Miss Winifred Maude's company in The Sins of a City is proving an attraction here this week. Miss Winifred Maude makes the part of Seaweed stand out by quiet and effective acting; Mr Victor Du Cane as Isaac Levi sustains the character well; the villainies of Ralph Blackwater are presented by Mr Norman A. Overton; Mr Royce Carleton makes a satisfactory Sandy M'Donald; and in the dual part of Jasper and Joe Woodleigh Mr J. W. Baxter gives two characteristic studies. As Midge Miss Eva Reed causes much merriment; the Donald M'Ivor of Mr Ivan Gore and the Lesbia of Miss Marie Lyons are effective; and the small parts of P.C. Johnson and Jonathan Blyme are capably acted by Mr W. E. Simpson and Mr W. G. Dudeney. Miss Alice Granville and Miss Agnes Norman sustain their respective parts with effect.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden.—The Executioner's Daughter is the fare here, and Messrs Darcy and Little's company is well suited. Mr Ed. M. Hamilton is a powerful Monsieur Roche, the executioner; Mr George Beverly acts incisively as Felix Marius; Mr W. H. Sharpe contributes a clever bit of work as Kretch; Miss D. Riddell makes a pretty and pathetic Annette; Mr Wilson Howard as the manly Paul Rovel is well placed; Miss Carlotta Anson acts with vigour as the unscrupulous Felice; and Miss Beatty Moore as the little cripple does well. Humour is infused into the play by Miss May Rosine as Sally, Mr E. W. Avery as Tom Holmes, and Mr Sinclair Holden as the silly dude.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Limited.—This week R. A. Roberts gets a great ovation for his acting in the sketch, Dick Turpin. Another good sketch, entitled Mashing the Missus, by the quaint and popular comedians, Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins, causes much laughter. Charles Coborn in each of his items is very good, and as popular as ever. The juggling performance of Selma Braatz is really clever, and Howard and St. Clair are still here and taking well. Arthur Reece, vocal comedian; Amy Sullivan, vocalist; the Olive Trio, comediennes; Beatrice Willey, vocalist; Woodhouse and Wells, comedians and dancers; and the musical act of Clown Ferreros, make up a fine programme.

TIVOLI, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred C. Ewing.—Fred Karno's comedians, in Hilarity, top the bill here; Ernesto, musical equilibrist and juggler, is exceptionally smart; the efforts of Daisy Dormer as a dancer are much appreciated; and Shang Hia, Chinese magician, fairly mystified the audience. The other members of the company include Hicks' Clerks, vocalists and dancers; Walter Stockwell, comedian; Francis and Melli, in a musical novelty act, The Brigands; Nellie Farrell, comedienne; the Violas, with a second-sight act; and Bendon's Bioscope, with new pictures.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Lessees and Managers, Messrs Rich Waldon and Thos. Barrasford.—An interesting programme here includes Miss Minni Letta's Sporting Girls in a series of walking matches on a movable track. Other notable turns include Lilly Cole, ballad vocalist; T. W. Royal, comedian and dancer; Bros. Kragg, gymnasts; Jenny Lynn, a clever comedienne; Harry Meir, American eccentric; Johnny Alexander and company, pantomimists; Felton and Manley, acrobats; and the Animatograph, with several up-to-date pictures.

QUEEN'S VARIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong, Limited; Manager, T. J. Colquhoun.—The shooting competition, which aroused much interest at the Tivoli last week, is continued at the Queen's, under the direction of Misses Cooke and Clinton. In addition, the programme has much to attract. There is J. A. Cassells, the popular Scotch comedian, in pawky songs; a clever musical turn by Lew Wells, with a unique stage setting; and Slade Murray, the evergreen vocal comedian. The Herbert Quartette display much grace and agility in a clever acrobatic and somersault display, and the patter and singing of Cullen and Carthy are enjoyably entertaining. Mdlle. Balcombes gives an entertainment with a troupe of cats; Bendon's Bioscope is once more an appreciated item.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr Wm. Biggam.—A first-rate programme is contributed to by the Arnos in their versatile business; Gerald Lopez, the clever Creole comedian; Florence Lambeth and Robert Robertson, in a lively sketch; Chorley and Connor, smart patterers; Scouller Family, musical selections; Cissie Arris, neat dancer; Reginald Wishart, clever society entertainer; and Fred Smart, J. C. Lawrance, and Dan Thomas, in their comedian turns.

GLOUCESTER

THEATRE ROYAL.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—Mr Ben Greet's company, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard, is this week playing The Eternal City here. Mr D. Lewin Mannering gives a masterly interpretation of Baron Bonelli; Miss Edith Anton Laing as Donna Roma Volonna acts excellently throughout; David Rossi has a capital exponent in Mr Henry Deas; and Mr Leonard Grey is effective as Pope Pius XI. Bruno Rocco is played with ability by Mr P. L. Julian; Mr E. Sharp well represents the Commendatore; Mr L. St. George Lowther cleverly enacts the part of Charles Minghelli; and Mr Russell Thorndyke is noticeable as Felice. Father Pifferi is carefully acted by Mr Edward Clowes. Miss Renée De L'Estrade is praiseworthy as Nattalina, and Miss Millicent Granville does well as Elena.

GOOLE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John E. Tomlinson.—Mr Horace Stanley and company, with the drama The 10 30 Down Express, occupies this house. As Lieutenant Jack O'Malley Mr Harry T. Wood does remarkably well; Mr Alaric Burton as Cuthbert Leigh is also deserving of praise; Mr Scott Leighton enacts the villainous character of James Inderwick in realistic style; as the heroine, Bessie Leigh, Miss Adelaide Clare enlists the sympathy of the audience; Mr Horace Stanley as Sam Wagstaff and Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts furnish the comedy element; and Miss Evelyn M. Walton also keeps the house in roars as Letitia Leigh. The part of Huntley Mason is well played by Mr Harry L. Day; Mr Fred C. Roper gives a clever portrayal of Seth Coombes; Miss Fanny Corbet does justice to the trying rôle of Olive Coombes; and Mr Arthur E. Francis is amusing as Bletherby Baggs.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Scott Phipp.—Mr Charles Macdona's company is here this week with the Three Little Maids. Miss Janet Reeve as Ada, Miss Gertrude Melville as Hilda, and Miss Nora Grey as Edna are charming and graceful, and soon dance and sing themselves into favour. Lady St. Mallory is capitally played by Miss Kate Forster; Miss Laura Wright scores a big success as Gretchen; Miss Jennie Edgar as Lady Rosemary, Miss Ethel May as Venetia Gratton, and Miss Ella Daincourt as Lady Marjory are smart and pleasing; Lord Cheyne is humorously represented by Mr Arthur Longley; Mr Haddon Cave is very successful as Brian Molyneux; Rev. Mr Branscombe is naturally played by Mr Chas. Leverton; Mr Gus Oxley is a most diverting Cupid; M. De L'Orme is admirably depicted by Mr Alec Chentrens. The scenery and dresses are bright and effective.

HIPPODROME.—The capital programme includes the Brothers Lloddge, who give a clever show as hand equilibrists; the Eight Lancashire Lads, who contribute well sung glees and wonderful clog dances; the Ornatis Troupe of Algerian jugglers, who astonish with their dexterity; Mdlle. Angelena, known as the Lady Cinquevalli; Talberto and Douglas, in a comic entrée; Miss Onga, on the tight wire; the Lynches, song illustrators; the Sisters Lee, charming vocalists, dancers and acrobats; Cruickshanks, the singing clown, a favourite in Yarmouth; the Royal Bioscope, and "Tally Ho." Rabbitt and Jackles continue to be the great fun providers.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr Edward Grey.—The great attraction here is Georges Hackenschmidt, who is drawing huge houses nightly. The variety programme includes the Royal Zanettos, an exceedingly clever troupe of Japanese jugglers; Ormonde Penstone, a marvellous prestidigitateur; Minnie and Harry, comedy gymnasts; Miss Nellie Royd, a charming vocalist; the Grovini Troupe of acrobats, who give an agile and amusing turn; and Minnie and Harry, capital comedy gymnasts.

WELLINGTON PIER.—Proprietors, Gt. Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr Harry Tunbridge.—Mr J. De Frece's Minstrels are nightly rewarded with unstinted applause for the splendid entertainment provided by them.

GREAT GRIMSBY.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Sapho has repeated its former success at the Prince of Wales's this week, being played to crowded houses nightly. Miss Cecil Cromwell again represents Fanny Legrand, and gives a superb interpretation. Mr Arthur Royston as Jean is equally satisfactory, and both are seen to especial advantage in the great scene at the close of the third act. Mr Cremlin is highly amusing as the gay Uncle Cesaire. Mr Hodgson Taylor makes the most of the small but important part of Flamant; whilst excellent work is also accomplished by Mr Arthur Pool as Dechelette, Miss Jessie Melville as Madame Hettema, Miss Isabel Derrie as Divonne, and Miss Gertrude Wynter as Irene.

HIPPODROME.—An amusing sketch, The Travellers' Rest, has been presented here this week by the Karno Trio. Besides a wealth of laughable incidents, the sketch includes an excellent exhibition of ball punching. The novel performance given by the Bollingers has caused a good deal of interest. Out of a bundle of variously coloured rags they manufacture really excellent pictures. The turn provided by Winona and King, in which the former performs a series of difficult feats of rifle marksmanship, has also proved very popular, whilst the same may be said of Weston and May, who present a musical burlesque entitled Married Life. Helene and Emilon have given a smart gymnastic performance, and other good turns have been Dan Conway, eccentric comedian; Fields and Acres, comedians; and Alice Dora, comedienne.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr Charles March's company is here this week with the drama The Priest of the Temple. Mr March submits an admirable piece of acting as Valerius. Mr Ronald Bayne gives a masterly portrayal of Decus Fronto. Mr Henry Moxon is a capable representative of Herdonius, and Mr Stanley May shows ability as Hermanus. As Alertius Mr Whit Rogerson distinguishes himself, and Mr John Simpson is good as Camilius. Mr Alf Lockhart gives an effective rendering of Schofes, Mr Henry Oakley is successful as Caius Marcus, and Questus is in the safe hands of Mr R. Tyson. Mr Arthur Senate as Khantos and Mr Wilton Cross as Eros deserve praise, and Messrs W. Clark and Fitzroy Temple give a good account of themselves as Ventricius and Asquatus respectively. Miss Evelyn Hope is convincing in the part of Polita, and Miss Marie North gives a finished rendering of Præstantia.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. L. Skivington.—This week's company here includes Harry Jennings, comedian and dancer, who does well; Dale and D'Argan, acrobatic conjurors, are amusing; Rita and Roma give an interesting vaudeville entertainment; the Rickards, Continental acrobats, are well received; Florence, a dainty and expert Highland dancer, is applauded; Jack Charman, boy vocalist, sings well; the Dorian Trio, aerial gymasts, are seen in an excellent turn; and the Electrograph shows new pictures.

GUERNSEY.

ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee. Mr C. Robert Perkins.—This week Mr J. De Quincey and Sime Seruya's company is here. On Tuesday The Twin Sister was presented in Guernsey for the first time. Mr De Quincey had plenty of scope for his abilities as Count Della Torre; Mr Henry Belding gave a clever embodiment of Count Andrea; Miss Dorothy Cacey proved successful as Guidetta Della Torre; Miss Sime Seruya handled the part of Lisa very artistically; and Miss Violet Lucy deserves praise as Sandro. Richelieu was given on Wednesday.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Sunday is here this week. The attractive and interesting play has won all hearts. In the title-rôle Miss Nita Faydon gives an embodiment that is at once strong, tender, and sympathetic; Misses Elizabeth Watson and Olive Adair play subsidiary parts with success; Mr J. Edward Pearce embodies Colonel Brinthorpe with good effect; Mr Frederick Powell's Towzer is admirable; Mr T. Norman Walker as the humorous Lively gives a really clever character study; Mr Whitford Kane's Jacky is sound; and Mr Ernest A. Douglas does well as Tom Oxley. The piece is admirably staged, and the play is followed with rapt attention.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—The Arthur Saxon Trio of strong men are repeating their marvellous performance here this week; Jake Friedman is as popular as ever; Rose Elliott, with good songs, never seems to tire her hearers; the Four Trees, vocalists and dancers, give a good show; the Alaskas do a novel turn, and do it well; George Brooks, comedian, has some very funny songs; and the Brothers Ashley also appear.

HANLEY.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone.—The Earl and the Girl is paying a welcome visit, and this brilliant musical play is well received. The dresses are exquisite, and the mounting is all that can be desired. The company has been carefully chosen, and all the members are well suited to their respective parts. Mr William Stephens, in the part of Jim Cheese, is well placed, and his performance is most amusing and particularly clever. Mr Percy Carr, in the part of Dick Wargrave, acts and sings admirably; Miss Aimee Grey, as the American heiress, contributes a smart representation; Miss Dot Carey as Liza Shoddam is seen to advantage in the part; Mrs Shimmering Black finds a most worthy exponent in Miss Helen Langton; and Miss Daisy Morland, a dignified hostess, acts with much skill.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—At the head of the bill this week are Miss Ella's performing lions, whose intelligence is astounding. The Selbinis are here once more, and are, as of yore, a huge success; M'Cann's Irish terriers are cleverly trained; Alethea is a contortionist of extraordinary ability; Mr Frank Gerald and company present their sketch Jealousy, which is well received; Edward Ind is a comic vocalist with excellent songs; the Mezzettis, comedy gymnasts, are both smart and clever; Ada Whitton sings her songs well; and Maxwell and Francis are clever speciality artistes. The Grand pictures are admirable.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs.—The Five Whiteleys head the list this week. They have been seen here before, but their performance loses none of its attraction with repetition. Spry and Monti have also visited here previously, as have the Fordyces and the Brady and Johnson comedy sketch company, and all are being heartily welcomed back again. Dolly Harmer is brimful of sparkle and go, and her descriptive song is a huge success. The Crown Trio of vocalists in solo and trio delight all hearers. Lily Foy, comedienne; Carl Howard, the crazy conjuror; and Dale and O'Malley complete the programme.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson.—An attractive variety programme is provided here this week. Bennett and Martell afford much enjoyment with their crazy comedy act; Billy Ross and company, including Miss Hilda Brandon, do well in their amusing Irish farce entitled The Hot Member; the Lavelle Brothers are appreciated as comedy acrobats; and the Brothers Teviotdale meet with a good reception in their marvellous equilibrist act. Tom Bassett contributes a smart turn as a Shakespearian comedian; Wee Mona gives an exceedingly pleasing performance; Minnie Palmerston is an entertaining comedienne; and the Sisters Rosaire are vocalists and dancers of no mean ability.

HARROGATE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock.—Mr and Mrs Kendal, supported by their London company, on Monday commenced a three nights' engagement, playing The Elder Miss Blossom. Mr and Mrs Kendal sustained the two chief characters in their usual polished and artistic style, whilst the remaining parts were cleverly interpreted by the members of the company. On Tuesday A Scrap of Paper was produced with equal success. On Wednesday evening, however, The Elder Miss Blossom had to be substituted for Dick Hope consequent upon the illness of a member of the company.

KURSAAL.—Manager, Mr H. J. Dacre.—This is the last week of the full orchestra, which will be considerably decreased for the remainder of the season. Mr Robert Ganthony and "Phroso" are amongst the week's entertainments.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Geo. H. Gaze.—Once again we have had the pleasure of welcoming Mr George Dance's company in A Chinese Honeymoon. Miss Dot Stephens as Mrs Pineapple gave a clever performance, and was capably supported by Mr Gus Wheatman as Mr Pineapple. Mr Helier Le Maistre as the Emperor was excellent; Mr Clifford Morgan was an effective Tom Hatherton; the official mother-in-law as played by Miss Elsie Carew was quaint and humorous; and Fi-Fi was amusingly played by Miss Gwennie Harcourt. The remaining characters were ably impersonated.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr R. Turner.—Ashton's Italian Orchestra, under the conductorship of Signor Comuni, is still a success here. The programme is varied by some excellent contralto songs given by Miss May Hawker, whilst Mr Quenton Ashlyn thoroughly amuses his audience by his quiet humour and his clever imitations of musical instruments.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—An interesting series of operas is being produced here by Mr F. S. Gilbert and his popular English opera company. The vocalists possess excellent voices, and the orchestra is ably conducted by Mr Charles Bye. Besides Mr Gilbert, whose fine tenor is generously recognised, Miss Constance St. Bride, Miss Vera Vizard, Miss Kate White, and Messrs G. H. Place, Albert German, Stuart Bolton, E. Davies, and E. Fredericks are also included in the company. This week the following operas from their répertoire are being performed:—Maritana, The Bohemian Girl, Faust, Il Trovatore, and The Daughter of the Regiment.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—The programme here is opened by two pretty and attractive dancers, the Sisters Valmore. Mr Harry Clifford, comedian, furnishes some good songs. A pleasing entertainment, "Pose Plastique," is introduced by Mdlle. Eldee. Highly amusing are the eccentric comedians, Messrs Queen and Le Brun; Mr J. W. Rickaby is a clever character comedian; Miss Belle Davis and her singular actors are well received; and Mr Ian Colquhoun renders some national and operatic airs with an excellent baritone voice. The Ergotti and King Luis Troupe of acrobats are smart and clever.

PUBLIC HALL.—Under the management of Mr David Devant, Messrs Maskelyne and Cook's entertainment is attracting large audiences. The whole exhibition is replete with those weird and mysterious effects which for so many years have puzzled the patrons of the Egyptian Hall. Mr Devant is the moving figure throughout, and his display of magical problems is wonderfully clever. In one séance he is assisted by Mdlle. Adela in presenting a series of effects by mental magnetism. The programme is also contributed to by the Chamounix Alpine Orchestra, who, with sweet, well-trained voices, introduce several of their native songs.

BEACH CONCERT PAVILION.—Manager, Mr George Blackmore.—The present week concludes the season of Mr Wallis Arthur and his clever company, whose united efforts have proved very successful.

HOYLAND.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Owner, Arthur Carlton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr G. S. King.—Mr Fletcher Salsome's company appeared here on Monday in Jack's Sweetheart. Mr Will Percy scores as Samuel Spotter. Diverting comedy is also presented by Mr Fred Laceby as the Hon. Bertie Bebington. Mr Edward Houghton as Sir Henry Stanhope, Miss Madge Western as Lady Dolly, Miss Augusta Rochfort as Mrs Hopkins, and Miss Jennie Clare as Sally, meet with great applause. As Jack Tremayne Mr Cecil W. Parke succeeds admirably, and Miss Gladys Silvester is quite at home as May Leslie. Mr Murray Yorke as Captain Dudard is also praiseworthy.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur.—A Message from Mars, played by Mr Mouillot's principal company, is proving an acceptable return visitor. Mr Rawson Buckley gives a finely polished rendering of the part of Horace Parker; Mr William H. Brougham is the embodiment of calm dignity as the messenger; Mr Bruce Lindley shows distinct ability as the Tramp; Mr Percy Dunn is capable in the part of Dicey; Miss May Saker is charming as Minnie; Miss Flora Hastings is pleasantly outspoken as Aunt Parker; and Miss Peggy E. Yeoman is adequate as the maid Bella.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr W. F. Morton.—Theodore Kremer's moving story An Actor's Romance is here this week. It is a strong play, and the Box scene is as striking as it is sensational; as interesting as it is exciting. As Harold Davenport there is much to recommend in Mr Gus Hasting's work. Miss Bertha Northam gives a sympathetic picture of the wife. Miss Beatrice Bevan as Florence is a young artiste who affords ample evidence of capability and much promise for the future. Little Miss Marie Dowsing happily lacks the stilted accents and precocious bearing of the juvenile prodigy; as Phyllis Davenport she does very good work. The play is very well staged.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Wyn Miller.—The Carl Rosa company is here this week. Wonderful enthusiasm has been displayed at each performance. On Monday evening Maritana opened to a packed house, with Mr E. C. Hedmondt as Don Cæsar, Miss Lizzie Burgess as Lazarillo, and that charming young vocalist Miss Anna Hope as Maritana. On Tuesday was presented Faust, with Mr Hedmondt in the title-rôle. The Carl Rosa company has apparently revived all its former glories, and we hope soon to welcome it again to the city.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; General Manager, Mr Geo. Morton.—Mr Lester Collingwood's company in When London Sleeps is again in the city, much to the delight of Mr Morton's patrons.

PALACE THEATRE. — Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr A. Graham.—The Two Georges—George Lashwood and George Mozart—are here this week, each in his own particular line bringing big houses. George Mozart's "Blue-Eyed Sarah" scene is as funny as anything on the boards.

ALHAMBRA.—Resident-Manager, Mr C. J. Bartleet Perry.—Graham and Harrington appear in a smart sketch; the Three Dagmars, acrobats; Madge Gray, who foots the bill; Lottie Siegenberg; the Picquays; the Cullane Trio; and the pictures make up a good list of attractions.

CIRCUS.—Manager, Mr E. Emerson.—Dr. Vint's Choir drew a packed house here on Monday.

HEREFORD.

DRILL HALL.—Manager, Mr A. Lovesey.—Mr F. R. Benson's company occupied the stage with a Shakespearian répertoire. On Thursday Twelfth Night was played to a good house. Miss Dorothy Green achieved a distinct success by her thoroughly artistic and charming impersonation of Viola; Mr A. Harris was admirably placed as Antonio, his performance being in every respect meritorious; as Maria Miss May De Launey acted excellently; Mr D. Elphinstone gave a clever study of Sebastian; Mr Wallace Johnston played with quiet effect as Orsino, and where power was required the well-graced young actor was not found lacking; Mr Owen Chambers worked very hard as Sir Toby Belch, and introduced much comic business, being ably assisted by Mr Arthur Fayne; admirable work was also forthcoming from Miss Margaret Oakley, whose easy and natural rendering of Olivia is deserving of high praise. Other characters were well represented by Mr Bernard Limpus, Mr Arthur Phillips; but special mention must be made of Mr H. Herbert as Malvolio. Mr Maundy Gregory is the acting-manager.

HORWICH.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford; Acting-Manager, Mr Alfred Holles. — Mr T. Arthur Jones's company in Life's Sweetest Sins and Called Back is the attraction this week. In the first mentioned play Captain Harold Marston in the hands of Mr T. A. Jones is a fine manly specimen of a British sailor. Mr A. Bartlett Garth's Doctor Colbrooke is a perfect fiend, and he is ably assisted by Mr Geo. R. J. Austin as Flash Jim and Mr C. Vernon Proctor as Rev. Edward Grey, the trio forming a very effective gang of scoundrels. Mr Chas. Scovell is capital as Ernie Woodstone; Mr H. C. Momber makes Bob Tanner a very amusing personage; Mr Bertram Lee renders a good account of Martin, an old salt; Miss Madge Morley's impersonation of Doreen Rivers is a most artistic performance; Miss Amy Rudd's Fay Colbrooke is a sympathetic part rendered with great feeling; and Miss Sara Dudley as Bess Grayson plays the part of a pert lady's maid with great credit.

ILKESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr L. F. A. Rogers.—This week Mr Fred Moule presents the interesting play Bigamy. Miss Alwynne Ermon as the bigamist, Diane De Courcelle, gives a realistic picture of the woman of pleasure; Miss Elsie Capell in the strongly contrasting part of Sylvia Dresden compels sympathetic admiration; and as Dido, the strong woman, Miss Lydia Mannington plays a difficult part in a highly creditable manner. Mr Colin Hazelwood is an admirable Sir Charles; Mr Chas. Burden gives a manly impersonation of Frank Merrivale; Mr Fred Moule is humorous as Rufus Cherrybill; Mr Francis Searle gives a conventional rendering of the Frenchman. Polyphemus Voltaire; and Mr E. S. Earle is good as Edgar Craven. The presentation of the "Nemesis" of the play, Lionel Craven, by Mr Hare deserves to be singled out for special commendation, showing as it does a masterly and artistic appreciation of the dramatic possibilities of the part. Many smaller parts are undertaken by members of the company, and are suitably rendered.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr J. Richards.—A specially good programme is gone through this week, the principal artistes being the Two Vervains, variety artistes; Vernon Lewis, whistler; Queenie Florence, big-boot dancer; Fred Jordan, singing comedian; and the popular Johnny Malone.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. G. Fisk.—The School Girl, one of Mr G. Dance's musical comedies, has been played here during the week. Miss Ethel Beech was a charming representative of the school girl, her singing and dancing eliciting repeated applause. Mr Leslie Holland made a decided hit as Sir Ormesby St. Leger, and Mr Lister Morrah did full justice to the part of Edgar Verney, the artist; while Messrs Charles Adeson, Alfred Leslie, Cameron Carr, and Frank Sutton were each satisfactory in their respective parts. The ladies deserving mention were Miss Grace Sinclair as Cicely Marchmont, Miss Mildred King as Mother Superior, Miss Nell Hope, and Miss Molly Walbran, who each rendered effective aid.

IPSWICH HIPPODROME.—Some attractive novelties were introduced into the programme of the Woodbridge-road place of entertainment on Monday. A droll interlude was that in which Mr Claude Ginnett's Rejected Remounts was a prominent feature; and the Brothers Bellong's equilibristic feats were very graceful and clever. Other new turns are the Marconis, electric artists; Miss Emmie Ames, descriptive vocalist; Les Belles Americaines, a quartet of clever dancers; Miss Vera Mayne, comedienne; and Pete Curry, comedian.

JARROW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Secretary, Mr William Y. Oakes.—This week's attraction is the drama At War with Women. Mr Fred Vaughan gives a good account of the part of General Malakoff, while Captain Volsky is ably embodied by Mr A. Balmoral. Mr E. Ouston is quite at home in the part of Lieut. Alexis, and Mr Clinton Baddeley gives a first-class rendering of Antolsky, alias Baron Kirsch. Mr Shaun Glenville as Jerry Blake is droll, and is ably assisted by Mr Fred J. Lennox as Hans Phocas. The part of the servant is carefully played by Mr H. Cartwright. Miss M. Warren gives a capital reading of Frida Malakoff, and Miss Lizzie Montague scores as Auriel Romanoff, alias Countess Slavensky.

JERSEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—If I Were King was played here on Monday and two following nights by Mr Frank Fenton's company. This historical romance was well staged and admirably acted by the members of the company. In the all-important rôle of François Villon Mr Frank Fenton proved himself a past master in elocution and declamation, while for expressive acting nothing could be better than Mr Clive Currie's interpretation of the rôle of King Louis XI. Miss Marion Grey most ably filled the rôle of Katherine De Vancelles, and Miss Louise Vansittter gave a spirited embodiment as Huguette De Hamel. Mr Ernest March as Oliver Le Dain comported himself with ease and grace, and Mr Noel M'Guckin did well as Noel Le Jolys. Miss Una Gilbert as Mother Villon merited a special word of praise, while Mr Will Barrett as Robin Turges, an innkeeper, likewise scored. Mr Leonard Maxwell looked well in the rôle of Thibaubant D'Aussigny, and Mr Fred Garrett, who figured as Tristran L'Hermite, submitted a quiet rendering of the part.

KEIGHLEY.

QUEEN'S THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Business Manager, Mr Frank Barnes.—The attraction here this week is Messrs Polini and Melford's company in The Silver King. Mr Lauderdale Maitland as Wilfred Denver is excellent, he has a fine stage presence, and also possesses a powerful voice which stands him in good stead. Mr W. V. Garrod gives an effective portrayal of Captain Skinner, "the Spider;" Mr Ed. J. George is seen to advantage in his old character, Daniel Jaikes; Mr Philip Renouf's impersonation of Henry Corket is exceedingly clever, and he is a favourite with the audience; Elijah Coombes is well played by Mr Arthur Wright; and Nellie Denver receives careful treatment in the hands of Miss Lillian Bethell.

KETTERING.

KIDDERMINSTER.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—The attraction here this week is Miss Grace Warner's company, including Mr George Gordon, in the naval musical comedy entitled The New Commander. Lieutenant Frank Harding is ably portrayed by Mr George Gordon; Mr E. Couch-Johns is good as Lieutenant Jack Tremingway; the Sultan of Ramjamjah is in the clever hands of Mr St. Bernard Wyntour; Mr M. Anderson causes much fun as Tittums, a waiter; Miss May Dallas is a lively Vivette; while Miss Grace Warner in the title-rôle is charming. The Primrose Quartet of dancers are very clever.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—This week we are favoured with still another visit of that most successful musical comedy, A Country Girl, and once more it fills the house at every performance. The company is Mr George Dance's, and a very capable lot they are. Mr C. R. Walenn's clever work as the irrepressible Barry is a popular feature, the duets, with his partner Sophie, smartly enacted by Miss Maud Prenton, being specially enjoyed; Mr Robert Michaelis acts and sings in accomplished style as Geoffrey Chaloner; the Marjory of Miss Maud Boyd is chiefly to be noted for her really fine vocal work; Miss Daisy Le Hay is a notable success as the unsophisticated Nan; the Rajah is well represented by Mr St. John Hamund, his topical song being one of the biggest successes of the night; Miss Ethel Negretti is a dainty Princess; and Mr Joe Nightingale and Mr J. Jack Daly ably fill other leading parts.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—A strong drama by Mr J. A. Campbell, entitled The Sins of Her Childhood, is proving an attraction at this theatre. Miss Mary Fulton as the erring woman presents a difficult part with distinction; the victimised sister Mary is a no less successful effort by Miss Jennie Hicks; and a powerful delineation of the unscrupulous brother Stephen goes to the credit of Mr Austen Milroy. Mr Chas. Fancourt is noticeable for an excellent impersonation of the Rev. Alan Grey; and the author worthily portrays the part of Captain Thornton. The comedy element is well looked after by Mr Fred Elvin and Miss May Pratt, and there are two clever child actresses in the cast, Little Dot and Little Edith.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Chas. Bush.—Miss Lena Ashwell has brought an exceedingly strong company for her presentation of Marguerite, an adaptation from the French "La Montansier," by Michael Morton. Playing the title-rôle Miss Ashwell gives a most accomplished portrayal, her acting being strong and forceful in every phase. Admirable support is rendered by Mr Frank Mills as Neuville. Every member of the cast plays his or her part with distinction, the work of Mr Thomas Holding and Mr Charles Groves deserving special mention.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—That popular star artiste Marie Lloyd is the big attraction here, and some smart new items rendered in her own inimitable style ensure a rousing reception at every performance. A pair of amusing eccentrics, Foreman and Fannon, accurately hit off the public taste in some most comical business, and a musical and dancing turn by Hume, Ross, and Lewis is one of the most enjoyable turns. Max Milian, juggler-equilibrist and weight-lifter presents his well-known act. The comedians are Geo. Reeves and Silent Tait, and both find favour. The acrobatic comedy pair Marba and Verity go through their usual show. Cassie Walmer, a dusky artiste, warbles in popular style, and the programme is completed by Dot Hardy, low comedy artiste; the Caselli Sisters, speciality dancers; and Ella Lane, comedienne.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos. Barrasford; General Managers, Mr Charles Weldon and Mr Edgar O. Waller.—The New York Comedy Four carry off first honours at this popular hall, their turn including harmony and comedy business. An expert cycle speciality is done by the Valdares; Fred Cary, a successful comedian, scores a huge success; a clever little sketch is presented by Reed and Glenny; a smart comedy duo are here in Avon and Crest; the ever-popular illustrated song folks Martine and Son, meet with the usual good reception; and further good entertainment is subscribed by Ben Nevis, comedian and speciality dancer, and Alma Gray, the clever little Australian artiste.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D. Leigh.—As Midnight Chimes, presented by Mr Edward Marris's company, is the attraction here this week. The drama, which is on a first visit, is all the more interesting as Mr Marris, the author, has local associations, and his rapid progress in the profession has been a source of much pleasure to his many friends in Leicester and the district. Mr Marris has sent a capital company, including a big favourite here in Mr Wittie Wattie Walton, who has a most congenial part as Tat Spavvin, and Mr Melville Bickford, who as Luke Dezzard, the evil genius, is seen to great advantage. Mr Frank E. Petley as Dave Stannard, the hero, is all than can be desired, and as the heroine, Mary Stannard, Miss Gertrude Price is excellent. Miss Annie Megson as Suzette, a French maid, gives a vivacious and clever exposition of the part. Miss Iris M. Ward scores a success as the Hindoo girl Zamora, and Miss Minnie Ethel is capital as Little Davy. Other parts are well sustained by Mr Henry Beaufort, Mr Percy Maitland, Mr Payne Williams, Mr Dan Parker, and Mr Arthur Proctor. The play is well staged.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—The new emotional drama A Path of Thorns occupies the boards here this week. The play is of a most interesting character, and is presented by Hardie and Von Leer's well-selected company in good style. Mr Claude King as John Edmonds gives a clever portrayal, and the same remark applies to Mr Cyril W. Mackay as the Rev. Frank Selby. Mr Cecil Du Gue is a success as Jonas Deane. Mr Alfred Lester as Sam Hallett, from Lancashire, is well placed. Mr J. H. Booth as Jim Price and Mr Forrester Harvey as Ratty Gabbitt are very good. Miss Violet Luddington makes a sympathetic Bessie Edmunds, and Miss Mary Raby as Constance Howard and Miss M. Stanley Burt as Nellie Hallett are also to be complimented. Miss Amy Rogerson is prominent with a humorous portrayal as Jane Adelaide. Little Mabel May acts naturally as the child, Lucy. Others to be singled out are Mr Harry F. Wright (Dr. Gaye) and Mr G. Major Cooke (Edward Langley).

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—The daintiest of all male impersonators, Miss Vesta Tilley, is the bright particular star here this week. This charming little lady, who gives her songs in such a delightful style that she captivates all parts of the house alike, is being accorded nightly a flattering reception. So enthusiastic is the audience that four songs have to be rendered, included in which are two new ones to Leicester, viz., "The Wise Old Owl" and "The Seaside Sultan," which prove very popular. At the other end of the bill is Fred Russell, who, with the aid of "Coster Joe," give a thoroughly enjoyable and clever ventriloquial show. Lily Langtry, who has a dashing and vivacious style possessed by few artists, scores her usual success on a welcome return visit. J. E. Coyle, one of the funniest and most versatile comedians that visits Leicester, keeps the audience in the merriest of moods. Peppo's monkeys, in an original Risley act, reflect the greatest credit on their trainer. The Three Laurels display remarkable cleverness in their original speciality on the ping-pong table. Heely and Meely, comedy acrobats, cause much hearty laughter. The Three Ramoniers, in a combined ladder balancing act, give a graceful, pretty, and clever exhibition. The Fleury Trio of dainty Parisian dancers also entertain. A feature of the programme is the Rugby Union walk from Leicester to Hinckley on Saturday, which is faithfully depicted on the American Bioscope.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—Topping a good show here this week is Atroy, the society juggler and hoop roller, whose exceptionally smart turn is well received. Violi, lady instrumentalist, who is most cordially welcomed for her clever playing on various musical novelties, is at the other end. The Grosvenor Trio of operatic vocalists are very good. Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte, in an original comedy duologue entitled Saucy Maud, are amusing. Blanche Haddon, ballad and descriptive vocalist, has an excellent voice, which she uses to advantage. R. W. Russell is a clever character impersonator, elocutionist, and mimic. Maud Beaumont is a popular comedienne. Fred Dunstone, character comedian, is always welcomed here.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—The excellent programme submitted here this week is drawing crowded houses. It is headed by Mr Percy Maye, whose impersonation of a lady is quite unique. Comical Walker causes endless fun with his acrobatic nippers; Mr Harry Maynard, comedian, is heartily applauded for his singing; Mr Alf Levaine is excellent in his wire act; the Sisters Morrison, duettists and dancers, contribute some high-kicking dances; Okendis, on a large wooden ball, does some clever juggling tricks; the Rozells, triple bar performers, are successful; and Mr Gillin, ventriloquist, keeps the house in roars of laughter.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. H Dunlop.—Included in a good company this week is Tonini, Continental illusionist, who does some excellent conjuring tricks. Mr Frank Tyrill, comedian, is well received, as is Miss Beatie Foster, vocalist. Mr Wallace Whitney, comedian, is greatly applauded for his singing of "The Fireman." The American Lights, dancers, received a most hearty welcome. Mr Harry Glynn and his combination of comedians were quite a success. Professor Bennett, ventriloquist, greatly amused his auditors. The Hippodrome pictures were also good.

LINCOLN.

ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King.—A Hot Night is paying a successful return visit, Milton Ray's company presenting the show. Mr Arthur Milton as Frank Flutterwig is more amusing than ever, Mr Rolando Martin scores with every line he utters as Whiffles, and Mr Harry T. Butler is decidedly smart as Maybury, and Mr Francis Hope is richly humorous as Flutterwig, Mr A. Wellesley unctuous and duly mysterious as the Professor, and Mr James Sherwin properly ferocious as Captain Drake. Miss Susie Bevan is again a delightful Pollie Drake. Miss Clara Reid very smart as Lucy Lorrimer, Miss Adeline Montagu artistic in the arduous rôle of Mrs Flutterwig, Miss Madge Wrae graceful as Mrs Frith, and Miss Jessie Wray very successful as Mrs Maybury. The Eldorado dancers are smart, and the staging is very effective.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur. — Shicklay's bears provide a sensational turn this week, and reveal remarkable training. John Marx creates a great impression by an exhibition of feats of prodigious strength, and Gwennie Hasto's dancing is very smart. Other very acceptable turns are contributed by Les Valdos, Steeley and Dowton, Four Jumels, Arthur Aldridge, Fred Herbert, and Eugene Mieka.

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE — Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—It is generally agreed in Liverpool that Mr W. S. Gilbert, always a master of the art of representing the realms of topsyturvydom, has quite excelled himself in The Fairy's Dilemma, which is being presented for the first time in this city at the Court. Its quaint humour and excruciatingly funny situations are provocative of almost continuous merriment. Mr Charles V. France capably portrays Colonel Sir Trevor Mauleverer; Mr Frank Collins is the Justice Whortle; and Miss Ada Homer the Lady Angela who ultimately becomes the columbine. Each of these artistes are taking the fullest advantage of the whimsicalities of the piece. Miss Elsie Cook offers a highly pleasing and in every sense graceful performance as Fairy Rosebud; and Mr C. Herbert Hewitson capitally sustains the part of the Demon Alcohol. The "domestic pantomime," as Mr Gilbert himself describes it, is excellently staged, and has proved a huge success. The Conversion of Nat Sturge precedes.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED —Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Gaffney.—The Darling of the Gods, which is being presented here for the second time by Mr Tree's talented company, is attracting large audiences. Mr Robert Pateman repeats a strong and impressive performance as Zakkuri; Mr Kay Souper plays the part of Kara, the outlaw, with force; and Mr Douglas Payne offers a capital study of the dumb servant Inu. That accomplished young actress Miss Frances Dillon is cast for the character of Princess Yo-San, "the Darling of the Gods," and perfectly does she sustain the exceedingly difficult part. Her laughter is infectious, and her sorrows move to tears. Miss Edith Deverell ably portrays Yo San's maid; Miss Rhoda Ray is charming as a Geisha; and Mr Hubert Druce is good as Kato. A special word of praise is also due to Messrs Henry Wallace, Geo. Harrison, Victor Grey, Arthur Lyons, Allestone, and A. Sheridan, who represent the spies of Zakkuri.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun.—Mr Osmond Tearle's Shakespearian and classical répertoire company, including the charming actress, Miss Carrie Baillie, and the young tragedienne, Mr G. Alex. Marsh, is engaged here. The programme includes Hamlet, Othello, As You Like It, Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, and Richard III., and in each instance the two artistes named have sustained with success the leading rôles. The company also includes the Misses Fannie Chamberlain and Kathleen Magee, Mrs William Lowe, Messrs John Burton, Godfrey Tearle, George Tearle, Julian J. Gallier, William Lowe, G. Wayland,

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—A good programme is topped by Lady Mansel and her juveniles, who render several numbers in a finished manner. Cabaret's dogs are particularly clever, and reflect much credit on their trainer. Billy Farrell keeps the house in excellent humour with his rag-time songs and dances; Lennie and Hast are loudly applauded for a unique act, in which songs and dances are capably rendered; Zasma is a clever gymnast; and the Babusian Brothers are particularly daring acrobats. Kit Keen, coon artist, is good; Chas. R. Whittle is well received; and Lea and Lovell's illustrated songs are duly acknowledged.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—A Fight for Millions is the title of the American drama which is drawing crowded houses here. It is portrayed by a company organised by Mr Robert Perris and embracing many capable artistes. The piece is rich in scenic and mechanical effects, one of the most striking features being the representation of a submarine boat at the bottom of the Hudson River. Mr Robert Perris himself gives an acceptable portrayal of Tom Manley, the inventor of the wireless ocean telephone, and Miss Evelyn Robson is clever as Helen Dudley, a deserted wife. Others who offer noteworthy enactments are Miss Fannie Williams, Miss W. Acton, Miss Gertie Douglas; Messrs J. Newton Cowling, W. G. Stevenson, L. Clements, and Fred Acton.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville.—The musical farce His Majesty's Guests occupies the stage here, and there is no doubt that it is fulfilling to the utmost the aim of the author, who "manufactured it expressly for laughing purposes." Mr Fred Karno's comedians are ever welcome in Liverpool, and their comicalities are being hugely enjoyed. Mr Harry Roxbury is a great favourite as Sergeant Lightning.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—Mr Charles Prinz and his seventeen lions occupy the premier position, and the evolutions through which Prinz puts his pets cause the utmost enthusiasm. The remarkable exhibion concludes with a fire dance in the midst of the lions by Miss Marcella, a feature which is followed with breathless attention. Harriett Vernon, the well-known and popular comedienne and burlesque artiste, is highly successful in her songs; Harry Dent and George Formby are both exceedingly funny comedians; Les Brunins present a novel billiard entertainment; Albert Christian renders some of his favourite baritone songs; Juan and McQue cause much merriment by their knockabout business; and others are Harry Bickley, eccentric comedian; Rezene and Robini, "the two little birds on their perch;" Katie Cohen, pleasing ballad vocalist; May Milburn, dainty comedienne and dancer; and the Two Graces, charming duettists and dancers.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Richard Sawade, with his lions, tigers, bears, and dogs, heads the bill here, and the performance given is undoubtedly one of the finest that anyone would like to witness. Tom M'Inerney, the champion wrestler of England (catch-as-catch-can style), is contributing some clever exhibitions, which are received with the greatest enthusiasm. George W. Leslie and company are contributing a most amusing sketch entitled Chums, as played by Mr Leslie 1,200 times; Tom Lloyd sings two funny songs; Walter Bellonini is a clever jugglers; Alf Aubyn is entertaining as an acrobatic gavotte dancer; the Jurgens Trio supply an excellent turn as acrobats on rolling globes; and acceptable items are given by Will Godwin, vocal actor; and Mirzah, banjoist, &c. The animated pictures are excellent.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—The principal attraction is provided by Mr Charles Majilton, who, with a company of eccentric comedians, is creating the utmost merriment with his piece, Round the Clock. Mr Charles Majilton and Miss Madeline Majilton sustain prominent parts. Miss Mill May, a notable quick-change artiste, is earning enthusiastic applause by her performance; Larito, on this his first visit to Liverpool, is winning wide popularity; the Bioscope pictures are as pleasing as ever; and Les Laurens are presenting an entertaining story of the war in black and white and classical figures.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Weldon, the swell entertainer, is proving highly popular here, and Harry Leybourne is earning an excellent reputation. Frank Dunlop, a comedian, who is never "tyred," offers a capital entertainment; the Three Adriennes (Mons, Nellie, and Louie) are clever sand dancers and whistlers; Chris Masters gives some good character songs; Flo Chevalier is a successful burlesque actress; and the Bioscope Pictures complete an all-round capital programme.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr J. Keirnan.—Aga, the suspended maiden, is again the chief attraction, and the way in which she floats about in mid air is mystifying large audiences. The Summersons (Will and Maggie), comedy duettists, give a laughable sketch; the Empire Comedy Quintet are extremely funny, their patter being especially enjoyed; and Harry Wright, comedian and extempore vocalist, creates roars of laughter by his humorous songs. A clever turn is given by the Two Stars (Lottie and Gerty), duettists and speciality dancers, and others in the bill are Ernest Leslie, vocal comedian; Nellie Gannon, descriptive vocalist and dancer; and Cowen and Crolini, operatic duettists.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery.—Mr Henry Carlton, the popular comedian, supported by his comedy team, heads the bill here with the absurdity entitled One Night Only; Jimmy Shields, one-legged dancer, provides an acceptable turn; and the programme is contributed to by Kisbey, "the call boy;" Cline and Clark, specialty dancers; Gus Hindell, character comedian; the Sisters Alndow, in a musical speciality; and Bert Woodward, the original comedy cycling coon.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—The Four M.P.'s (the Musical Palmers) remain here for another week, and their admirable musical item, entitled The Officers' Rehearsal, in which coach horns, handbells, and the silver quartette are introduced, continues to please. Miss Daisy Palmer's imitation of Sousa is highly amusing. Barnard's marionettes, which are so life-like in their movements, are always welcome; Lee and Arden are applauded for their laughable sketch, The Watchman; and other items are given by the Percys (Harry and Lillie), speciality performers and dancers; Les Prinellas (Joe and Leilee), in a screaming absurdity named, A Country Flirtation; Kydd and Kydd, patter comedians; the Vyponds (Fred and Maude), in Engaging a Servant; and Daisy Almer, serio and dancer.

LONGTON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. S. Howard.—Mr W. H. Kirkby's The New Mephisto company is here this week. The piece is excellently interpreted by the "crowd" Mr W. H. Kirkby has gathered around him. As Dick Pilgrim he is highly successful. Mr Fred Lyne as Mr Mephistopheles and other characters is most amusing. Mr Herbert St. John as Lord Hummingtop gives an enjoyable rendering of the dude. The part of Major Bantam in the hands of Mr Willie H. Vernon is racy, and as Dolly Miss Lily Gullick both sings and dances in a captivating manner. The three widows are merrily impersonated by the Misses Dorothy Cecil, Leah Howard, and Marion Keeley. Miss Marion Armitage is most successful as Becky Pilgrim.

LONDONDERRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr W. Payne Seddon.—Mr Norman Macowan's company is presenting Monsieur Beaucaire this week. In the title-rôle Mr Norman Macowan fills the part with marked success; as the Duke of Winterset Mr Stuart Wilson is good; and Mr Herbert Cornish is a capable Major Molyneux. Mr H. A. Young plays Beau Nash very well. Miss Violet Sterne is a clever and dainty Lady Mary Carlisle, and Miss Millie Hamer a delightful Lucy Rellerton.

MACCLESFIELD.

ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr W. K. Gatley.—This week the boards are occupied by Miss Ida Millais's company in No Man's Land on a return visit. Miss Ida Millais as Mary Bathurst is very popular. Mr Henry Herne in the rôle of Harry Oakland displays ability; Mr Fred Convers as Silas Moore and Mr Williams as Mat Maisden are successful; Mr Alfred Burrows as the office boy is very smart; a good deal of humour is imported into the play by the funnlosities of Mr Sydney H. Morton as Solomon Jacob; Mr Claude Haviland as Dr Buxton, and Miss Kate Maynard as Mrs Poodle.

MANCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr Edmondstone Shirra.—Saturday to Monday, the new comedy by Frederick Fenn and Richard Price, was presented here on Monday, for the first time in Manchester, by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company. The fun of the piece is largely farcical, the plot is rather ingeniously worked out, and there is no lack of entertaining situation and amusing dialogue. As Lord Culvert, whose affairs are the pivot of the play, Mr Stuart Champion scores a very decided success. Miss Moyra Creegan as the widow is also capitally gifted for the part, while Mr Dallas Welford as Stanley Pidding is very diverting and Mr Thomas Sidney contributes a clever and enjoyable idea of the Rev. Lemuel Toop. All the other members of a nicely balanced cast are satisfactory. The piece is preceded by a clever one-act play, Judged by Appearances, one of the best of curtain-raisers.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—Mr George Dance's company is here this week, in Madame Sherry, one of the latest successful musical plays. There is certainly nothing wanting to amuse in this bustling, extravagant depiction of the financial and other troubles of Andrew M'Sherry. It is considerably enlivened also by bright dresses and scenery, and an accompaniment of good music and numerous capital songs. Mr J. Robert Hale does exceedingly well in the part of the worried young bachelor, and Miss Lily Elsie as Barbara figures prettily and cleverly throughout. Miss Georgina Delmar as Catarina uses her fine voice to advantage; Mr F. W. Ford gives an amusing depiction of the Colonel; and Mr Fred Walton, Miss Nellie Dade, and Mr Ivan Berlyn contribute the bulk of the humour with success.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—Mr George Dance's well-known musical play, A Chinese Honeymoon, is once more the attraction at this popular house. It is late in the day to praise the many pleasing features of this delightful piece; suffice it that the various parts are all in good hands, and that Mr Martin Adeson, Miss Vera Vere, Miss Eva Bevington, Miss Madge Temple, Miss Holford Beringer, Mr Frank Crimp, and Mr Philip Hayden are all especially successful in their various ways, Miss Eva Bevington's vivacious rendering of "The A La Girl" and Miss Madge Temple's song "Egypt" being more particularly worthy of note.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Two big turns are included in this week's programme here, namely, the Dayton Family, marvellously clever Risley acrobats, and the popular Australian comedian, Billy Williams, the singer of "Little People." Other smart and enjoyable turns are Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers; Craig, Rose, and Craig, gymnasts; Ray and Miles, comedy jugglers; Leo Montague, comedian and dancer; Abdl Kader, lightning picture painter; Guy Rider, a young vocalist and whistler; Cribb and Cribb, in a burlesque sketch; Rappo and Ella, speciality artistes; and last, but by no means least, Harry Maxam, eccentric comedian.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr Frederick Melville's interesting drama, Between Two Women, was well received at this theatre on Monday evening. Mr Albert Ward gives a powerful rendering of his original part of the Rev. Philip Carton. Miss Marie Robson and Miss Morita Valdar are the "two women" (Violet Thornton and Carmen De Savereux) of the title, and each contributes appreciably to the success of the play, which moves in a long series of exciting and enthralling situations. Mr Tubby Edlin as Jack Pringle supplies the greater part of the humour, being well assisted by Miss Sybil Hammersley in the rôle of Polly Popp.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—A new play, Ancestors of the Crown, was produced here on Monday. A notice appears in another column.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The Three Geralds top the bill here this week in an exceptionally smart display of club juggling. Another good turn is given by Amy Anderson and company entitled A Coster Incident, in which some clever somersaults are introduced. Larry Lewis is an excellent comedian, who makes a decided hit with his quaint methods. George Rapley is successful in songs and patter. The Katos are responsible for a novel turn in the shape of an automatic theatre—a clever marionette show. The Sisters Terry are talented mimics and duettists, and are well received. Astley's Circus proves most interesting, the riding machine and revolving table causing roars of laughter; and Verin is an eccentric contortionist of much ability. Other pleasing items are Mabel La Blanche, vocalist; Charles Denton, comedian; and the Hippodrome pictures. Wallis and Walton, comedy artistes, who figure on the programme, did not appear on the night of our visit.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—An excellent programme is provided here. Carl Mysto, the "Monarch of Manacles," gives an interesting exhibition, and his box trick fairly amazes the audience. Edie Gray and coons also earn favour by their enjoyable singing, which is decidedly above the average. Other good turns are supplied by Paul Courtney and company, in a farcical sketch, The Doctor; Harry Avory, the boy soprano; Hurman, a talented juggler and hoop manipulator; and Jack Hylton, a comedian of merit. The clever Andos Troupe of happy little Japs are still in Manchester, their performance always being watched with interest, and greatly appreciated. A considerable amount of success is also gained by Inez Clough, ballad singer; the Floradora Girls, a bevy of pretty comediennes and dancers; Caselli and James, banjo experts; and Barton Howard, musical and farmyard mimic. Animated pictures are also shown.

TIVOLI. — Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—The programmes here continue to be excellent. Mdlle. Luba De Sarema introduces a number of well-trained and intelligent animals in her sensational act, "Transkaukasia," a remarkably clever show, and meets with a hearty reception. Well received also are the turns of Herbert Shelley, actor-vocalist, who renders three capital songs in fine style; the Three Pinaros, in an amusing sketch, with smart dancing introduced; and Yolande Noble, a pleasing comedienne, who sings well. Other successful turns are Victor Stevens, a favourite actor-vocalist; William Gourlay, who makes a hit as the "Scarecrow;" the Sisters Neilson, entertaining duettists and dancers; Alexandra Royal, burlesque artiste; Esme Gordon, comedienne; and Barko, a bird, animal, and musical imitator.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—Good houses are the rule here this week, the chief attraction being Sam Elton, the silent comedian, who is credited with having made the Shah laugh. He repeats his remarkably clever kitchen scene, and roars of laughter follow his tart-eating antics, his amazing tumbles, and his eccentric business in general. Another excellent turn is that of Billy Howard, with his quaint fooling, and the graceful contortions of Katherine Harris, in their sketch, good singing and dancing also being introduced. Well-received turns also are given by Marie Winsome, a favourite male impersonator; Prof. Wilsen, whose performance on the Swedish bar is somewhat daring; Frank Hope, a clever trick cyclist; George Bendon, the white coon; Winnie Scott, comedienne; and Edward Clode, baritone vocalist. A series of interesting animated pictures complete the entertainment.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—Over the Sticks, performed for the first time in the provinces, is the chief attraction here this week. It is a highly amusing and realistic sketch, and is remarkably well staged. Joe Elvin, who impersonates his twin brother, a jockey, in order that the latter may be secretly married, has a part which fits him like a glove. His easy and breezy style carries all before him, and the audience is kept in a good humour from start to finish. Another excellent turn is that of the Sisters Merkel, who go through a most remarkable acrobatic performance in a highly finished manner, and earn hearty applause. Maud Courtenay, the American girl, gives a refined turn in song and story; Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford are seen to advantage in The Two Love Birds; Barney Stuart, a talented and versatile entertainer, appears in his act, Impersonalia; and other enjoyable items are Coram, a really clever ventriloquist; Harry Speldon, tenor vocalist; Alice Maple, serio; Ida Brophy, serio and dancer; and the Palace Pictures. An excellent selection, as usual, is rendered by the orchestra.

ARDWICK EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—Marie Loftus, the ever-charming burlesque artist, is the bright particular star here this week, and full houses testify to her continued popularity. The Four Gothams are heard and seen to advantage in a capital musical absurdity by Mr R. A. Roberts, entitled Miss Green, introducing no less than nine characters played by themselves, including a "chorus of domestics, &c." Fred Harcourt succeeds in mystifying the audience, and manipulates billiard balls and cards in a surprising fashion. Mdlle. De Dio, the peerless, appears in a beautiful creation, "Terpsichore's Dream;" and Henri Abdy's canine circus comprises two remarkably clever dogs and a pony. Katie Weston, comedienne, and Lillian Warren, vocalist, sing very well; Alfred Hurley makes a hit with his song, "My Bluebell"; and Nat Travers scores with a coster song. Very cleverly trained are the macaws and cockatoos introduced by Mdlle. Marvelle; and highly amusing is Fred Lincoln as Bertie of the Guards, with excellent dancing added. The American Bioscope shows some interesting animated pictures, and completes an enjoyable performance.

MARGATE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr Charles E. Hardy.—Mr Thomas Thorne with his company has been paying a very welcome visit here again with the well-known comedies Our Boys and The Guv'nor. The first-named piece was played on the first three nights of the week, Mr Thorne's inimitable impersonation of Perkyn Middlewick being much enjoyed. The popular comedian has good support from Mr Russell Rosse as Sir Geoffrey Champneys, Mr C. Otter Hind as Talbot Champneys, Mr H. Hamilton as Charles Middlewick, Miss Ethel Verne as Violet Melrose, Miss Muriel Godfrey-Turner as Mary Melrose, Miss Nellie Clarence as Clarissa Champneys, and Miss Edith Hesketh as Belinda. For Thursday and Friday The Guv'nor was billed.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—Mr Arthur Roberts paid a three nights' visit here with his company, and presented an entertaining programme on Monday and the two following evenings.

HALL BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr Chas. Evans.—This week sees the close of this place of entertainment after a more than usually successful season. The programme has included Florence Leonard, soprano vocalist; Chas. Ulrick, barrel king; the New York Quartet, vocalists and acrobatic dancers; Harry Morgan, coon comedian and dancer; Dezmonti and Mora, triple-bar performers; and an extra turn, Miss Kathleen Leslie, a charming comedienne. The Payne Bio-Photoscope has been showing an interesting series of pictures.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs George and Charles Imeson.—Mr Frederick Melville's company, in Her Forbidden Marriage, makes its first appearance here, and wins the approval of large audiences. Miss Isla Garnett Vayne as Lucy is charming, and Mr Horace Hunter as the wronged husband plays feelingly. Mr Charles Hague as Charles Devereux gives a powerful representation. Lady Lucretia is capably portrayed by Miss Dora Brooks; Mr Charles Carte's Sir George Lancaster is worthy of praise; Miss Emily Hughes gives a sympathetic portrayal of the Mother Superior; and Mr Harry Elliston is to be congratulated on his efforts to amuse.

OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Licensee and Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—Mr Milton Bode's company in Woman and Wine is fulfilling a week's engagement here. Mr Frank R. Robertson as Dick Seymour gives a manly and altogether fine delineation of the part, and Miss Edith Blande submits a graceful and effective rendering of Muriel Rigadout; Alphonse Beaudet is finely portrayed by Mr Walter Thornton; Mr Herbert Landeck is good as the mischief-making Pierre Crucru; and Miss Muriel Vox capitally portrays Janet Marlow. The other characters are well taken.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—Mr John Lawson and company again make their appearance before a Teesside audience in the successful sketch, Humanity, and arouse a high pitch of enthusiasm. Grell and Gray are a great success in their original absurdity, Bertie's First Lesson in Tennis, provoking much laughter; Harry Seymour, actor-mimic, is good; and Daisy Morell sings some capital songs. The Stavordale Quintet of banjo players elicit much applause; whilst Percival, the trick pianist, meets with an excellent reception. Miss Cissie Heath, comedienne, sings acceptably, and Jumas' Octoroons and the Bio-pictures make up a good programme.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Peacock; Manager, Mr William Ainsworth.—The Four Milons head the bill here, and give a smart display of athletic skill; Harry Grey, the Australian nugget, meets with a great reception; Miss Ada Fawn, comedienne, is excellent; Will Lytton, comedian is a smart turn; and George Essman is an amusing juggler. Fred Solo and Agnes Mayo are capital dancers, and the Sisters Adelaide sing with effect. The Mezondos, eccentrics, and the Bio complete the programme.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—Honour Thy Father, presented by Mr T. Morton Powell's company, is attracting large audiences this week. Prominent in the cast is Mr J. W. Evelyn, who gives a vigorous and telling portrayal of Gabriel Garth; Miss Kate Newton submits an admirable presentment of Gertrude Garth, Lillian being capitally played by Miss Mabel Coleman; Mr Douglas B. Watson scores as Capt. Jack Halyard, Mr Albert Guyon is plausible as Duncan Bly, and Mr Claude Merton successfully doubles the rôles of Job Merry and George Blogga. Merey Merry and Violet Wilfred have efficient representatives in Misses Flora Leslie and Maud Grey. Comedy relief is provided by Mr Fred W. Graham as Mike Copplestone, Mr Fred Richards as Ned Pennycomquick, and Miss Fannie Wallace as Poppy Cornleigh.

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Messrs Carson and Granville's company is playing the drama Defending His Honour here this week. Mr John Davidson is to the fore with a capital rendering of Douglas Bryce; Mr Clifton Boyle powerfully depicts the villain Stephen Graid; Mr C. H. Herbert is successful as George Duncan; Mr John Hignett is capable as Jack Damish, as is Mr F. L. Arthur as Richard Verison; while Mr Kenneth Black is interesting in the rôle of Dick Verison. Miss F. Melrose-Millet submits an effective emotional interpretation of the heroine, Ethel Brice, and scores heavily. Miss L. Matthews is acceptable in the character of Trixie Lucien; and the Theresa Verison of Mrs Edmond Lyons is pleasing.

MOTHERWELL.

NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company is here this week in the drama A Life's Revenge. Mr Fred C. Somerfield acts with great effect in the part of the rascally Prince Boris Strogoff. Mr John F. Traynor gives a clever exposition of Paul Starovitch. Mr Pringle Roberts scores as Maurice Trevor. Miss Marie Dagmar as Princess Vanda Ivyala acts with great pathos, and her delineation receives the applause it merits. As Marcia Victoria, the Red Angel, Miss Katherine Eckhart acts with great power. Mr Walter Roberts's Michael Orloff is a strong and vigorous piece of acting. Mr Martin Bigham is well received as Lieutenant Semaloff, and the rest of the characters, including Miss May Davis as Daphne Dashaway and Mr Sidney Ernest as Nicholas, give adequate assistance.

MORPETH.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Wheatcroft.—On Monday Messrs George Mitchell and John Belton's company opened here with The Conscript. Mr Mitchell gave a finished and vigorous performance as Karl Truevitch; Nadia was charmingly portrayed by Miss Mary Dawson, the freshness and delicacy of her performance being greatly appreciated; Mr Frank Lilliput as a postman provoked great merriment; and Mr John Belton gave a clever character study as Doggervitch. Master Robert Wheatcroft also scored in a small part.

NORWICH.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr Charles Otley and his excellent company are presenting Caste. Mr James Geldard as the Hon. George D'Alroy has made a favourable impression; Mr Milroy Cooper was equally well received as Capt. Hawtrey; Mr Charles Otley was good as Eccles, and created much amusement; Mr Harry Gordyn did well as Sam Gerridge; and Mr Fitzpatrick ably filled the part of Dixon. Miss Keith Lytton was admirable as the Marquise De St. Maur, whilst Miss Beatrice was charmingly sympathetic as Esther Eccles. Miss Fay Rivington became a warm favourite as the exuberant Polly Eccles.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt.—George Leyton, actor-vocalist, is the attraction here this week. Assisted by Corporal William Jenkins and a chorus of twenty Norwich boys, he gives a good rendering of Boys of the Chelsea School. The Bros. De Wynne as athletes and acrobats submit a clever performance; Harry Taft is a wonderful whistling comedian; Baroni and Kemp create fun in their sketch, Fun on Furlough; Austin and Cowan, Australian vocalists, deserve the reception accorded them; Nita Clavering is successful in her songs; Toney Iveson, the tramp pianist, is a good turn; Eric Graham amuses with his coster songs; whilst Miss Millie Harris is a pleasing serio.

NEWPORT.

LYCEUM. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—Mr Leon M. Lion is producing this week here, with a capable company, the romantic drama, The Edge of the Storm. Mr Henry Renouf plays Jim Poulett with great power. He is supported in an exceedingly capable manner by Miss Jean Stirling Mackinlay as Szentes Leta; she puts her whole soul into the part. Miss Ada Marius plays Lyentes Wilma in admirable style, and another good character, Bakonye, is excellently interpreted by Mr Fred Annerley.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—A good bill is provided here this week. Miss Flo Burris, attractively costumed, sings a pretty and pathetic song; Johnny Dwyer, comedian, is exceedingly funny, evoking roars of applause; and Brown and Robinson, in The Bricklayers, produce harmony in the kitchen, in which they display excellent voices; May Henderson is a vivacious and humorous coon singer, winning admiration for her dances; the Mascotte Trio give a clever performance on the rings and trapeze; and the Manhattan Comedy Four (an excellent combination) sing with purity and sweetness, coupled with an element of comedy that is appreciated; Miss Norah Emerald, a dainty song and dance artist, is admired. An amusing pantomime is provided by Donaldson Bros. and Ardel; and the Bioscope adds considerably to the entertainment by a series of amusing pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—The Red Indian authoress and actress, Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, is here this week in her own sensational drama, Wep-Ton-No-Mah. In the name-rôle Miss Mohawk creates a character-part which meets with great approval. The lady is well supported by Mr C. W. Charles as Colonel Stockton, U.S.C.; Mr Geo. Thorne as Manuel Lopez, Mr Geo. Courtney as Captain Franklin, Mr Theo Alker as Chief Ga-ne-Gua, Mr Sam White, Mr Dan Ryan as Garry Cullen, Mr W. H. Killey as Billy Bugler, U.S.A.; Miss Minnie Goepel as Nellie Stockton, and Miss Jessie Hart as Miss Matilda Sniffles.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr Robert Barton.—Ten high-class items are in the programme this week, including the Howards (Ralph and Nellie), clever instrumentalists; G. W. Foster, a favourite eccentric comedian; the Two Weirs (Frank and Lottie), smart duettists and dancers; Lily Turner, a versatile vocalist who has been very successful in her descriptive and serio songs; Idalia May, international transformation dancer, who is both skilful and graceful; the Padleys (Violet and Harry), in a comedy act, comprising singing, dancing, and boxing; Pauline Corri, a charming contralto and reciter; and the Lester Clifford Troupe of ladies, who are highly pleasing in their varied dances.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—The New Barmaid company, under the direction of Mr Alexander Loftus, has received a hearty welcome here this week. As Bertie White Mr Joseph B. Montague comes in for a flattering reception; Mr Alexander Loftus as William White is very entertaining; Mr Harrison Brockbank is seen to advantage as Captain Lovebury; Mr Albert Weston is good as Mons. Bonsor; Mr Herbert Cottesmore does well in the part of Colonel Claymore; and Mr Leslie Austin is smart as Gussie. Miss Gladys Elvey makes a graceful and attractive Ethel Joy; Miss Madge Merry gives a delightful portrayal of Dora Heather; Miss Jean Gilmour is capital as Lady Moulton; Miss Hilda Blanche submits a clever interpretation of Brenda; and the other parts are well sustained.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr William Mould.—Lieutenant Chard's dog circus tops the bill here, and gives a clever performance. The Three Musical Japs are heartily applauded; Primavesi in his marvellous juggling act has made a great hit; Mr Joe Humphreys, comedian, meets with much favour; St. Alban and Williams, operatic vocalists, are much appreciated; and Messrs Cavern and Cave, in An Early Morning Dip, cause much laughter.

Dolly Mayflower ..... Miss KATE BRAND
Mrs Twigg ..... Mrs STANISLAUS CALHAEM

It is difficult to understand the intense enthusiasm which was aroused by the first performance of Douglas Jerrold's drama The old Surrey was the theatre, and the date was June 6, 1829. To present day playgoers the plot seems trite and thin, but that it delighted a former generation of patrons of the theatre there is ample evidence to prove. The story of how the drama came to be produced at the Surrey is worth retelling When Elliston retired from the management of Drury-lane, the Surrey being vacant, he again in 1827 undertook the direction of affairs. At this time Douglas Jerrold, then a young man, was writing dramas for Davidge, of the Cobourg, for five pounds a week One day he and Davidge quarrelled, and instead of delivering over the MS. Jerrold had in his pocket, he carried the play to Elliston, who at once accepted it. The drama was Black-Eyed Susan. T. P. Cooke, always well suited in sailor characters, was engaged for William, at the then enormous salary of £60 a week and a half clear benefit every sixth week. The success of the piece was not marked on the first night until it came to the catastrophe, but the curtain fell upon a whirlwind of applause, and with each succeeding performance the attraction increased. "All London," wrote Hepworth Dixon, in the Athenæum, at the time of Jerrold's death, "went over the water, and Cooke became a personage in society, as Garrick had been in the days of Goodman Fields. Covent-garden borrowed the play and engaged the actor for an afterpiece A hackney cab carried the triumphant William in his blue jacket and white trousers from the Obelisk to Bow-street, and Mayfair maidens wept over the stirring situations and laughed over the searching dialogue which had moved an hour before the laughter and tears of the Borough. On the three hundredth night of representation the walls of the theatre were illuminated and vast multitudes filled the thoroughfare. When subsequently produced at Drury-lane it kept off ruin for a time even from magnificent misfortune. Actors and managers for a time reaped a golden harvest. Testimonials were got up for Elliston and Cooke on the glory of its success, but Jerrold's share of the gain was slight—about £70 of the many thousands it realised for the management For the 400 nights Black-Eyed Susan was played at different theatres during the first year, Jerrold received about the sum that Cooke was paid for six nights at Covent garden." One of the Surrey company was an actor named Vale, who introduced a song called "The good old days of Adam and Eve" This proved a great success, and he sang it no fewer than 2 000 times Mr Oswald Brand has, of course, left untouched the principal incidents in the story of William and Susan, but in order to extend the play to the required length he has made additions to the comedy scenes, and a song and some dancing have also been introduced. Mr Brand has done his work neatly and cleverly, as he always does; and Mr George Davey, the lessee, has not been wanting on his part in the satisfactory staging of the drama; but one cannot overlook the fact that there have been scores of sailor heroes on the boards since Black-Ey'd Susan was produced, and that William is not the personage he was in his—dramatically speaking—younger days The stirring incidents of the plot include the insult which Capt. Crosstree, while "in his cups," offers Susan, and his being felled to the ground by the stalwart arm of William; the sailor's trial and manly, but ineffectual plea in defence, his sentence to be hung at the yardarm, and finally his discharge from custody when it is made known by the repentent Crosstree that William was, in fact, discharged from the King's Navy at the time he struck that officer. Mr Ernest Leicester, who was a favourite representative of heroes in melodramas at the Surrey for a considerable time, is a bold and breezy sailor, whose bearing and conduct are as manly as the most exacting could desire. In the parting scene with Susan his acting is particularly telling and impressive; so much so, indeed, that on Monday evening several lady members of the audience shed furtive tears The character of Susan is not one in which Miss Helen Bancroft is seen at her best, but she makes a strikingly handsome sailor's lass; she is earnest in her performance, and her carriage and movements are graceful Mr Joynsen Powell is not quite the bold, bad Captain Crosstree one expects to see, but he plays the part carefully and well. Mr George Stone successfully represents Gnatbrain, and Mr George Elliston is a quaint exponent of the part of Jacob Twigg Mr Arthur Estcourt gives full effect to the surliness of Dograss; and Mr Edward Mayne and Mr J. H Baines do well as Hatchett and Baker. The Lieutenant Pike of Mr George Dudley and the Admiral of Mr Charles Fergus are both good embodiments. Miss Kate Brand plays the part of Dolly Mayflower with commendable brightness; and Mrs Stanislaus Calhaem in a part specially written up to suit the lady's inimitable drolleries, is a comical Mrs Twigg, a bumboat woman, and the mother of Jacob, who affords much entertainment in the trial scene, where the old lady is called as a witness for the defence. This character, by the way, is an entirely new one. Other parts are ably embodied by Messrs G. Jelly, Henry E. George, and C. Clarke. Some smart dances were given by the St. Remo Troupe; and Mr Clifford Constable sang "The Bay of Biscay" in good style. In the early part of the evening a capital variety entertainment includes the Biograph, with up-to-date pictures, and the Moore-Mohawk Minstrels.

THE PAVILION.

A welcome return visit is being paid this week by Mr Charles Frohman's company in William Gillette and Sir A Conan Doyle's play of Sherlock Holmes. The name part could not be in better hands than those of Mr H. A. Saintsbury, whose appearance, voice, and every gesture quite realise the conception of Conan Doyle's famous detective Mr Saintsbury is seen to particular advantage in the Gas Chamber scene, and also in the scenes with Alice Faulkner. In the latter character Miss Vera Longden is charming and sincere, and her graceful acting is most refreshing and convincing. The rôle of Holmes's arch enemy, Professor Moriarty is sustained with marked success by Mr W. F. Stirling, whose dramatic and forcible style is most noteworthy Some particularly good work is done by Mr Lawrence Leyton, who gives a typical impersonation of Dr. Watson. His performance in the consulting room scene is worthy of especial mention. A faithful portrait of Billy is given by Master Cedric Walter, who shows considerable ability, and is a great favourite with the audience. Mr Marc Maodermott is good as John Forman, and Miss Rosalie Notrelle is a capital Therese. As James Larrabee Mr Leslie Carter plays with considerable power, and Miss Maud Linden is really excellent in the heavy part of Madge Larrabee. Mr Legal Robinson appears with due effect as the genial Sidney Prince, and occasions much mirth. As Alfred Bassick Mr J. Poole Kirkwood is entirely satisfactory, while the trio of loafers, Jim Craigin, Thomas Leary, and M'Tague, are admirably depicted by Messrs Douglas Munro, Edward H Fairburn, and Harold Boughton. Mr James F. Anson is a dignified Sir Edward Leighton, and Mr Gissing Walter is a polished Count Von Stahlberg Capable support is rendered by Mr William Wilson as John, Mr Milo M Loomis as Parsons, Miss Clarice Doncaster as Mrs Faulkner, and Miss Ethel St. Leger as Mrs Smeedley. The play is admirably mounted and staged, and the lighting effects are charming.

THE WEST LONDON.

A favourable reception was given to Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company by the Marylebone playgoers on Monday last. As Jack Damer Mr Sydney N Hallows played with an energy and will, and was much appreciated; Mr Alexander L. Isaacson was no less successful as the excitable millionaire, Bunko Bates; Mr Victor Fossett acted with easy effectiveness as Robin Dale; Mr Henry Clayton seemed to be quite at home in the part of Stephen Damer; Mr Tom Robertson was very much in earnest as the plausible scoundrel, Henry Encombe; Mr Frank G Kent did exceedingly well as Willy Jones; and Mr George Collinson was delightfully humorous as the energetic postman, Peter. Though suffering from a bad cold Miss Beatrice Isaacson impersonated Eva Dale in telling fashion; Miss Edith Wallis put plenty of life and go into the part of Sidonie; Miss Maude Hetherington was decidedly good as a flower girl; and Miss Marion Mayne played Ria with an archness and vim which soon found favour and applause. The minor characters were all carefully acted, and the drama was staged and mounted in capital style. Mr Charles Earle is the courteous acting-manager for Miss Isaacson, and Mr James Sinclair, back from his well-earned holiday, looked after the front of the house in his accustomed genial way.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept. 19 the Drama by Messrs G. R. Sims and the late Henry Pettitt, entitled "MASTER AND MAN."

The success of the stock company at this pretty suburban theatre seems assured, and the management has good reason for congratulating itself upon its policy. Excellent houses continue to be the rule, and the efforts of each performer are greeted with delighted approval by the patrons. Mr Ernest E Norris this week has produced the popular drama, Master and Man, and in essaying the rôle of Jack Walton he has hit upon a part that fits him like the proverbial glove. In the varying moods of tenderness and passion, his methods are unique and win for him untinted applause from all parts of the house. A warm favourite is Mr Norris. Mr J C. Aubrey gives a fine portraiture of Jem Burleigh, and deserves every praise for his work. Robert Carlton is placed in the hands of Mr Charles Langley, and the result is all that can be desired As Humpy Logan Mr Jo Monkhouse works hard, and his ultimate repentance gains the forgiveness of the audience for his villainy in the earlier parts of the play. Mr Harry Paulton is happily cast as Tom Honeywood, and he simply revels in the part, his antics and boisterousness being responsible for much hearty laughter; Mr Paige Lawrence makes an excellent Crispin St. Jones; Inspector Willett is capably acted by Mr Norman Clark; and two acrobats are effectively played by Messrs Alf G. Hudson and Arthur Wilson. Mrs Bennett gives a charming performance of Hester Thornbury, her finished acting and interesting personality gaining for her the warmest sympathy. Mrs Bennett's impersonation throughout was of the highest class, and rapturous applause at the end of each act speedily indicated the approval of the onlookers. Miss Agnes Paulton made a fascinating Letty Lightfoot, and her naturally winning manner found immediate favour; Miss Judith Kyrle was good as Keziah Honeywood; and the part of Little Johnny was pleasantly played by Miss Christine Williams Several minor characters were intelligently acted. Mr George Conquest appears here next week in The Work Girl.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Sept 19 "UNDER TWO FLAGS."

This stirring drama has provided a great attraction here this week Mr Mark Blow as the hero, Bertie Cecil Royallieu gave a fine, manly representation, while as Barklie Mr Reginald Harley West filled a difficult rôle with credit The part of Rake, the valet, was most amusingly played by Mr Will Hook, and the song and dance by the valet and the maid (Miss Daisy Carlton) was well received. The villain, Colonel Chateauroy (the Black Hawk) was excellently played by Mr Charles D. Pitt. The heroine, Cigarette (a vivandière), found a most able exponent in Miss Laura Walker, who scored a great success. The parts of the Princess Venetia Corona, Lord Rockingham, Lord Royallieu, Ezra Boroni, and the Marshal of France were all most capably played by Miss May Pardoe, Mr George Norman-Burt, Mr Chas. Brooke, Mr Albert Rogers, and Mr Reginald A. Hunt respectively, while the smaller characters were well filled.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Sept. 19, the Play, by Thomas Raceward, entitled "SUNDAY."

Miss Julia Neilson and Mr Fred Terry are appearing here this week in their latest production, Sunday, which is being played by almost the original cast. In this play they have found a worth successor to Sweet Nell of Old Drury, and one which seems likely to rival the popularity of that successful production. The play is full of interest throughout, and holds the audience firmly through the four acts. Miss Julia Neilson undertakes the character of Sunday, and that she makes the most of it is a foregone conclusion. Her acting seemed to give the greatest satisfaction, and she was recalled several times at the close of the evening. From Mr Fred Terry, who appears as Colonel Brinthorpe, emanates a polished picture of an English gentleman; it is a cleverly acted part, and deserves to rank among Mr Terry's most successful impersonations. Tom Oxley as played by Mr J. D. Beveridge is, of course, excellent, for this actor is always to be reckoned on giving a sound performance of any character he undertakes. It is in every way notably good. The "Boys," Towzer, Davy, Jacky, and Lively, are realistically portrayed by Messrs Rothbury Evans, Carter Edwards, Horace Hodges, and Alfred Kendrick. They are all equally good, and it would be impossible to draw distinctions for individual mention Mr Malcolm Cherry makes an impression as Arthur Brinthorpe, and Miss Adeline Bourne gives a meritorious performance of the nun Mrs Naresby is quite safe in the hands of Miss Bella Pateman, who is seen to great advantage in the part. The play is beautifully mounted, the scene depicting Brinthorpe Abbey being most artistic. The stage-management, which is excellent, is in the hands of Mr Vaughan Trevor, and Mr Arthur Garrett is general manager for Miss Neilson and Mr Terry.

THE KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept 19, the Musical Comedy, entitled "THE BELLE OF NEW YORK"

Whatever may be the reason which leads Mr George Musgrove to announce the farewell visit of this phenomenally successful comedy, it cannot be for want of patronage, for the King's Theatre has been as crowded every night during the present week as when The Belle of New York first took the town by storm at the Shaftesbury. There is no change in the attitude of the theatre patrons towards their favourite comedy, the laughter flows just as heartily as ever, and the bright and catchy songs and choruses receive their customary encores, and if The Belle is paying her last visit, then the fact is to be regretted. The company now appearing is certainly up to the original standard of all-round excellence, for the artistes work together with a swing which assuredly tends to complete success. The Ichabod Bronson of Mr Harry A. Meymott is a splendid example of ripe comic acting, and his efforts meet with cordial approval. Mr Philip Leslie is a dashing Harry Bronson, and soon ingratiates himself into popular favour. Karl Von Pumpernick (the polite lunatic) is a genuinely funny character in the hands of Mr Max Copland. Mr Cecil Burt is a substantial and praiseworthy Doc Snifkins, and Mr Paddy Dupres as Kenneth Mugg elicits much laughter by his make-up and acting The twin Portuguese Counts Rattato are ably rendered by Messrs Selby and Sealby. The original whistler, Mr Frank Lawton, again impersonates Blinky Bill, and causes rapturous applause with his inimitable whistling solos, to which are now added a bone solo and clever dances. Violet Grey (the Salvation lassie) finds a charmingly demure representative in Miss Beatrice Lamotte, who gains delighted attention by her artistic singing and acting. A bewitching Fifi Fricot is Miss Lillian Digges, and Miss Kitty Lindley is a bright and chic Kissie Fitzgarter. Gifted with a handsome appearance and talent Miss Winnie Browne scores highly as Cora Angelique, and Mamie Clancy is dashingly interpreted by Miss May Angus Young. The ladies and gentlemen of the chorus display interest in their work, which is of important assistance to the piece; the scenery is of the high quality associated with Mr Walter Spong; and the orchestra, ably directed by Leonard Hornsey, gives valuable support.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Sept. 19, the Farcical Romance, in Three Acts, by Robert Marshall, entitled "HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR."

Capital representations of Captain Marshall's clever play His Excellency the Governor have been given during the present week by Messrs Percy D. Standing and Monckton Hoffe's company. Mr Percy Standing himself appears as His Excellency Sir Montague Martin, and his performance, though freely interspersed with gags, is a very satisfactory one. Captain Charles Carew is pleasantly and naturally played by Mr Frank G. Bayley, and the John Baverstock of Mr William Allison is, in a farcial way, a very humorous and entertaining portrayal. Mr Monckton Hoffe appears with success as the Right Honourable Henry Carlton, M.P., and Captain Rivers and Major Kildare are adequately represented by Messrs Charles Brandon and A. Fitzmaurice respectively. A very sweet and engaging performance of Ethel Carlton comes from Miss Joan Ellis, and the Mrs Wentworth Bolingbroke of Miss Isabel Grey contributes largely to the evening's amusement Miss Nora Hoffe has in Stella De Gex an excellent part, to which she does full justice Mr Monckton Hoffe's one-act play The Lady who Dwelt in the Dark precedes the longer piece, and proves an interesting little drama, far above the average curtain-raiser. It has the further advantage of being extremely well acted by Messrs Frank G Bayly, A Fitzmaurice, and Allan Wilkie, and Miss Joan Ellis.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept 19, the Play, by Arthur Pinero, entitled "LETTY."

The Marlborough still continues to enjoy success as pronounced as it is well deserved. Week after week Mr Purcell provides the most delightful and welcome fare for the patrons of his beautiful house, over which Mr F. R Yeulett, his able acting-manager, presides. This week's engagement is no exception to the rule, as will be readily understood when it is stated that Mr Charles Frohman's company is appearing in Letty. Local playgoers should deem themselves fortunate in having the opportunity of witnessing this fine play of Mr Arthur W. Pinero, interpreted as it is by a company that includes as principals Miss Irene Vanbrugh in the title-rôle and Mr H. B. Irving in the part of Nevill Letchmere. The scenery and general mounting of the play are entirely in accord with the general excellence of the performance. Miss Vanbrugh, accomplished actress as she is, achieves an absolute triumph in the name-part, playing with that perfect naturalness and womanly feeling that draws the sympathy of her audience from start to finish, and not a little of the success of the play must be attributed to this artist. Mr H B. Irving submits a powerful interpretation of Nevill Letchmere, giving his lines with an eloquence and at times persuasive force which are irreproachable, and his impersonation is at all times very impressive. Miss May Blaney understands well what is required of her as the charming Mrs Ivor Crosbie, and does not fail to take advantage of her opportunities to the fullest extent. In the prominent comedy part of Hilda Gunning, shop assistant, Miss Eleanor Sonray scores heavily. The rôle is played with rare and irresistible charm, and she proves her skill by her thoroughly natural rendering of the part. Mr Scott Craven acts the rôle of Bernard Mandeville with a keen perception of its possibilities and with a great amount of humour, and his interpretation deserves high praise Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson is decidedly excellent as "Polly" Allardyce, playing the part with the ease and dignity that is characteristic of this lady in all she undertakes. Coppinger Drake is tastfully acted by Mr Vernon Steel, and Mr Leslie Victor submits a very creditable impersonation of the photographer Richard Perry. Neale, Ordish, and Letchmere's servant, Rugg, in the hands of Messrs Chas. Troode, Tom Heslewood, and Clayton Greene respectively, add to the all-round success; and Frederick, the maître d'hotel, and the two waiters, portrayed by Messrs Owen, Haigh, and Hack, find able exponents, who do all that is possible in the small rôles allotted them.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 19, the Domestic Play, by Lingford Carson, entitled "THE DRAMA OF LIFE."

As is absolutely necessary for a play with such a comprehensive title, there is plenty of incident in The Drama of Life, which is presented this week at the Dalston Theatre by Carson and Granville's company. Mr Jerrold Ord plays Harry Beech, a rich banker, who is dragged pretty low down by a rascally cousin; and although in the progress of the story he develops an almost unquenchable desire for brandy, the audience lose none of their regard for him, for the simple reason that, despite his weakness for tippling, duly encouraged by his villainous cousin, he remains a really good fellow at heart Mr John J. Hooker is Walter Beech, Harry's evil-disposed relative, but although his principles are unsound, his make-up as an out-and-out swell is beyond reproach, and he acts well. Mr Owen Remonde appears as Sir Dobson Wilde, and Mr E Bulwer Pitt and Mr Leonard Thackeray are accomplices in the pay of Walter Beech. Mr Walter Steele as a detective, Mr Vernon Dalby as Count De Foi, a French adventurer, and Mr Mortlake as a constable contribute their quota of interest. Miss Cissy Bellamy as Sylvia Beech acts at times with a good deal of intensity. Miss Muriel Inglis is Lady Jane Wilde, and Miss Nellie Daly as Betty Black, a cruel old lodging-house keeper, presents a striking contrast to such a specimen of the upper ten. Miss Marie Murray does all that is required as young Robert Beech, and his trials are followed with sympathetic interest. The cast also includes Messrs Shaw, Lingard, Selph, Miller, and J. Harold.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

A welcome change was entered upon here on Monday, when after a continuous run of melodrama for many weeks Mr St John Denton's admirable company appeared in this tuneful and charming play. Mr Robert Whyte, jun., is as clever as ever in his impersonation of the pleasure-seeking King of Illyria, Mr Robert Selby's Sir John Binfield is excellent alike in acting and singing, and the Lord Plantagenet of Mr Leslie Harris is a droll piece of character work, rendered the more effective by an absence of striving. Miss Lily Helene is arch as Lady Binfield, and is especially successful in her singing of "The rain came pitter-patter down" to accompanying tableaux. Miss Emily Stevens can add nothing to her fine sketch of the reminiscent dresser, Mrs Bright, except a song, in which she tells you "The feeling's just the same," in which she scores tremendously. Sadie De Poulson is played in sprightly fashion by Miss Constance Hamilton. Charming abandon is bestowed upon the character of the wayward comedienne, Kitty Grey, by Miss Hilda Guiver, whose excellent vocalisation is heard to advantage, notably in the intensely pathetic recital of "Poor Pierrette" Mr Edmund Russell is a resolute Comte de Trenetz, Mr Herbert Denbigh is good as Joseph, and Mr F. J. Grassett is a capital Robert. Mr L. Lisle as Pontbichet is amusing. Many minor parts are capably filled, and the staging of the play is highly commendable.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Sept. 19, "THE MIKADO."

The D'Oyly Carte opera company opened here on Monday with The Mikado The Yeomen of the Guard was played on Tuesday. In this Mr Pacie Ripple impersonates Colonel Fairfax in a most successful manner; Mr Albert Kavanagh is good as the Lieutenant of the Tower; Mr Fred Drawater playing the part of Sergeant Meryll most acceptably. Mr H. Blake Johnston as Leonard deserves praise, as do also Mr Stafford Moss, Mr S. Lewis Campion, and Mr Alfred Butler as Yeomen. Mr Fred Billington's Head Jailor both in make-up and acting is particularly noticeable, but the honours of the opera belong to Mr C. H. Workman as the Jester. The ladies of the company are charming in appearance and thoroughly capable. Miss Norah Maguire is a handsome Elsie Maynard, rendering her songs with great charm; Miss Jessie Rose is very good as Phœbe Meryll; and Miss Theresa Rassam works hard as the Housekeeper of the Tower. The chorus was numerous and thoroughly up to their task, contributing greatly to the success. In The Mikado the honours also fall to Mr Workman as Ko Ko, ably assisted by Miss Theresa Rassam as Katisha and Mr Fred Billington as Pooh Bah. The Gondoliers and Patience (matinée) were played on Wednesday, Iolanthe on Thursday, and H.M.S. Pinafore, on Friday.

BROADWAY THEATRE, NEW-CROSS.

On Monday, Sept. 19, the Melodrama by Robert Buchanan and Harriet Jay, entitled "ALONE IN LONDON."

Alone in London is drawing excellent business here this week, the vitality of Robert Buchanan's popular play being unimpaired. It receives ample justice at the hands of the capable company engaged by Mr J. F Elliston. Mr Henry George is seen at his best—and Mr Henry George's "best" is very good indeed—in the character of the wealthy miller, John Biddlecomb. Mr Stephen Ewart is a most artistic and polished Richard Redcliffe, and Mr Hugh Brady an excellent Spriggins. Mr Stafford Smith brings his ripe experience to bear with excellent results on the character of Mr Burnaby. Mr Herbert Smith is very good as Walter Burnaby; Mr J. W. Wilkinson presents an admirable study of Jenkinson, the thief and philosopher; and Mr Lonnen Meadows as Charley Johnson is a warm favourite. Miss Madge Devereux as Annie Meadows (Nan) is exceedingly good in the part originally made famous by the lamented Amy Roselle. Miss Ada Lilley has an excellent conception of the part of Tom Chickweed, and carries it out most artistically. Miss Lily Lewis is a charming Ruth Clifton, Miss Ada Elliston causes much amusement as Liz Jenkinson, Mrs C Wood is a clever Mrs Maloney, and Little Ella Gillette is a pretty Paul.

NEW EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 19, the Negro Musical Comedy, by Will Marion Cook entitled "IN DAHOMAY."

This quaint musical comedy is drawing good houses. Mr Dan Avery as Rareback Pinkerton creates roars of laughter by his eccentricities and comicalities, and he is assisted by Mr Chas. Hart as Shylock Homestead; his singing was loudly applauded. Mr Pete Hampton is an excellent Hamilton Lightfoot, and Mr Fred Douglas is good as Dr. Straight. Mr Leon Williams portrays Geo. Reader with effect, and Mr Walter Richardson as Harry Stanfield is a typical postman. Mose Lightfoot is well represented by Mr Pete Washington Miss Lama Bowman scores as Cecilia, and has an excellent voice which she uses with pretty effect Miss Stella Hart as Mrs Stringer is all that could be desired, and Miss Pauline Freeman as the troublesome young Rosetta Lightfoot is successful. The minor parts of Officer Still, Walter, a Dude, and Flossie are in the capable hands of Messrs Dan Washington, Jack Brown, Chas White, and Wm. Garland and Miss Lizzie Avery. A pretty and effectively carried out cake-walk is given. The orchestra is under the able direction of Mr Stephen E Boythe.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 19, the Musical Comedy, entitled "MY LADY MOLLY."

Local playgoers showed their appreciation of a return to musical compositions after several weeks of dramatic productions by extending liberal patronage to My Lady Molly at the Borough Theatre on Monday night, and as the piece was making its first appearance in Stratford its very cordial reception must have been extremely gratifying to all concerned. Miss Edmee De Dreux acts and sings with spirit and animation as My Lady Molly, whose masquerade as Captain Romney is the cause of so many amusing complications. Miss Zoe Gilfillan makes a very captivating and coquettish Alice Coverdale, and wins much applause for her singing and dancing. Miss Mabel Carr is a charming and vivacious Hester, and Mdlle. Ebba D'Arcier's acting is in true comedy vein as Mdlle. Maribeau. An important personage in the piece is Mickey O'Dowd, an incorrigible, happy-go-lucky son of Erin, and in this prominent rôle Mr Stephen Fitzgerald takes full advantage of the opportunities offered him, and is always brimming with mirth and witticisms. Mr Leicester Tunks makes a manly Captain Harry Romney, and his excellent voice enables him to do full justice to the numbers allotted to him. Mr Harold F. Payne contributes a most acceptable rendering of Lionel Bland, and Mr H. Godwin Hunt's embodiment of Sir Miles Coverdale is highly praiseworthy. The large and well-chosen chorus make an enjoyable feature of the concerted numbers by the excellence of their work, and the dressing and mounting of the piece have been carried out on a lavish and artistic scale.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 19, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley, entitled "THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

No uncertain welcome is being extended to The Midnight Mail this week, for the huge number of railway workers at Stratford have watched with critical eye the fight for life between Harry Steyne, the driver of the midnight mail, and the drunken stoker Billy Brewer, and have scanned every detail of the full-sized model locomotive on the foot-plate of which the struggle is taking place while the engine appears to be travelling at express speed. Terrific applause ensues when Harry gets the better of his assailant, and as this hearty tribute is from many who are familiar with the working of locomotives it says much for the realistic manner in which this exciting situation is worked. The drama is of strong interest throughout, is teeming with turn and incident, and is interpreted by a well-balanced and thoroughly capable cast. Mr George Harvard looks and acts the part of the stalwart young engine-driver, Harry Steyne, to perfection, and the character quickly becomes highly popular. The part of the dissolute and depraved Billy Brewer is handled with rare skill and judgment by Mr Fred G. Evison, in whose hands the character seems to lose the repulsiveness and viciousness, and one becomes quite interested in the facetious scoundrel, albeit his untimely end causes no regret. Leonard Royle has a manly and outspoken representative in Mr Alec Alves; Mr Arthur Gilroy plays with intensity and vigour as Hassan Padisha, and the kind-hearted Donald Craig is portrayed with dignity and expression by Mr Charles M'Cann. Miss Ada Oakley makes a sympathetic and charming Mary Steyne; Miss Mildred Carr is delightfully piquant and vivacious as Nancy Brewer; and Miss Millie Stevenson plays Lady Phyllis Eustace with distinction. The remaining parts in a long cast are all capitally filled, and the large number of children who take part in the piece show the result of careful training.

GREENWICH THEATRE, S E.

On Wednesday, Sept. 21, Oliver Goldsmith Comedy entitled "SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER."

Miss Fortescue's appearance this week at this theatre is an event of considerable importance to local players. The change from pronounced melodrama to old comedy is very great, but it is warmly appreciated by large audiences. The week's bill consists of Harry Hamilton's version of Ouida's famous novel "Moths," in which Miss Fortescue sustains the character of Fuchsia Leach with rare ability, and Oliver Goldsmith's masterpiece, She Stoops to Conquer. Miss Fortescue is a delightful Kate Hardcastle, being equally charming as the daughter of the house or the supposed barmaid. Clever Miss Miriam Lewes is an interesting and pleasing Constance Neville; Miss Eugenie Vernie makes a capital Mrs Hardcastle; Mr Dalziel Heron creates an excellent impression as Sir Charles; and Mr Conway Wingfield's Young Marlow is beyond praise; Mr Cecil Newton is a good Mr Hastings, Mr George P. Polson, a bluff and hearty Hardcastle, Mr E. Cossant an amusing Tony Lumpkin, and Messrs Chichester, Carpenter, and Gibbs are praiseworthy as Diggory Rodger and Tom respectively, Mr Boyd is a capable landlord, and Messrs Burdette, Adams, and James are well placed as Tom, Jack, and Mat.

TERRISS THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 19, the Drama, in Four Acts by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, entitled "SAVED FROM THE SEA."

Thanks to the fine judgment exercised by the management in selecting the weekly programme, the stock season at this theatre is proving a gigantic success, and those patrons who desire plenty for their money must be well satisfied with the ample fare provided. The proceedings open each evening with what is described as "a laughable domestic episode" entitled Husbands and Wives, which is well received, and in which Mr Campion Abbott as Mr Somerton is very successful. The next part of the programme is devoted to variety business, and Miss Vesta Victoria is the particular star who is scintillating during the present week. Another popular performer is the well-known actor-vocalist Mr Ernest Ball, who is apparently an especial favourite at this theatre, and Miss Millie Malvern also receives appreciation. Coming to the drama itself, the principal rôle, that of Dan Ellington, is undertaken by Mr Lionel D'Aragon, whose bold and manly impersonation leaves nothing to be desired. That well-known actor Mr Felix Pitt puts all the necessary vindictiveness into his rendition of the villainous Richard Fenton, and receives able assistance from Mr Henry St. Leger as Peter Scalcher Miss Eugenie Magnus imbues the part of Nancy Ellington with a homely pathos which strongly appeals to her hearers. Miss Marie M'Aulay gives a good reading of Mrs Blake. Miss Bertha Baker is well cast as Jack Ellington, and the comic relief is supplied by Mr Newman Maurice and Miss Hulo Hodgson as Billy Snooks and Polly Blake respectively. The piece is suitably staged.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept 19 the Drama, in Four Acts, "ONE OF THE BEST."

Mr Robert Arthur's company has been playing here this week in One of the Best, and as was to be expected in a town like Woolwich, this stirring military drama, which is indeed an old favourite, met with a great reception. Mr Stanley Bedwell, who has been seen here before in the same part, continues to give an impersonation of great merit as Dudley Keppel. In the first part of the play he ably realises the somewhat self-contained, purposeful British officer, and this reserve of manner is well contrasted with Keppel's absolute horror and amazement at the charge brought against him and at the result of the court-martial; Mr Bedwell was at his best in the Trial scene and in the scene in the barrack square, when Keppel is "drummed out" of his regiment. As Esther Coventry Miss Helen Haye was excellent throughout, acting with considerable power and being particularly successful in the scene with Philip Ellsworth, in the last act, when Esther learns that she has merely been used as Philip's tool. Of the last-named character a good impersonation was submitted by Mr E. B Clarke. The pusillanimity of the man was well brought out, and his final discovery and man-handling by some Tommies were greatly appreciated by the military portion of the audience. Miss Jeanette Le Gros was earnest and sympathetic as Mary Penrose, the appeal to the president of the court martial being touchingly rendered. As General Coventry Mr H. F. Maltby was responsible for a good representation of a typical military commander, desperately anxious to discover the traitor in his garrison. Mr Geo. Hart was successful as Sir Archibald M'Gregor, as was Mr Wilfred Beckworth as the Rector. The comedy element of the play was chiefly entrusted to Mr Herbert Darnley, and could not have been in better hands. Mr Darnley is a born comedian, and, as Private Japp, made every line tell; he was ably seconded by Miss Lilla Norden with whose aid many hearty laughs were scored.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

On Monday, Sept 19, "THE ORCHID."

Mr George Dance's principal company, in the Gaiety success, The Orchid, is an immense draw here this week. Miss Ethel Bryant is an enchanting Lady Violet Anstruther, and Miss Silvia De Lacy an equally successful Josephine Zaccary. Miss Madge Lucas is a most amusing Caroline Vokins, and Miss Poppy Wilkinson scores in the little she has to do as Thisbe. The Countess Anstruther and the Zelie Rumbert of Miss Ida Chichester and Miss Eve Melville respectively are both very capable impersonations. Mr G Davy Burnaby in the part of the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour is excellent, and Mr Edmund Hollick is a comical exponent of the part of Dr. Ronald Fausset. Mr Ernest Darrell is a capital Aubrey Chesterton and his "pushful" song is a great success. Mr Edmund Page is humorous as the irascible Comte Raoul De Cassignat. Messrs Wilfred Simpson and Robert Rivers are capital as Messieurs Frontenbras and Merignac, the Comte's obedient backers. Mr Bertie Wright in the Edmund Payne part of Meakin is a host in himself, and gets every ounce of humour out of the part, his efforts causing immense amusement. The minor parts are capably filled, and the chorus, scenery, orchestra, and dresses are of a very high standard of excellence.

To acquire a more delicate touch of the instrument, M. Coquenard, a violinist of Montpelier, France, has just undergone a remarkable surgical operation in Germany. Portions of the tips of the fingers of his left hand were removed, and he can now finger the strings with more rapidity and finesse.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, SEPT 22.—MM. Alexandre Bisson and Berr de Turique's new comedy, brought out at the Vaudeville, has proved a thorough success. This success, however, is chiefly due to the admirable interpretation of the work, which, as regards construction, is decidedly weak. At some moments, too, the action begins to drag, but the gifted authors have very adroitly introduced amusing incidents whenever the interest begins to flag. The first act, which plays in the Police-court, is a perfect gem. Lepailleur, a married man, has had an intrigue with a Madame Morel, and the latter's husband, having caught the guilty couple flagrante delicto, has summoned them before the tribunal presided over by M. Marjolin. Lepailleur is vexed. Not that he dreads a severe sentence—for the public prosecutor is an old chum—but he loves his wife Colette, who, bent on vengeance, has come to the court with her friend Suzanne Radiguet, the public prosecutor's wife. Suzanne shares Colette's indignation, and has promised to use her influence with her husband to make it hot for the wicked Lepailleur. Things, however, take an unexpected turn. Mdlle. Virginie Coladeuil, a lady barrister representing Madame Morel, informs the tribunal that M. Morel has withdrawn the charge, and she asks the magistrate to dismiss the case, and the magistrate, M. Marjolin, is all the more pleased to do so as he is anxious to meet Mdlle. Bobette, a flighty music hall artiste, with whom he has an appointment. But Radiguet has caught his wife's eye, and, in the name of public morality, insists on Lepailleur's misdeeds meeting with a severe punishment. Lepailleur, at first taken aback then turns the tables on his tormentor, and, in reply to the question what he has to say in his defence, asks what the virtuous public prosecutor does when he pays his daily visits to Mdlle. Bobinette. The magistrate on the bench looks daggers at Radiquet; Suzanne nearly faints with indignation; the dumbfounded Radiquet begins to stammer, and Lepailleur is acquitted. This delightful act, moreover, is enlivened by a speech by the lady barrister wherein she expounds feminist theories and holds up the stronger sex to the contempt of the tribunal.

We now lose sight of Lepailleur and Colette, and Suzanne Radiguet and her husband engross our attention. A fortnight has elapsed, and Suzanne wants to apply for a divorce, but as she dreads a solitary life she will not institute proceedings until she has found a suitable second husband. Radiguet, who dearly loves his wife and repents his errors, is heartbroken. To his delight his friend Guillemard turns up unexpectedly, and when Rodiguet tells him of his troubles Guillemard generously offers his assistance, and proposes to make love to Suzanne, thereby preventing her from flirting with others and looking out for someone to replace Rodiguet. Rodiguet gratefully accepts his friend's offer, whereupon the latter is at once caught in his own net. He falls in love with Suzanne, and the lady, incensed at seeing her husband take things so philosophically, promises Guillemard to become his wife. Radiguet is all the more infuriated at Guillemard's treason, as he, Guillemard, and a certain Gondoin used to be bosom friends, and were nicknamed "the three Anabaptists." At this critical moment Gondoin comes upon the scene and saves the situation. Meeting Suzanne, he informs her that he is an intimate friend of Radiguet and Guillemard; in fact, one of "the Three Anabaptists." Suzanne, who never suspected that her husband knew Guillemard, thereupon sees clear in the whole affair, and rightly judges that if her husband took so much pains to prevent her from divorcing and marrying again, it is because he loves her. And she forgives the repentant Radiguet, but not before she has given him another fright by leaving him for a little while under the impression that Guillemard had been her lover. As I said before, the interpretation was beyond praise. M. Lérand, admirable actor as he is, surpassed himself in the rôle of Radiguet. The difficult part of Guillemard was ably held by M. Gauthier. M. Dubosc, Baron fils, Vandenne, and Joffre were also excellent. The women's rôles, too, were admirably interpreted. Madame Daynes-Grassot's impersonation of the lady barrister was a masterpiece; Mdlle. Thomassin was an exquisite Suzanne; and Mdlle. Marthe Regnier supplied a delightful sketch of the naïve Colette.

THE Théâtre Molière—formerly Les Bouffes du Nord—will open in October with La Gourme, by M. Landay. The new managers, MM. Cot and Dublay, intend to produce many novelties this season.

AT the Comédie-Française the rehearsals for the revival of Le Demi-Monde are in full swing. The first new play to be brought out there will be a new comedy by Capus, Notre Jeunesse, wherein Mdlle. Bartet will play the principal rôle. The work will probably see the footlights towards the middle of October.

M. RICHEMOND, the manager of the Folies-Dramatiques, was, it will be remembered, arraigned before the Authors' Society because he had organised a Theatrical Trust. The society refused to renew his treaty after Aug. 31, on which date M. Richemond ought to have closed his theatre. But he has taken no notice of the society's ukase. La Nuit de Noces is continuing its successful career at the Foldes-Dramatiques as if nothing had happened, and nothing is likely to happen.

THE management of the Théâtre de la Gaîté seems to have more faith in the old répertoire than in new ventures. After Fanfan la Tulipe we are promised La Cigale et la Fourmi, by Audran—one of his best productions—brought out in 1886 with Mdlle. Jeanne Granier in the chief rôle.

THE Renaissance will be the last playhouse to open its doors this season, probably not before the middle of November. M. Guitry is still undecided whether he will inaugurate his season with M. François De Curel's Le Coup d'Aile, or with a new comedy by M. Maurice Donnay. A four-act play by M. Capus, Monsieur Piégois, will also be produced at this house.

AT the Vaudeville the next novelty will most likely be Maman Colibri, in four acts, by M. Henry Bataille, the chief rôle written specially for Mdlle. Berthe Bady.

INVESTIGATIONS into the cause of the deluge at the Lyric Theatre on the 13th inst. show that the apparatus mentioned was not an automatic sprinkler system, such as is now being fitted in many theatres, and is approved by the fire insurance companies for fire protection purposes, but consisted of an arrangement of perforated pipes, fixed behind the fireproof curtain, the water being turned on by a valve, which by some unexplained means was opened at a most inopportune moment. The automatic sprinklers operate without human agency immediately on the outbreak of a fire, and promptly control it, and there are no records of their going off in a theatre without fire heat.

PRINCESS OF WALES'S, KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Sept. 19,
the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts entitled
"THE ORCHID."

Mr George Edwardes does things well, and the public, recollecting previous happy experiences, has crowded to the Kennington theatre, "not in single spies, but in whole battalions," during the course of the week, for his principal company has been presenting the current Gaiety success, The Orchid. In the present instance he has proceeded upon his usual liberal lines and mounted the show in sumptuous style, provided a chorus of fascinating ladies, and, most important of all, clever and hard-working principals. Miss Coralie Blythe, who is no stranger to Kennington audiences, plays Lady Violet Anstruther in first-rate style, and her singing of the popular "Little Mary" brought down the house on Monday evening. Miss Gertrude Gillian is a charming Josephine Zaccary, and the matrimonial entanglements in which the dainty pair find themselves greatly tickled the audience. Their spouses—the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour and Dr. Ronald Faussett—are well played by Messrs Lawrence Grossmith and Donald Hall, Mr Grossmith warbling "Bedelia" to the intense delight of the audience. The "burden and heat" of the night are borne largely by Mr George Gregory, a quaint comedian, who scores as Meakin. Many are the laughs he raises, especially in his duel scene with Comte Raoul De Cassignac, a part Mr Sam Walsh plays well. Mr Ellis Ogilvie impersonates Mr Chamb—no, Mr Chesterton, with plenty of point; Miss Irene Verona makes an ideal representative of Caroline Vokins; and Miss Luna Love is a smart Thisbe, and looks "rippin'" in a pink pyjama suit. Other parts are well sustained by Miss Ethel Griffies, Miss Katie Leechman, and Messrs Sidney Vincent, E. G. Woodhouse, E. Rutland, Frank Hector, Duncan Kaye, Alfred Bowman, H. C. Portway, and A. S. Clunes, and, the orchestra playing well, the performance goes with verve.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

"THE TICKET-OF-LEAVE MAN."

This favourite play was presented on Monday by Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's excellent company. The piece gives exceptional opportunity for a display of talent by Mr Henry Neville in his original character of Bob Brierley, first created by him at the Olympic many years ago, and this popular actor is very ably supported by Mr William Devereux as the Tiger, Mr L. C. Thomas as Hawkshaw, Mr T. W. Rawson as Melter Moss, Mr W. Mallalieu as Gibson, a bill broker, and Mr F. G. Thurstans as Green Jones, all of whom have made quite a hit in their respective rôles. The ladies also create good impressions. Miss Evelyn Weeden in the character of May Edwards is exceptionally clever in a trying rôle; Miss Adie Boyne is a conspicuous success as Sam Willoughby, grandson of the loquacious Mrs Willoughby, a part well rendered by Miss Emma Victor; and Miss Bertram scores as Emily St. Evremond. On Wednesday and Thursday the well-known drama entitled The Two Orphans was played.

"IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In reply to Mr Wainwright's letter in a recent issue, please allow me to state that there is not the slightest ground for any apprehension on the score that I shall infringe the rights Mr Wainwright holds in the drama It's Never Too Late to Mend. My scena is absolutely and entirely original in its conception in every way, and the action most certainly has not been copied from, or suggested by, the drama or the book.

I hereby extend to Mr Wainwright my most cordial invitation to witness the scena on its production in London, and I am convinced he will find no reason for complaint, or any necessity to take steps to protect his interests.

Knowing you will, with your usual kind courtesy, find room for this reply in your valuable paper, allow me to tender my sincere thanks.

Yours faithfully, GEO. D'ALBERT.

Collins's, Islington, Sept. 20.

MATINÉES of The Orchid at the Gaiety Theatre will be resumed to-day, and the morning performances of the bright, lively, and artistic entertainment will doubtless be liberally patronised and numerously attended.

A PRETTY wedding was solemnised at St. James-the-Less, Plymouth, recently, when Miss Violet Edith Cockram, second daughter of the late Mr Charles Cockram and Mrs Cockram, 99, Union-street, was united in holy matrimony to Mr John Henry Creber, son of the late Mr Theophilus Creber, printer. There was a very large congregation, the bride and bridegroom being very popular among a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. The Rev. R. H. Miers, vicar, officiated. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr F. J. Coad. The best man was Mr R. Collins, and the bride's brother-in-law, Mr Henry L. Wilkinson, acted as master of ceremonies. The bridesmaids were Miss Ada Creber, Miss Florence Cockram, and the bride's little niece, Miss Doris Wilkinson. The bride looked charming in a dress of grey and orange silk voile, with a picture hat to match. A very large number attended the reception at the bride's mother's residence. Early in the afternoon Mr and Mrs Creber left for London and Paris amid many congratulations and good wishes. Among a large number of presents was a standard lamp from the bridegroom's employees.

WILLIAM GRIMSTON MONKHOUSE, thirty-one, who was arrested on warrant in London on Saturday, was remanded by the Scarborough magistrates on Monday on a charge of having obtained by means of false pretences between Feb. 3 and May 21, 1904, the sum of £15, with intent to cheat and defraud Robert Harcourt, of Rothbury-street, Scarborough. It is alleged that the prisoner represented by his business circulars that he was financially interested in theatres and music halls in different towns, and led Mr Harcourt to believe he represented a theatrical syndicate. The towns mentioned included Balham, Barnsley, Ramsgate, Edinburgh, Chester-le-Street, Walton-on-Naze, and other places. Mr Hart, for the prosecution, said that the police had communicated with these places and found that the prisoner was not interested in the theatres there. Witnesses would prove the charge against prisoner. The prisoner protested he had no intention to defraud. The prosecutor admitted the £15 was paid as a premium, but said that he understood that the prisoner represented a syndicate, and would not have paid the money to him personally. He was led to believe the money did not only apply to the engagement at the Olympia, Scarborough, for which the prisoner was engaging artists, but for other theatres.

"A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING," a merry musical mélange in which Miss Fay Templeton and Mr Peter F. Dailey are the chief funmakers, has been transferred to the Broadway Theatre, New York, after a summer run at the Aerial Gardens. Miss Templeton gives a very clever imitation of a Parisian chanteuse, and a medley of selections from Offenbach's operas is a popular feature.

THAT able and experienced instructress Miss Kate Filon is resuming her course of lessons in singing for the autumn season, which promises to be very successful.

MR EDITOR.—Sir, in your notice of The Cherry Girl at Huddersfield you state that Miss Ida Worsley played the Queen. Miss Katie May took the part. Yours faithfully, R. J. BUNCOMBE. 15, Piccadilly, London, Sept. 21.

AMUSEMENTS IN PITTSBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PITTSBURGH, PA., SEPT. 12, 1904.—NIXON THEATRE.—The "teatro massimo" of Pittsburgh opened its season on the 5th inst. with Lee Ditrichstein's three-act comedy entitled Vivian's Papas, and gave its habitués therewith an idea of the good things in store for them. The rôle of Vivian Rogers, divorced wife of Johnny Rogers, agent for green seal champagne, was played by Miss Blanche Ring, a charming and versatile actress, who bewitched the audience from her first appearance before the footlights until the curtain dropped at the end of the play. She was ably assisted by Mr Harry Conor, who was extremely funny and droll as Frederick W. Walker of Chicago. Mr Hall M'Allister gave a refined impersonation of Chester D. Farnham, the owner of racehorses, while Mr Thomas Burns as Charles D. Farnham, attorney-at-law, was dignified and astute. The rôle of Alice Farnham gave Miss Josephine Lovett ample opportunity for displaying her talent as "ingénue," and she took full advantage of it. The rest of the company were without exception good and helped to make the play a success.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Mr Harry Davis's stock company opened with a dramatised version of Thomas Hardy's Tess of the D'Urbervilles. Mr William Courtenay taking the part of Alec D'Urberville and Miss Jane Kennark appearing as Tess. Mr Charles Wyngate as Angel Clare and Mr William M'Vay as Tess's father, John D'Urberville, with Miss Alice Gale as Joan, filled the chief rôles.

BIJOU THEATRE.—Charles E. Blaney's detective play, The Child Slaves of New York, was given at this theatre by a competent company under the leadership of Mr J. B. Isaac. Mr Will H. Vedder took the part of Homer Sherwood, the boy detective, and his every word and movement was followed by the attentive audience. The play reminds one to a great extent of the adventures of Sherlock Holmes transplanted to America, and it is consequently not surprising that the play proved so attractive. The temptations and dangers surrounding the children of the slums of New York are tellingly shown. Mr Harry Le Vane as Butts, the detective's office boy, comes in for a great deal of applause for his clever mimicry; Mr John M'Kee plays the villain broker, John Foster, admirably; while Mr David Bagnell as Abraham Levy, a Jew, imparts a great deal of wickedness to the rôle. Mr Gustave Knole as Luigi Carpetti, a rogue, does not spare himself in his efforts to represent an Italian cutthroat, and is successful. Miss Beatrice Thorn as Rose Van Dore and Miss Helen Fiske as Helen Potter give a realistic picture of the good and the bad women. The play was well received and drew crowded houses all through the week.

THE DUQUESNE.—Mr William A. Brady's company appeared in a musical extravaganza entitled Foxy Grandpa, from the pen of Melville R. Baker, music by Joseph Hart. The plot tells of the escapades of two lively boys and their grandfather, Goodlieby Goodman (Mr Joseph Hart). The chief female impersonator is Miss Carrie De Mar as Polly Right, Goodman's protégé.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Mr Henry B. Marks has presented here a rural drama called Out of the Fold, by Langdon M'Cormick. A bright young schoolmaster, Nolan Crane (Mr Joseph Manning), proves therein that he is made of good stuff, and saves a girl, Helen Grey (Miss Norma Hyatt), from ruin by marrying her. The story is simple and powerful and was appreciated. The part of the villain is cleverly handled by Mr Cellmont S. Barkland, who as John Hathrop, persecutes the fallen girl until he meets with his deserts at the schoolmaster's hands.

AT Harry William's Academy Whallen Brothers' Kentucky Belles, appeared in Reid and Gilbert's two-act farce entitled Murphy's Masquerade. John H. Reed and Dave Broderick in the chief rôles did not fail to amuse the audience, and a very entertaining performance was given; certainly one of the best of the season. Terry and Elmer and company in The Dancing Missionary, the three Lugi Brothers in an acrobatic act excellently done, and Jessica in a pot pourri of up-to-date songs completed the programme.

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Rose Hall headed the list of artists at this music hall with her one-act comedy of stage life called The Chorus Lady. R. J. and G. W. Quigley gave an original conception of conversational comedy. Dupree and Duree did some singing and dancing. Elsie Janis submitted several clever impersonations. Haeker and Lester did some trick cycling, Sager Midgley and Gertie Carlile appeared in a little sketch called After School? Fialowski imitated birds and animals, Lillian Leroy gave some songs, Charles Cartwell and Laura Harris appeared in an artistic dancing duo, and Boldens and Thayne, Blocksom and Burns, and Jewell's automatic electric manikin theatre brought the performance to a close.

THE final competition for the Erard Centenary Pianoforte Scholarship took place on Thursday at the Salle Erard. Out of the twenty-nine entrants ten had been selected by Messrs Franz Liebich and George M'Grath, the preliminary judges, and among these a very spirited contest ensued; indeed, the merits of the best two were so evenly balanced that Mr Daniel Mayer eventually determined to give each of them a scholarship of two years' duration instead of the usual one of three years. These scholarships were accordingly conferred upon Miss Irene Scharrer and Master Sydney Rosenbloom. The adjudicators in the final competition were Sir A. C. Mackenzie and Messrs Mark Hambourg and A. Rosenthal.

THE Dallas-Bandmann opera company, thirty-five strong, left by special train on Tuesday last for Southampton, to embark on the North German Lloyd Steamer for Colombo. This is the second company that Messrs Bandmann and Dallas have sent abroad this season. They will be in Calcutta on Nov. 15 for a season of ten weeks. From there they proceed to Rangoon, Singapore, Hong Kong, Manilla, Shanghai, and the historical old city of Tienstin. This is the only English company that has ever played in the old Chinese City. The répertoire will include Mr George Edwardes's and the Gaiety Theatre company's most recent successes, for which Mr Maurice E. Bandmann holds the sole and exclusive rights, in the above-mentioned towns.

AT North London Police-court, on Monday, Mr Rundle, solicitor, applied for permission for three children—members of the Kremo family of acrobats—to perform at the Hackney Empire during the week. Two little boys and a girl were introduced, the boys being twins, and just over thirteen years of age, and the girl twelve. There were ten in the troupe, and their performance lasted twelve minutes, but the little ones were not working all that time. There were two performances—one at 6.45 and the other at 9.10. Mr D'Eyncourt—They look as though they had performed too much already. They all look very seedy. Mr Rundle—I have the medical certificate. Mr D'Eyncourt—I shall not grant the certificate. Mr Rundle—Not for one performance? Mr D'Eyncourt—No. Mr Rundle—May I renew my application later on, and bring the doctor who certified them physically fit? Mr D'Eyncourt—No, I can see for myself. If you can put some colour into their cheeks I may listen to you. Mr Rundle—Their appearance is rather due to their swarthiness of skin. Mr D'Eyncourt—Emphatically no, and I shall ask the police to notice whether or not this certificate is applied for at any other court.

"THE TEMPESTS" OF THE PAST.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Mr Tree's beautiful revival recalls pleasant memories, the details of which may be interesting. My first experience of The Tempest was in the summer season of 1850, at the Haymarket, then under the management of Buckstone and Webster. But it was only in the form of burlesque. An Italian company was playing La Tempesta at one of the opera houses, so the travesty was well timed. The following names were in the cast:—Farren, Compton, Howe, Coe, Braid, Chippendale, Misses Reynolds, Featherstone, Laws, and Priscilla Horton (the late Mrs German Reed), the last mentioned playing Ariel. What an evening's bill was put up in those days! It commenced with a farce, An Alarming Sacrifice—Mr Buckstone and three ladies; next, The Ghost of Shakespeare—Buckstone and Webster; then a two-act drama, None but the Brave Deserve the Fair, followed by the burlesque referred to.

My next experience was Mr Kean's in 1857, he playing Prospero; Mrs Kean, Miranda; Miss Bufton, the Prince; Miss K. Tony, Ariel; Miss Poole, by a stage arrangement, singing Ariel's music. The other rôles were filled by W. Lacy, Graham, Raymond Meadows, the most notable perhaps being Frank Mathews, Harley, and John Ryder—Stephano, Trinculo, and Caliban. It may be said Mr Ryder made a splendid monster, having the physique for a good make-up; also having a good singing voice, his song went well. Oscar Byrne arranged the ballets and groupings. He must then have been an old man, as upon reference to the London Gazette of 1816 I find him mentioned as ballet master. Mr Kean's production was lavishly mounted. The critics were unanimous in their praise, with one exception, "Shirley Brooks," who, for some cause or other, would never speak or write well of Charles Kean.

Yours faithfully, J. FROST.

FOOTBALL.

MR JACK LEONARD'S XI. v.
BRISTOL EARLY CLOSERS A.F.C.

Played on Clifton Downs on Wednesday, Sept. 14. Miss Winifred Bradley kicked off. The following were the teams:—

Jack Leonard's XI.—H. Belding, goal; F. Thorne and A. Hamlin, backs; A. Lucas, F. Stevens, and P. Hewlett, half-backs; J. Leonard (captain), S. Coombes, B. Meads, C. Worth, and L. Hamlin, forwards.

Bristol Early Closers A.F.C.—B. Yandell, goal; G. Hedges (captain) and W. Vowles, backs; F. Bartlett, A. Mattock (of Harry Hare's Orchestral Band A.F.C.) and C. Perry, half-backs; W. Denty, T. Burgess, A. Rossiter, H. Adams, and T. Brooks, forwards.

Referee, J. Aubrey (of Bristol X.L.C.R. Athletic Club). Linesmen, H. Hare and E. Belding. Result:—Jack Leonard's XI., three goals; Bristol Early Closers, A.F.C., four goals. A. Lucas, B. Meads, J. Leonard, W. Vowles (two), H. Adams, and F. Bartlett, scored for their respective sides.

MESSRS C. T. BROCK AND CO. celebrated what they termed their "Ruby Jubilee" at the Crystal Palace on Thursday night. This well-known firm's pyrotechnic displays at Sydenham were started forty years ago, but the popularity of this feature in the programme of amusements has increased rather than diminished. Thursday night's display included the most notable examples of each variety of set piece and aerial effect produced during these forty years, and an enormous crowd witnessed the brilliant and beautiful spectacle. The principal set piece was a realistic representation of "A Sortie from Port Arthur," a piece which measured 200yds. in length. Ten battleships in motion were depicted throwing shells here, there, and everywhere. During the action one of these vessels struck a mine, and was immediately blown to pieces, and some excitement was aroused by a race between two torpedo-boats, which were eventually destroyed by shell. Of other set pieces the "Trio of Peacocks" was a pretty sight, the gold and purple plumage of the birds being a feature as regards colouring. The largest of the three birds spread its tail to a diameter of 75ft, as it strutted along for a short distance. Some rich combinations of colour were witnessed in the "rotofonts," which changed from vertical suns to revolving fountains of molten coloured fire, while the prismatic wheels, in revolution, displayed many attractive geometrical designs in many colours. From "The pillars of fire," three in number, were thrown out three large shell fountains, and there was also fired "The Blazing Sun," with rays measuring 60ft., which changed gradually from gold to dazzling white. "The Temples of Light" consisted of the illumination, by fireworks, of the two fountains in the grounds of the palace. The living fireworks included three items, "Blondin," "The Cake-walk," and "The Fire Engine," and caused considerable amusement. The last-named was a representation of a motor engine at a fire. Immediately the engine was driven up to the building the firemen jumped down, ran out the hose, and played on the burning house. There were a number of interesting novelties in the aerial pyrotechnics, shells, flights of many varieties of rockets and roman candles.

MR W. SCOTT PHIPP to-day finishes another successful season as manager for Mr J. W. Nightingale, of the Royal Aquarium Theatre, Great Yarmouth, the patrons of which fully appreciate Mr Phipp's courtesy, ability, and business energy.

MR FRED MARKS, the accomplished pianist of Mr Tom Carrick's Pierrot and Musketeer Troupe, took his first annual benefit on the 16th inst. The attendance was large, and showed by its enthusiastic appreciation of the programme how popular Mr Marks has become during the past season. Extra turns were contributed by Professor Hubert, who cleverly imitated various bird notes, and by Miss L. Carrick who sang "La Belle Parisienne" and other songs. Popular contributions to the programme were a scene from A Chinese Honeymoon and a sketch, Smith's Last Bite, which aroused hearty laughter. Mr Jack Bangs in the picturesque costume of an Indian Chief, sang "Hiawatha" and subsequently gave a coon song and cakewalk, in which he was assisted by Miss "Babs" Carrick.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the council, held last Tuesday, Joseph Lewis was nominated as a candidate for election as a member of the Actors' Association. The honorary solicitors reported progress in several matters. The secretary received instructions to attend the adjourned hearing of summonses against certain persons on charges of alleged bogus management.

THE supers and choristers of the Paris theatres have formed themselves into a union in order to suppress the middlemen, who absorb so much of their wages, and to deal directly with the theatrical managers. They ask also that rehearsals shall be paid for at the same rate as performances, and that the minimum salary for the male supers shall be one franc, and for women two francs for each performance.

MR WILL NAWMAN terminates his successful season at the Happy Valley, Westcliff-on-Sea, this evening, when a farewell concert will take place at the Victoria Hall. His popularity should secure a very large attendance.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

MR FRANK RENDLE AND MR NEIL FORSYTH have generously placed the Royal Opera House, Covent-garden, at the disposal of the committee arranging the joint concert in aid of the Benevolent Funds of the Musicians' and Stage Employees' Societies.

A MEETING of the Concert Committee was held on Tuesday at 29, Wellington-street, Strand. Mr James Cullen, St. James's Theatre, presided, and other members present were Mr C. Thorogood, Mr Wm. Barbour, Mr P. Thomas, Mr J. Lewis, Mr E. G. Cooke, Mr Charles Evans, Mr L. H. Fitzgerald, Mr A. Stanley, Mr A. Palmer, Mr C. Jesson, and Mr W. Johnson. The committee will consist of six representatives of the Musicians' Society and nine representatives of the three London branches of the Stage Staff Society.

THE committee will meet at 1·0 o'clock on Tuesday each week. Owing to the difficulty of fixing a time convenient for all members it has been decided to use the dinner hour, which, while involving some personal sacrifice, will enable most members to attend. Mr G. H. Dyball was elected honorary treasurer, and Messrs Wm. Johnson and C. Jesson honorary secretaries. It is proposed to have an orchestra of 200 instrumentalists and a military band of 100 performers. The members of the societies represented on the committee and their numerous friends are invited to volunteer their services in the sale of tickets, distribution of printed matter, &c.

A SPECIALLY summoned meeting of the members of the Society of Theatrical Carpenters will be held on Sunday evening at 8·30 p.m., in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, to receive a report from the committee, and to consider and adopt the amended bye-laws. The committee will meet at 7·30 the same evening. A full attendance of members is desired.

MR J. JOHNSTONE has been engaged as master carpenter for a company which Mr Tree is about to send on tour. Mr Johnstone is a son of the well-known scenic artist, and was formerly master carpenter at the Globe Theatre, since when he has been "on the road" with several West-end productions.

MR FRED COLLINS, who was lately property master at His Majesty's Theatre, is with Miss Lena Ashwell's company as property master.

THE meeting of the General Theatrical Operatives' Sick and Benevolent Society held last Sunday evening in the Freemasons' Tavern was not able to dispose of the matter in hand, and the proceedings were adjourned for one month to enable an amicable arrangement to be made.

THE following incident, which reflects great credit upon the property master of one of the Shaftesbury-avenue theatres, is deserving of mention. A member of his staff died after a long illness, and, rather than he should be buried by the parish, the property master became responsible for, and in fact paid, the funeral expenses. Some friends are now preparing an appeal in order that, as a matter of justice, the expense of burying their old comrade with due respect may be shared by the friends and acquaintances of the dead man, who, unfortunately, was not a member of any society. The surplus, if any, derived from the appeal will be handed over to the Working Staff Benevolent Fund. Mr Albert Wood is kindly interesting himself in the matter.

An exciting and interesting cycle race took place last Sunday between two members of the New Grand, Clapham-junction, Cycle Club. The course was laid from the Freemasons' Tavern, Wandsworth-common, to Brighton and back to the Old Man, Coulsdon. The time limit was placed at seven hours, and the winner, Mr G. Perry (stage) made a most creditable performance, finishing well under the limit. Mr W. Monday (front) finished three and a half minutes later. The race was for a suit of clothes, and Mr W. Brock and Mr J. Davis acted as trainers.

AT the committee meeting of the Scenic Artists' Association, held at the offices of the Association on Monday, Mr Walter Hann in the chair, Mr Edmund A. Swift, scenic artist, of Crown Point, Glasgow, was elected a member of the Association. The secretary, Mr H. Lawrence Harris, was instructed to make arrangements for the representation of the Association in New York, South Africa, and Australia.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—May I venture to ask you if you can furnish me with the address of my former pupil, Mr R. Frederick George Yorke, who was at Merchant Taylors' School in 1875 and following years, and afterwards, I am told, "went on the stage!"

I am compiling a register of the scholars of Merchant Taylors', which has contributed some distinguished names to the dramatic profession, and it is for this purpose that I am anxious to find out Mr Yorke's address, or hear something about him.

I do not know whether he adopted any special professional name or not, or even whether he is alive.

Yours faithfully,
WILLIAM BAKER (REV.),
formerly Headmaster of Merchant Taylors' School.
Netherfield, Berkhamsted, Herts, Sept 20.

AMONG the prizes to be presented by Messrs Frank Rendle and Neil Forsyth at the first fancy dress ball of the season at Covent-garden, fixed for Friday next, are the following:—Diamond and opal cresent brooch, chased fruit and flower stand, oak canteen case, chased silver toilet set in case, oak escritoire, and afternoon tea service.

MR BERKELEY PERKINS (Thomas Frederick Perkins), an actor who was much better known in the provinces than in London, died on Tuesday, after only two days' illness, of acute pneumonia, at his residence in Manchester-road, Blackpool. Mr Perkins started in life in a bank, but at the age of twenty years he joined the late Barry Sullivan's company. Subsequently he fulfilled long engagements with Messrs Miller and Elliston, Mr Charles Melville, and Mr Hill Mitchelson. With the last named, in The French Spy company, he played the part of Romanoff no fewer than 1,000 times. He leaves a widow and four children. The funeral took place on Friday at the Blackpool Cemetery.

ON Saturday at the Alexandra Palace the promenade concert in the evening attracted a large attendance in the Central Hall. The Band of H.M. Scots' Guards gave their usual excellent selections which met with approval. The vocalists were Miss Margot Severn, who contributed materially to the success of the concert, and that well-trained vocalist Mr John Harrison was an acceptable item in the programme. Madame Belle Cole on her appearance evoked the plaudits of the audience. That well-tried favourite "The Lost Chord" was rendered with admirable effect.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice last week of Sweet Lavender at the Opera House, Crouch-end, you were kind enough to say I contributed a dainty and pleasing picture of Lavender, but you omitted to mention my name. Yours faithfully, BEATRICE MARSDANE.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR HENRY IRVING commenced his farewell tour at the Cardiff Theatre Royal, on Monday, in his superb impersonation, Shylock. To an interviewer, Sir Henry said that we should be grateful for the production of any of Shakespeare's plays, but we must beware of overlaying the poet's work with too realistic a setting. He was heart and soul in sympathy with the proposal of raising a national memorial to the poet of all time, and expressed the view that the subscription should be international, for the reason that the people of all countries admit themselves his disciples. "All that relates to Shakespeare," said Sir Henry, "should be illustrated by the highest form of art, and the committee or council formed for the purpose of designing this memorial should include leading men in public life, in literature, and in art."

REFERRING to the Baconian theory, Sir Henry remarked, "Poor Francis had enough sins upon his back without being burdened with so infamous a piece of cheating; and I have such respect for the genius of Francis Bacon that I believe he would have been prouder of the authorship of Hamlet or Lear than of all the books he ever wrote. No, no, when the Baconians can show that Ben Jonson was either a fool or a knave, and the whole world of playwrights at that time were in a conspiracy to palm off on the ages the most astounding cheat in history, they will be worthy of serious attention. I fear that the desire to drag down Shakespeare from his pedestal, and to treat the testimony of his personal friends as that of lying rogues, is due to the antipathy to the actor's calling—an antipathy which, I am sorry to say, has its eccentric manifestations even to this day."

IT is stated that a number of young men who have been struck by the appearance of Mr Seymour Hicks in Court dress in the second act of The Catch of the Season at the Vaudeville Theatre have started a club for the encouragement of the wearing of breeches and stockings at evening parties and dinners. The rumour is obviously absurd, as King Edward VII. objects very strongly to men appearing in Court dress—except, of course, at the Royal dinners and dances, where knee-breeches and silk stockings are de rigueur. Any ridiculous folly of this sort is likely to greatly annoy the King.

MISS WINIFRED EMERY, who has had such a long and serious illness, is about to go away to recruit her health and strength. Her husband, Mr Cyril Maude, will accompany her; and we understand that his part in Beauty and the Barge, at the New Theatre, will be played in his absence by that very clever comedian Mr George Giddens, who ought to make a great success in it, as it requires a thoroughly good artist to completely develop the character of the "affable" bargee.

THE question of gagging has many times been discussed, and some authors have inferred that it ruins a play, while, again the gaggers, in their turn, say that it will often make a play. It is well known among performers that little bits of business and gags come naturally to them while on the stage, therefore, there is always a great temptation to every comedian to gag. Being recently asked his opinion of gagging, Mr Arthur Williams said:—"First do justice to your author's lines, then, if your part is a poor one and will admit of embellishment, feel your way with a few gags. Gagging effectively is an art, especially to know when to stop."

THE prettiest thing in The Catch of the Season at the Vaudeville is the rose curtain, which shuts out the galeties of the ballroom at the Duchess of St. Jermyns', whence Angela has just departed after dropping her slipper, and forms, as it were, a poetic prelude to the wedding of the last scene. There are pink roses in clusters and festoons, and four daintily dressed girls gather some of them in baskets, in order to scatter them in the path of the bride as she leaves the church. The idea is so prettily conceived and so exquisitely carried out that delighted audiences entirely forget that they are waiting for the completion of the story.

MR LEWIS WALLER, in the new play His Majesty's Servant, which is to be produced at the Imperial Theatre in October, will play the part of the actor Mohun, a contemporary of Betterton, Mrs Bracegirdle, and Nell Gwynne. Mohun's attachment to King Charles II. when hiding from his enemies after the battle of Worcester leads the actor into many exciting adventures. Mr H. V. Esmond will appear as the King and Miss Evelyn Millard as the heroine of the drama, a young girl who falls in love with Mohun.

THE play will be in four acts and five scenes, the first of which will represent Boscobel Wood, with the Royal Oak. The scene has been painted by Mr Hemsley from sketches taken in the neighbourhood. The second act takes place in an old book shop in London, painted by Mr Banks. In the third act the famous gilt room in Holland House will be shown. This scene is an exact reproduction of the original, and Mr Hann, the artist, and Mr Waller have been most courteously allowed every facility from Lord and Lady Ilchester in order to obtain a faithful representation of the historic apartment, which is now exactly in the same condition as it was during the reign of Charles I. The last act takes place in the grounds of Holland House in winter time, painted by Mr M'Cleery.

LESS than eight years ago Mr Henry Ainley, who is playing Lancelot in Merely Mary Ann, had not spoken a line on the stage. His first attempt, however, was in a good company, for when Mr George Alexander visited a town in the north of England members of a certain amateur dramatic club were invited to "walk on" in the auction scene of The Masqueraders, and Mr Ainley, who was bank-clerking at the time, accepted the invitation, and so made his début under the watchful eye of Mr H. H. Vincent, at that time the St. James's company's stage-manager. Very soon afterwards the young amateur became a Bensonian, and it was his poetical performance of Lorenzo that induced Mr Alexander to offer him the part of Paolo, in Paolo and Francesca, mentioning him in a speech announcing the production as "a young actor hitherto unknown to London." Mr Ainley only recently returned from America, and married an American actress, Miss Suzanne Sheldon. He is Mr Anthony Hope's brother-in-law.

GOOD, sound practical advice to young actors and amateurs is very often difficult to procure. There are so many different things to be learned in connection with the stage that it is the every-day duty of the aspirant to acquire knowledge in all branches of his profession, and it would seem that the best way to do this is to listen to the remarks of their elders, &c. Apropos, Mr Arthur Bourchier—who is now making such a success in his latest venture The Chevaleer, and who recently somewhat startled playgoers by appearing as a clown—was once asked. "What is your advice to young actors and amateurs" and he replied "Watch the old actors, and you can never become old amateurs."

"THE sad death of the son of Mr and Mrs Richard Douglas (Miss Stella Brereton) has been deeply felt by his sorrowing parents. He was a good son and a devoted husband; and was extremely handsome in face and figure. He had sat many times to the celebrated artist Mr Mordecai, whose paintings of him in different characters had been in the Academy on four occasions. Some of them had been engraved, and were widely popular—notably "The Young Cavalier," "The Captive," "The Minstrel's Curse," and "Hark hark! the lark at Heaven's gate sings."

MR ROBB HARWOOD, who does his best to heighten the fun of Winnie Brooke, Widow, at the Criterion, seriously commenced his stage career at the Haymarket Theatre about seventeen years ago, for although he had played in many places in the days of his earliest youth, it was under Mr Tree's management that he became well known. Mr Harwood's father, in his early days, preferred the circus ring to the dramatic stage, and was the original Dick Turpin at Astley's, afterwards going into "the legitimate" at the Lyceum. All the family seem to have inherited a taste for acting. One brother, Mr John Harwood, is a capital stage-manager, and one of the sisters, Miss Florence Harwood, is playing in The Duke of Killicrankie.

THE following incident occurred a few weeks ago in Lancashire. In the prison scene of The Convict's Daughter several supers are engaged for convicts. One of these paid Mr Frank Bertram marked attention, and on the Saturday evening when the play was over the super came to his room and asked him if he would accept a present—a briar pipe and case. At first Mr Bertram refused it, but the man was so persistent and seemed so hurt that he questioned him, and on accepting it the man explained. "You see, sir, I feel that scene in the prison every night, for I've done twelve months' hard. The surroundings are so realistic that it seemed at times that I was back again. Mine was caused through the drink, curse it. I came to the north to redeem my character, but the last week or two I broke out again, and might have drifted back, but your suffering in the prison has brought it all back, and I wouldn't touch the drink again—no—not for any money."

MR LYALL SWETE was once acting a villain in a melodrama on a particularly small stage. The rascal was killed in the last act, and when Mr Swete fell down his feet touched the back cloth and his head was literally in the footlights. With artistic conscientiousness, however, he did not dream of moving out of such an uncomfortable position until a man in the front row of the stalls stood up and said, "Excuse me, sir, but your wig is on fire!" The dead villain thanked him for the information, took his wig out of harm's way, and the audience cheered ironically.

THE energetic secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund wishes us to remind ladies and gentlemen of the dramatic profession that it would help the Fund very much if they would tax the autograph hunters and send remittances from such taxation to the Fund. All contributions from this source would be duly acknowledged in The Era. There are very few actors and actresses who are not at some time or another solicited for their autographs. The secretary asks us to acknowledge the following sums:—38s. from Mr Forbes Robertson, 30s. from Mr Weedon Grossmith, and the same sum from Mr James Welch, earned by these gentlemen by the sale of their autographs.

SIR EDWARD CLARKE, K.C., will preside at the annual dinner of the Actors' Benevolent Fund on Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the Whitehall Rooms, Hotel Metropole.

MR HENRY LYTTON is nothing if not thorough. This clever Savoyard, who is singing and acting as charmingly as ever at the Lyric Theatre, actually learned the Irish pipes himself, instead of having them played "off," when it was necessary that he should make use of such a weird instrument in The Emerald Isle. On another occasion he mastered the bagpipes, and it is hardly necessary to add that he is an expert in stage dancing.

MRS LANGTRY was an interested spectator of Belle Savile's victory in the Two Miles Selling Handicap at Lingfield, on Tuesday. She had come from Newmarket expecting to see "Mr Jersey's" colours successful in this race, and hoping for further triumphs later with Vergia and Maria; and if all three had scored no reasonably minded person could have grumbled after the bad luck Mrs Langtry has had lately.

MISS ELLEN TERRY, who during last week was playing at Portsmouth Theatre, paid a visit on the 16th inst. to the house in which Charles Dickens was born, which, after being purchased by the Portsmouth Corporation, was converted into a Dickens Museum.

MISS MARIE ILLINGTON, who is still delighting crowded houses in The Duke of Killicrankie at Wyndham's, is very particular in every detail of make-up. The perfection is proved by the fact that even the quick eye of Sir Charles Wyndham mistook one of her wigs for her own hair, and asked whether it was not a great trouble to powder it so carefully. Miss Illington has a keen sense of humour and thoroughly enjoys a good story, even when it tells against herself. On one occasion an enthusiastic young actress, at the time when Miss Illington was playing the parts of emotional heroines, greeted her after the performance with these words: "Oh, Miss Illington, I love to see you in a sad part. You do make me laugh so!"

MR GEORGE DANCE has just added to his other enterprises the proprietorship of a weekly newspaper. He has purchased that interesting journal entitled Bargains, and by the appearance and contents of this week's issue the concern should prove a very popular and profitable one.

IN consequence of the numerous demands for seats for Merely Mary Ann, at the Duke of York's Theatre, Mr Frohman has decided to commence the Saturday matinées immediately. The first of these will take place to-day. This is in addition to the usual Thursday matinée.

MADAME NORDICA, Mrs Patrick Campbell, and Miss Ada Rehan arrived at New York on Saturday at 6.0 p.m., some hours late on account of rough weather. Madame Nordica had an appointment to dine twenty miles out, and made the journey by a mail-racing automobile in waiting. The lady was able to keep the engagement.

MESSRS FRANK RENDLE AND NEIL FORSYTH, who are throwing immense energy into their conduct of the Covent-garden balls, have all sorts of original projects in hand. The prizes will be the best ever offered. The winner of the first prize at the inaugural ball of the season on Friday next will have a valuable diamond and opal crescent.

THE number of visitors to the Shakespeare House at Stratford-on-Avon this year has beaten the record, having been at the rate of 30,000 per annum. American visitors have become so numerous that a special register of their names is now kept.

THE monument destined to perpetuate the glory of Talma, the great tragedian of the First Empire, has just been completed, and will be inaugurated at Poix du Nord, Paris, to-morrow. The sculptor is M. Fagel, who represents the celebrated actor in a dramatic attitude. The clothes he wears are of the revolutionary period. A book is in his hand. He is, in fact, studying one of his great rôles. The idea of the sculptor has been to convey a notion of how Talma appeared off the stage, and he has succeeded in his task, for the monument is at once a combination of grandeur and simplicity.

THE sale of the effects of the Marquess of Anglesey will be resumed next month at Anglesey Castle, and will include another large collection of jewellery and precious stones, together with the valuable furs recovered in Paris, to the whereabouts of which the Marquess afforded the clue. The dismantlement of the Castle, including the Gaiety Theatre established within its walls, will follow.

MR J. H. LEIGH will reopen the Court next month. The theatre has been thoroughly remodelled and redecorated. A series of special matinées is to be given there every Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, from Oct. 16 to Dec. 9. After a short interval a Christmas play named Prunella; or, Love in a Dutch Garden, by Laurence Housman and Granville Barker, is to be presented at a number of morning and evening performances. The music for this piece has been composed by Mr Joseph Moorat. The season will be under the management of Mr J. E. Vedrenne, and the various plays will be produced by Mr Granville Barker.

THE forthcoming season of grand opera at Covent Garden is under the personal direction of Mr Henry Russell, the principal Professor of the Rome Conservatoire of Singing, at whose suggestion some of the influential and wealthy members of Neapolitan society have formed a syndicate and raised the necessary funds to enable the orchestra, chorus, and company of their famous San Carlo Opera House to be heard in Covent-garden this winter. Mr Russell, who has arranged to be in London during the opera season, has just returned from Italy, having signed contracts with most of the Italian celebrities, including Signor Caruso. Signor Puccini has promised to be present, and perhaps will himself conduct either La Tosca, Manon Lescaut, or Bohéme. The singers engaged at present include Messrs Anselmi, Vignas, Dani, and Caruso (tenors); Messrs Sammarco, Amati, and Arimondi (baritones and bass); Mesdames Giachetti, Tetrazzini, and Alice Neilson (sopranos); and Miss De Cisneros (contralto).

MR FRANCO LEONI, who has composed the incidental music to The Prayer of the Sword, has shown much feeling for the dramatic situations of the piece in the themes he has woven. Of old Italian music he is a very enthusiastic and cultured student, and he has used very skilfully the peculiar rhythm that was a characteristic of that music. Mr Leoni's score is embellished with a modern interpretation of the plain-song of the monks in the Monastery scene, and he has brought to his work sincerity, originality, and charm. As an Italian he is imbued with the Southern spirit, and his score many a time and oft reflects the turbulent spirit of the period of the play, being especially striking in the Church scene.

MR LOUIS N. PARKER'S play The Cardinal was played for the first time in Italian at the Manzoni Theatre, Rome, on Friday, the 16th. It has met with a very friendly reception, except from the Vatican Press, which protests against it as an attack on the Roman Church.

THE Grand Theatre, Islington, will be taken possession of on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 3 and 4, by the 4th V.B. Royal Fusiliers, who will devote the profits accruing from the two performances to their prize fund. A similar scheme was successfully carried out last year by the same corps, a sum amounting to nearly £100 being obtained in this manner.

MISS ELLA VANE, who was engaged to play the part of Ida Vallette, in Why Woman Sins, was taken suddenly ill during rehearsals with gastritis, and consequently had to abandon the part. She has quite recovered, and ready for work again.

MR F. H. DE QUINCEY AND MISS SIME SERUYA revive The Red Lamp at Ipswich next week, by arrangement with Mr Tree. At the present moment, when Russia is on everybody's lips, the revival of this celebrated Muscovite society play should be of unusual interest.

MRS LANGTRY obtained on Thursday a receiving order at the London Bankruptcy Court against Mr Herbert Waring, from whom she claims £1,388 in respect of rent of the Imperial Theatre, where Mr Herbert Waring produced A Man of His Word about two years since. There was a difference of opinion as to who was responsible for the rent; and Mrs Langtry, after failing in an action heard by Mr Justice Phillimore, obtained judgment against Mr Waring on appeal.

"TROUBLES OF TRUMBLE," a musical farcical comedy, in two acts, was produced for copyright purposes at the Lyceum Theatre, Stafford, on the 15th inst. The libretto is by Fred A. Ellis, the lyrics are by Fred A. Ellis and Percival Knight, the last-named gentleman being also responsible for the music. Mr Charles Esdale has bought the rights of the piece, and will produce it in the early spring with a strong company and special scenery. The author and composer of Troubles of Trumble are busily writing a new Eastern comic opera, and the former is going to India in October to obtain local colouring.

MISS GLADYS FFOLLIOTT entered St. Mary's Hospital, Plaistow, this week, preparatory to undergoing a severe operation to-day. The lady's friends and admirers will sympathise with her in her affliction, and wish her a complete recovery.

MISS BEATRICE KELSTON has been kindly released by Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell, with whom she has been playing the part of Eleanor Gray, in their tour of Little Mary. She has been engaged by Mr John Hare to sustain the same part in his provincial tour, opening on Monday at the Lyceum, Edinburgh.

MISS TOPSY SINDEN, the principal danseuse in The Cingalee company at Daly's Theatre, has been absent from the stage for some weeks past owing to illness. We are glad to be able to say that she is now much improved in health, and that she will be again at Daly's from Monday next.

THE final of Mr Geo. Edwardes's Duchess of Dantzic company's foursome golf competition was played at Newcastle, and resulted in a win for Herbert Clayton and Octavia Barry (giving two strokes), who beat Leonard Mackay and Barry Neame by two up and one to play. The winners went round in ninety-six.

AT Islington Revising Court, on Saturday, an objection was taken to the name of John Sheridan, of 58, Liverpool-road. The overseers stated that the voter was an actor who was travelling in Australia, but who would in due course return to this country. He had lived in this house for ten years, and the furniture on the premises was his. This information was obtained from his wife's mother. The Barrister—That is all right; he will come back. The name was retained.

MR LEONARD PAGDEN will, on Monday next at West Pier, Brighton, produce John Dunford, Bachelor, which was last spring originally played under the title of A Woman's Folly. Mr Pagden, Miss Madge M'Intosh, and the author Mr Alfred Holles will sustain the principal characters.

THE Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, which has been closed for some little time, will be reopened for the season on Oct. 3, under the management of Mr J. H. French. Why William Lied, a new farcical comedy, will be the initial attraction.

OWING to Mr Paul Arthur being compelled, through an attack of influenza, to resign his part in His Highness My Husband, the production of this piece at the Comedy Theatre has been unavoidably postponed.

AT the Grand Theatre, Margate, on Wednesday evening there was produced, for copyright purposes, a new play, by Justin Huntley M'Carthy, in four acts, entitled The Lady of Loyal House.

THE cast of The Golden Light, the play in four acts, by Mr George Daring, which will be produced at the Savoy Theatre on Thursday, includes Mr W. L. Abingdon, Mr Gilbert Hare, Mr Loring Fernie, Mr Leslie Styles, Mr Edward Overington, Mr Sydney Hamilton, Mr Arthur Applin, Mr Edwin Westby, Mr Harold Brooke, Mr R. S. Boleyn, Miss Mabel Beardsley, Mrs Lane-Joynt, Miss Mabilia Daniell, Miss Sara De Groot, Miss Amy Ravenscroft, Miss Maud Yates, and Mrs Brown-Potter.

MR H. V. ESMOND has finished a play of modern life in five acts, which has been secured by Mr Forbes Robertson, who intends to produce it in New York in January, and subsequently in London.

WHEN the glories of another pantomime at Drury-lane Theatre are revealed on Boxing-day the large company will be treading on one of the most modern and perfect stages in the world. The flooring of the stage has been taken up, and steel supports now take the place of some wonderful old beams, one of which bears the date of 1809. The new "boards" are to be of hard teak. In the front of the house the two top tiers are being rebuilt, and the wooden pillars replaced by steel supports. New staircases are also being constructed, and a fine set of new offices is to be erected over Vinegar-yard. During all these alterations the work of preparation for the pantomime goes steadily on.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON (Countess Miranda) has arrived in London from Paris for a few days. She will winter, as usual, on the Riviera, returning to her home in Paris in the spring.

MR MARSH ALLEN, who is playing his usual style of part—a youthful and ardent lover—in Beauty and the Barge at the New Theatre, is a good cricketer, having been devoted to the game even before he went on the stage, over seven years ago. Mr Allen is a Lancashire man, and made his first hit in London as Clement Hale, in one of Mr Edward Terry's many revivals of Sweet Lavender.

MRS BENNETT, whose charming performances are so popular at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, relates an amusing story of her efforts at mimicry. She was impersonating a well-known singer who had a little trick of gliding from one note to another occasionally, causing a rather weird effect. "Capital," said a friend when she had finished, "but don't you think the imitation would be more lifelike if you were a little more seasick on that last note?"

MR ERNEST E. NORRIS, when applying to the sitting magistrate (Mr C. Hopkins) of the Lambeth Police-court, on Monday last, for a licence to allow Miss Christine Williams to play a child's part in the Elephant and Castle Theatre this week, so lucidly stated his case that the magistrate not only unhesitatingly granted a licence for the week, but upon a further request from Mr Norris immediately gave a licence for the child for the entire run of the stock season.

MR FRED WALTON, who is at present taking the leading part in Mr Geo. Dance's Madame Sherry, is to play the Toy Soldier in the forthcoming pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

IN reply to a congratulatory telegram to His Majesty the King of Italy upon the birth of a son to the Royal House, the directors of the London Exhibitions, Limited, have received the following acknowledgment:—

Telegram.
The Directors, London Exhibitions, London.
His Majesty is grateful for the kind congratulations, and returns thanks. Signed, Ponzio Vaglia, Minister.

THE Cardiff Festival opened on Wednesday with Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, in which the soloists were Madame Lillian Blauvelt, Miss Gertrude Drinkwater, and Mr Ben Davies, who, as a Welshman, was warmly welcomed. The performance was directed by Dr. F. H. Cowen with his customary care. The choruses were brightly rendered, and the band, consisting of London instrumentalists, played well. The second part included Mr Edward German's Welsh Rhapsody, based on five Welsh airs, which was a great success. At night the programme consisted of Saint-Saëns' opera Samson and Delilah, in which the principal soloists were Miss Muriel Foster, Mr Ben Davies, Mr Ffrangcon Davies, and Mr Ivor Foster.

WE regret to hear that Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the Negro poet and author of the lyrics of In Dahomey, the only pure blooded Afro-American man of letters, is dying of consumption in Dayton, Ohio. In Dahomey, it will be remembered, was produced at the Shaftesbury Theatre last year on May 16. The American musical comedy was written and composed by Mr Dunbar and Mr Will Marion Cook, both clever representatives of the Negro race, and played throughout by members of the same interesting nationality.

AMONG the fashionable crowd thronging the charming little watering place of Salsomaggiore, the newest of the health resorts of Europe, are Lady Colin Campbell, Madame De Nuovina, who made so great a success at Covent-garden in La Navarraise this year, and the still-famous tragedian Tommaso Salvini.

SIGNORA EMMA CORELLI, wife of the Socialist leader, Walter Mocchi, committed suicide at Milan on Tuesday. She was to have appeared at the Lyric Theatre, but at the last moment it was proposed to cancel the contract, the proprietors of the theatre fearing that Madame Corelli would herself be the subject of a hostile demonstration owing to her relationship to Signor Mocchi, who is one of the leaders in the strike now proceeding. The unfortunate prima-donna was so upset by these forebodings that she took poison, and so ended her life.

THE Great Western and London and North-Western Railway Companies help the theatrical business whenever they can. For instance, on Thursday last these companies issued cheap tickets at single fare and a quarter for double journey, minimum fare 1s., from Wellington, Crewe, Stafford, Coalport, Ludlow, Shifnal, Minsterley, Bridgnorth, Chester, Oswestry, Welshpool, and all intermediate stations to Shrewsbury, in order that playgoers from those places might have an opportunity of witnessing As You Like It, as performed at the New Theatre Royal, Shrewsbury, by Mr F. R. Benson's North Shakespearian company.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN," with many new features, is the dramatic attraction at the Grand Theatre, Islington, on Monday. In the "early door" programme, which includes the Biograph and Newham and Latimar, Mr George Davey will present Mr Arthur St. George in a new song scena, written by Mr Cayley Calvert, entitled Beck, the English Dreyfus.

MR CHARLES VERNON HEATHCOTE, who is in the Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital, is getting better again, though still very weak. A benefit concert is being organised for him on Oct. 14, under the patronage of General Sir Redvers and Lady Audrey Buller, Sir Henry Irving, and Sir Francis Bolton, and he would be glad to hear from any old friends.

MR J. BANNISTER HOWARD opens his new theatre, King's Lynn, on Monday next. Very great interest has been taken in the new venture. Almost all the leading county people have booked seats. Mrs Beerbohm Tree will speak a prologue on Monday night, and this will be followed by Mr Ben Greet's company in La Poupée. All seats have been secured for the opening performances.

MR E. J. ODELL, the veteran actor, was the honoured guest of the Savage Club at their dinner last Saturday night. Mr Cleary was the chairman, and his witty speech evoked much merriment. He referred to Mr Odell as having existed in prehistoric times, and suggested that his early days were enveloped in mystery. Mr W. H. Denny proposed the health of the guest of the evening in felicitous terms. Mr Odell, in response, made a most effective speech, and afterwards sang his "Harvest Home" chorus song and recited Henry S. Leigh's poem, "The Villain at the Vic."

MR JOHN HARE will start his provincial tour with Little Mary at Edinburgh on Monday, with a company including Miss Hilda Trevelyan as Moira, Miss Helen Rous, Mr Rudge Harding, Mr Carter Pickford, Miss Gordon Lee, Mr Fred Groves, and Mr Eric Mathurin. In Hop o' Me Thumb, which will be the "front piece," Miss Trevelyan and Mr Rudge Harding will appear.

MISS IDA MOLESWORTH AND MR MARK BLOW'S company has been paying a return visit to packed houses at the Coronet Theatre this week, and will pay a return to the Camden next week. It is now nearly three years that they have toured Under Two Flags, and the play has lost none of its popularity.

MISS CECILIA LOFTUS, who is starring with Mr D. Frohman at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, opened on the 13th inst. in a new play, by Israel Zangwill, entitled The Serio-Comic Governess. She scored a tremendous success, so says a cablegram to her father, Mr Ben Brown.

MRS LANGTRY has taken a Savoy flat. The rents of these flats are £50 a-year and upwards. The services of a valet, a maid, and a chambermaid are provided for £20 a-year. There is a telephone in every room, and a bathroom to every bedroom; and hair-dressing, chiropody, complexion cure, and sun baths can all be had when required. Miss Ethel Matthews has also gone into one of these flats, which are likely to be much favoured by the profession.

MR GILBERT HARE, who is cast for the part of Sir Charles Sargeant in The Golden Light, is generally spoken of as one of the youngest actors to succeed so well in old men's characters, but he has been on the stage for something like fifteen years. The only son of Mr John Hare, his first engagement was in Mr Tree's company on tour. He is a Harrow boy and a Cambridge man, and married Miss Helen Luck, a young actress who retired from the profession on her marriage.

MISS ZENA DARE, now appearing at the Vaudeville Theatre, has been specially engaged by Mr J. M. Chute to appear at Christmas in the title-part of the pantomime of The Sleeping Beauty at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol.

MR RUTLAND BARRINGTON, who for the past fortnight has changed places with the artist who plays his part in The Cingalee in the provinces on tour, has found this an agreeable way of taking a short holiday. He returns to Daly's Theatre on Monday.

"THE PRINCE OF PILSEN" was performed for the 150th time at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Wednesday night, and there was no flagging or signs of weariness in any department of an entertainment that has given delight to thousands of playgoers. Amongst the musical items which have attained the most popularity may be mentioned "The Message of the Violet," admirably rendered by Miss Carolyn Lilja and Mr Harry Fairleigh. Excellent work is also done by Miss Louise Willis, Mrs Lillian Coleman, Mr Albert Le Fre, and others. The piece finishes its career at the Shaftesbury next Friday; and then Mr Henry W. Savage's company will lose no time in setting sail for New York.

THE George Edwardes Open Scholarship, in connection with the School of Musical and Dramatic Art at 77, New Oxford-street, has been won by Miss Dorothea Clarke. The preliminary examination was held last Tuesday, when seven candidates were chosen from a large number of stage aspirants, the examiners being Miss Eva Moore, Miss Rosina Brandram, Mr Edmund Payne, Mr Bantock Pierpoint, and Mr F. Aubrey Millward—the last two named are professors at the new school—and Mr Philip Henry acted as accompanist. The final examination took place on the stage of Daly's Theatre on Wednesday morning, when the fortunate scholar was selected by two of Mr Edwardes's representatives, Mr Sydney Ellison and Mr Howard Talbot. The winner of the scholarship, which is to be presented three times a year, will receive free tuition for three terms, and will then be given an engagement in one of Mr Edwardes's companies.

MR TOM CRAVEN'S pantomime "Gag" volume and poems for recitation have been purchased by Messrs French and Co., Limited, and will be published Oct. 1. The book will be very useful to pantomime comedians and amateur performers.

MISS BEATRICE ISAACSON has started a most successful tour of Messrs Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck's new sensational drama A Great Sensation at the West London Theatre, and the piece will be seen at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, next week.

THE Jubilee Masters' Lodge 2,712 held a meeting on the 16th inst. at the Hotel Cecil, with Mr Harry Nicholls, the W.M., in the chair. Mr Nicholls at the last Grand Festival was appointed, with Mr R. D. Cummings, one of the Grand Standard Bearers of the year. The Lodge elected several new members.

THE committee of the Playgoers' Club have presented the third annual statement of Pantomime Fund accounts, from October, 1903, to August, 1904. The balance in hand at the commencement of the season was £49 0s. 8d. Contributions to the fund amounted to £458 13s. 9d. The special concert at His Majesty's Theatre realised the net amount of £220 13s. 11d., thus leaving the handsome sum of £728 8s. 4d. available for the entertainment of the children. The club had the gratification of entertaining 11,740 children and 451 teachers, at a cost, including all expenses of printing, collecting, &c, of £596 13s. 3d.

THE report of the Public Control Committee, which was published on Thursday, reminds theatrical managers and others that certificates must now be issued in the case of all children employed in places of public entertainment. "Speaking generally, these conditions," it is stated in the report, "have been complied with, and in the few cases where it has been necessary to make suggestions they have been readily adopted. In no case has a child been employed under conditions injurious to its health, &c., unless it be held that any employment up to late hours in heated theatres must be prejudicial. Condition 2 provides that there shall be an interval of four hours for rest and refreshment between rehearsals or performances. It is obvious, however, that it is impossible to comply with this requirement at music halls giving two performances in one evening when the children appear in each performance. It also happens that children are sometimes employed at two or more music halls on the same evening, the halls at which such employment occur being situated in the districts of different police magistrates, and the magistrates being possibly unaware of the dual employment. In these cases also condition 2 cannot be observed."

WE have been asked by Mr Harry Cadle, theatrical agent, to state that he is in no way connected with the case recently tried at the Old Bailey, and which was so extensively reported.

Mr Otho Stuart, whom we remember as the Oberon, in Mr F. R. Benson's artistic revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream, some years since at the now defunct Globe Theatre, has taken courage in both hands, as it were and has inaugurated his season at the Adelphi with a poetic drama—or shall we say melodrama—in five acts and a tableaux. In doing this, too, he has introduced a new author to the English theatre, Mr James Bernard Fagan, whose literary excellences up to the present time have been, we understand, suppressed in ordinary provincial drama. It is well, therefore, that he should have a hearing in his finer mood, and by the production of The Prayer of the Sword Mr Stuart has added a notable blank-verse drama to the limited répertoire of plays that may be considered literature; for undoubtedly there are passages of considerable poetic beauty in the piece, such a one, for instance, as the fine apostrophe to the sword, which gives the play its title:—

ANDREA.

Why should the very touch of this cold thing
Set all my veins on fire? My life is vowed
To peace, and all my thoughts to gentleness,
Yet can this steel-tongued messenger of death
Summon hot blood to thaw my frozen soul,
Made all the arteries of my willing arm
Prolong their courses, till th' inanimate blade
Is quickened into life. (He swings the sword through the air). How lustily
It sings i' the air! And yet I know the song
Is made of mothers' cries, of widows' groans,
And all the long-drawn litany of woe.
Millions of tears have washed the guilty stains
From this relentless face; this hungry edge
Was sharpened on the sorrows of mankind.
Scourge of the nations, lord of misery!
What mourning multitudes have called thee cursed—
Thou iron vampire of the ages, fed
On blood of kings and countless nameless men.
(He moves up, picks up the sheath as though about to return the sword, then pauses)
No, I do slander thee! The sword did sweep
The infidel from out the sacred east,
And slept not till unto the sunset's shores
Was borne the Cross that won the world for Heaven.
Oh, thou art hollied by the enterprise.
Not all thy murderous memories can dim
That glory shining in thee still. Behold!
Thy destiny is written on the skies.
Arm thou the right; let order's cause be thine;
Lead thou the slave to freedom; guard the weak;
Arise, and win the equal rights of man.
I ord, hear my soul that echoes this great call—
That I who work by prayer might pray by work;
Work with the sword, pray with the sword, wage war
With prayer of sword, on all the powers of ill
That turn the world from thine eternal law.

These lines are uttered by Fra Andrea, a young monk of the monastery of San Bruno, who is about to become a priest. He chafes at the calm inaction of his life, and the thought that he lives to save one soul—his own—unfits him for the rigorous solemnity of a monastic life. The settled calm of his daily routine of prayer and fasting does not assuage the clamouring for action in the blood. The monastery is visited by the Duchess of Andola (Ilaria Visconti), the gentlest possible ruler of an imaginary state, and her suite. She talks with the impressionable and romantic youth; and, to his offer to do service for her with the sword, she reminds him that he is a monk, and that none may call him from his holy work. "Did you need help, God would arm men; the sword would come from Heaven; and if it come, I pray that mine be the hand that carry it," is the passionate response. Ilaria's parting words, "If heaven sends the sword unto your hand then must you use it," have an important bearing on the plot.

When the curtain rises on the second act Andrea is on the eve of his ordination as a priest, and by his replies to the prior of the monastery he has given up the yearning for the strenuous life; the world no longer tempts his soul. But the opportunity for serving the beautiful Ilaria is soon to come. As the monks are filing in to vespers a dead warrior is brought in. It is Demetro Ugolino, master of horse in the state of Andola, a loyal and brave counsellor and fighter, who has been murdered by cut-throats in the pay of Braccio Scorla. This powerful vassal of Andola is plotting to become its ruler, and would force the lady Ilaria to marry him. She is in deadly peril; and Ugolino, with his dying breath, adjures Andrea to "go forth, and for thy weapon take my sword." Andrea, with an ecstatic cry: "The sign has come at last. Lord, I obey," departs. Thenceforward the cowl of the monk is exchanged for the helmet and corselet of the knight-errant. Andrea raises adherents to the cause of Ilaria among the peasants of the country-side, and such is the spirit that he puts into his undisciplined rabble that the power of the revolutionary Scorla and his followers is broken, and he is banished by Ilaria, who has just previously scornfully refused to become his wife. Andrea takes the place of the disgraced Scorla, and is hailed by the public voice as gonfalonier of Andola and captain of the people. For one month Andrea consents to serve; but, as may be easily surmised, the discovery of their mutual affection keeps the young people together, and the monk is forgotten in the lover. He decides to wed Ilaria. It is unfortunate for Andrea that he has disclosed the secret of his monastic vows to Maddalena, the widow of Ugolini, and mistress of Scorla, whom she soon acquaints of the facts. Scorla, burning for an opportunity for revenge, sends word to Rome, and to Fra Bartolomeo a fanatical priest, who had instructed Andrea at the monastery. When the Bishop who performs the ceremony asks if there be any "just cause or impediment" to the marriage, Scorla bursts from his hiding place, and denounces Andrea as a monk. The latter frankly admits the truth of the accusation, but puts in an ingenious plea for justification of his conduct, which makes a deep impression upon the bishop, who ignores completely the expostulations of Fra Bartolomeo. The service, dramatically interrupted, is about to proceed when the Pope's emmisary arrives and forbids it. Andrea is ordered back to his cloisters. He defies the Pope and Fra Bartolomeo. The latter excommunicates him in due form with bell and candle.

The final scene of the drama is enacted in the Castle of San Martino, wherein Andrea has taken refuge. The court fool of Andola is his friend, and, coming in disguise brings with him Ilaria, who warns her lover of the treachery of Scorla. Her fears are only too true, for the baffled adventurer, accompanied by a fellow conspirator named Malavolta, has a specious plea whereby he gains entrance to the castle. He professes to bear a letter from the Pope, who by virtue of his powers may remove the curse. Their intent is murder, but Andrea is ready for their treachery, and in a combat kills the inferior assassin and mortally wounds Scorla. During the scuffle, Ilaria, who comes from her hiding place, gets a scratch from Scorla's poisoned dagger and dies, happy in the thought that she has given her life for Andrea. In her dying moments she charges him to make the monastery her resting place; and in the final tableau we see an old white-haired monk with the face of Andrea kneeling in prayer by the side of a flower-strewn grave.

The presentation of the piece by Mr Otho Stuart's company demands high praise. Most of the members of the company are, like that gentleman himself, old Bensonians. Mr Oscar Asche, who heads the cast, is responsible for the highly artistic production, and shows a perfect genius for the arrangement of the stage pictures. The turbulent crowd in the loggia of the ducal palace may be cited as an instance of his keen perception of theatrical effect. His acting, too, quite sustains his high reputation. He is always virile in his impersonations, and his Braccio Scorla, with an unholy lust of power, unscrupulous, but brave, is a powerful sketch of a soldier of fortune of the period. Scorla is always strikingly picturesque, and his arrogant defiance in the scene where he is banished by the Duchess Ilaria is distinctly impressive. Mr Walter Hampden, who is making what we believe is his first appearance in an important character on the London stage, quite justifies his selection for the part of Fra Andrea. He has a good voice, and his elocution is cultured. To the fine sword soliloquy he does complete justice, and in the poetic love scene in the third act he suggests capably the chivalrous tenderness of the period. Miss Lily Brayton makes a sweet and gentle Ilaria, who was not intended by nature to rule. She is gracious, winning, and in the last scene sweetly sad and affecting. Mr E. Lyall Swete doubles the parts of Demetro Ugolino and the Bishop of Andola. He makes the dying scene of the brave and devoted old master of horse piteous and moving, and in the church scene he suggests very skilfully the kindliness and culture of a highly placed ecclesiastic. Mr Alfred Brydone catches completely the spirit of uncompromising severity and ascetic zeal which animates Fra Bartolomeo. The fanatical priest's outburst in the church against the renegade Andrea is animated by the bitterness of creed, and though a little moderation may increase its effectiveness, the impersonation as a whole is highly creditable. The comedy part of Beppo, a fool of the Shakesperian sort, has but little to do with the main issue of the plot; but Mr Charles Angelo, who plays it, sings an incidental song extremely well, and the performance is ripe and unctuous. Mr Charles Rock as the conspirator, Niccolo Malavolti, is sinister and truculent, being especially good in the scene of Malavolti's death in the last act. Mr H. R. Hignett is gentleness and dignity personified as the prior of the monastery; Mr Herbert Grimwood is a consistently amiable Fra Bernardo; and Fra Lucca is capably delineated by Mr Lewis Willoughby. Miss Dora De Winton as the weak and sinning Maddalena looks very attractive and winning, and makes the most of her slight opportunities. Miss Pamela Gaythorne suggests the gaiety and frivolity of Fiametta; and Miss Hilda Wauton does justice to the small part of Valeria. Mr Frank Gadsby is an impressive figure as the astrologer Calandra; Mr Ashton Pearse is quite adequate as the papal envoy; Mr Gordon Harker is well placed as the Sacristan; and Messrs M. Wilson, A. H. Rowe, R. F. Anson, and Phillip Darwin render effective aid in small parts.

The scenic beauties of the piece excite admiration. The façade of the monastery, with the sunlit plains beyond and the blue heavens above, is such a picture as Turner would love to have painted, and it is a genuine triumph for Mr W. T. Hemsley. Mr Joseph Harker's interiors always show a genuine feeling for architecture; and a fine study of the Renaissance period is the Loggia of the Ducal Palace, Andola. The interior of the Church of San Giovanni, with all the rugged beauty of the Norman period outlined in its massive pillars, admirably befits the turbulent dramatic scene enacted therein.

The piece played too long on the opening night; but its superb pictures, its wonderful stage effects, and more than all the excellent way in which it was acted kept a large audience in their seats until close upon midnight. The incidental music that illustrates the play is from the accomplished pen of Mr Franco Leoni, whose score is embellished with some highly dramatic themes. The composer has written an elaborate suite that deserves a place in programme music as much as Grieg's famous Peer Gynt. There were loud calls for the author, who was brought on by Mr Oscar Asche, and the general verdict was highly favourable.

A CORRESPONDENT sends us the following anecdote which happened during last pantomime season. "A gorgeous pantomime was being played at a first-class theatre whereat an unsophisticated and an officious male dress-circle attendant had just been engaged. One night a gentleman stood at the back of the dress-circle intently absorbed in the performance of the principal boy. Approaching him, the attendant said "Don't think much of 'er, sir, do you?" "Eh?" replied the gentleman abstractedly. "She's a bit too scraggy for my liking," went on the man, "and look at 'er legs, they want padding.' The gentleman listened, but kept his eyes fixed on the stage. "People do say all sorts of funny things about 'er," still continued the attendant, "and I, personally, don't think she is good enough for the part. Her voice is off, and she can't dance although she tries to. Do you know 'er, sir?" For the first time the gentleman made a remark—"Yes!" "Then," said the attendant, "Maybe you're connected with the profession?" "Yes!" again said the gentleman. "And may I ask who you may be?" bluntly interrogated the man. The principal boy was just finishing her scene, and as she did so the gent'leman turned to go, with the gentle remark, "Oh, I'm only the lady's husband."

HERR EMIL THOMAS, a famous German comic actor, has died at the age of nearly seventy. He was very popular in Berlin and his loss is greatly regretted.

THE Earl of Yarmouth on Monday night took part in a theatrical entertainment which he had arranged to raise funds to purchase a new organ for Little Marlow parish church. The curtain rose on The Shades of Night, by Captain Marshall. Lord Yarmouth, who was assisted by professional actors and actresses, took the part of Sir Ludovic Trivett, a phantom, his white satin costume being magnificent. The Shades of Night was followed by Crazed, a rollicking farce in which the late Mr W. J. Hill used to be so uproariously funny, in which the Earl played the part of Brown (Mr Hill's part), an eccentric musician, and played the piano like an expert.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. ARDENE LINDEN.

MR ARDENE LINDEN studied elocution for some time under Mr Henry Neville. His first engagement was with the late Miss Kate Vaughan, in The Dancing Girl. This was Easter, 1894. He remained with Miss Vaughan some time, leaving her to join Miss Ethel Arden for Gilbert Vaughan, in Called Back; and, after a tour of sixteen weeks, he finished with a stock season of six weeks, playing juvenile lead to Miss Arden in four or five different plays a-week. He was then engaged by Mr Maurice E. Bandmann for Philip, the Deemster, in The Manxman. After a long engagement with Mr Louis Calvert, playing Victor, in Proof; Roderigo, in Othello; the Captain, in Ibsen's Enemy of the People; De Beringer, in Richelieu; Alfred Maynard, in The Corsican Brothers, &c., he was engaged by Mr Charles Harrington for Harold Saxby, in Her Wedding Day. This was followed by a ninety-nine weeks' engagement with Madame Constance Bellamy, Mr Linden playing Kyrle Daly, in The Colleen Bawn; Taffy, in Trilby; Charles II, in Don Cæsar de Bazan; Scalade, in The Daughter of the Regiment; &c. He next went on an autumn tour with Mr W. H. Hallatt, as the Rev. Martin Denham, in The Iron Maiden. He was then engaged by Mrs Louis Calvert for the Duke, in Proof; and D'Aubenton, in The Lyons Mail, remaining with Mrs Calvert forty-two weeks. After a year's engagement with Miss Eva Dare, playing Mathieu (his favourite part), in A Night Out, he was engaged by Mr and Mrs William Maclaren and Mr Henry Furnival for Chamboran, in Proof, which part he played with them 554 times. He was next engaged by Messrs Harold Perry and Thorne Ricketts for Fraser Green, in The Brixton Burglary, and after a sixteen weeks' tour he joined Mr and Mrs Calvert Routledge, with whom he remained two tours, playing Jonathan Abercorn, in All Through Arabella, and Marcus Brutus Snapp, in A Night Off. During these tours he had his first pantomime offer, and was with Mr Humphrey E. Brammall in the Crystal Palace pantomime last Christmas, playing Eliza, the cook, in Dick Whittington. He is retained for next Christmas for Dame, by Mr Brammall. He was engaged by Miss Gertrude Sterroll for her tour of the Late Lamented, for Major Marshall. He has had stock seasons at Aston and with Mr Fred Gould at Newcastle-on-Tyne, also many special weeks, among them being one with Messrs Charles Draycott and H. B. Peppin, for their production of The Best Must Win, at the Shakespeare Theatre, S.W. and another with Mr

MR. ARDENE LINDEN.

Harold V. Neilson as John Macadame, in The Glass of Fashion. He is re-engaged for this autumn by Mr and Mrs William Maclaren for Chamboran, in Proof, and will be with them again in the spring all being well, as they are very kindly keeping engagement open during his absence in pantomime.

MR JAMES RICE CASSIDY and company are at the Athenæum, Lancaster, this week, appearing in Dan the Rake and The God of War. The first-mentioned piece was played on Monday. Mr Frederick Biron submits an admirable representation of Capt. Cooper; Mr Frank Copeland is excellent as Chas. Kavanagh; the Col. Flamer of Mr Frank Orchard is a good performance; and Mr Ernest Chandler is meritorious as Nurka. Mr J. Rice Cassidy is full of fun in his portrayal of the title-rôle, and he is ably supported in the humorous element by Miss Lillian Clare as Madge and Mr Norman Hall as Archille. Miss Ada Roscoe plays with success as Mrs Donnelly, and Miss Florence Halton is pleasing as Helen.

M. EMMANUEL ARENE, the distinguished dramatic critic of the Figaro and Deputy for Corsica, has been elected Senator for the Island.

CARICATURES of Irishmen on the stage have long been a sore offence to people of that race in America, and are constantly protested against. The Ancient Order of Hibernians has taken up the question, and a crowded session of its representatives, held at Paterson, New Jersey, on Saturday, passed a resolution condemning the practice, and ordaining that no member of the order shall attend any theatre in which the ridiculous caricature embodied in the "stage" Irishman is allowed to figure in the performances. Do Yankee Hibernians object to Conn the Shaughraun, Shaun the Post, or Myles-na-Coppaleen? They must be very sensitive indeed if they do.

THE Leeds Musical Festival will be held at the time of the inaugural ceremony of the Leeds University on Oct. 6, and it was thought fitting that honours should be conferred on noted musicians, such as Sir Hubert Parry, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, and Sir Edward Elgar, although in all cases they had no direct connection with Yorkshire. In all thirty-eight degrees will be conferred, and the authorities hope to prepare another representative list at a future date. The list is altogether a remarkable one.

SIR HENRY IRVING AT CARDIFF.

Sir Henry Irving has favoured Cardiff by making the Theatre Royal of that town the starting point of his farewell tour. On Monday night The Merchant of Venice was presented, and lovers of Shakespeare did not fail to take advantage of this last opportunity of witnessing the great actor's masterly delineation of Shylock. The house was packed long before the hour of opening by an enthusiastic audience, whose gratification at once more seeing Sir Henry was somewhat damped by the remembrance that in all probability it was for the last time. This fact did not in the least, however, affect their welcome, and on his first appearance it was some considerable time before the applause reluctantly died out. Needless to say, the representation of the Jew was admirable. Seldom, indeed, has Sir Henry been in better form. One of the most striking things in Monday night's performance was Shylock's defence of his race, and the contrast between the stern, implacable Jew and the broken, disappointed man who prays for leave to go from hence was very vivid and affecting. The company is exceptionally strong. Miss Edith Wynne Matthison represented Portia with undoubted skill. Possessing an attractive appearance, this talented actress gave a charming impersonation and quickly won the admiration of the house. Mr James Hearn as Antonio did capital work, and Mr Gerald Lawrence acted with spirit and dignity the part of Bassanio. The portrayal of Gratiano by Mr H. B. Stanford was, without doubt, one of the best. His lines were clearly and distinctly delivered, and his impersonation deserves great praise. Mr Charles Dodsworth was good as Launcelot Gobbo, and Miss Grace Hampton as Nerissa and Mrs Cecil Raleigh as Jessica were admirable. The curtain fell on the piece amidst the most enthusiastic applause. Again and again, in one of the intervals, Sir Henry Irving and Miss Matthison had had to bow their acknowledgments, but at the close nothing less than a speech would satisfy the audience. By this time Sir Henry had discarded the garb of Shylock, the dishevelled locks and loose robes, and he appeared before the footlights in evening dress. It was his privilege, he said, to thank them—it would be impossible to thank them adequately—for so kind and so generous and so inspiring a greeting. It was a delight to be in Cardiff once more, and it was a delight to find that they had received the interpretation of the play with such pleasure and satisfaction. He thanked them for himself and his comrades. On Tuesday Lord Tennyson's historical play Becket was produced, Sir Henry appearing in the title-rôle. The leading lady in the play was Miss Maud Fealy. Much was expected from this clever actress, and she did not in the least disappoint her well-wishers. Her delineation of Rosamond De Clifford was much admired. Her tenderness in the love scene was charming in its unaffected simplicity, but her most striking acting came in the romantic scene in which the life of Rosamund is threatened by Queen Eleanor. Mrs Cecil Raleigh as Eleanor of Aquitaine was excellent, and the same may be said of Mr Gerald Lawrence as Henry II. and Mr H. B. Stanford as King Louis. The Lyons Mail was billed for Wednesday, and Waterloo and The Bells are also in the list. Sir Henry's stay has been greatly appreciated, and Cardiffians all join in universal regret that the present is his farewell visit.

THEY greatly honour Shakespeare in Germany, and A Midsummer Night's Dream has just been produced under novel conditions at Thale. The theatre is on the summit of a mountain, and is surrounded on all sides by steep rocks; the seats for the audience are hewn out of the rock and accommodate 1,000 persons, and the stage, which is also hewn out of the rock, is 80ft. long by 54ft. wide. No artificial scenery is used, but the background is formed by the dense forest which encircles the theatre, and by the outlines of the mountains in the distance. This mountain theatre was founded and is managed by Dr. Ernst Wachler, of Weimar, a noted dramatist and writer. He has sought to establish a national theatre on Greek models. Only first-class players are engaged, and reasonable prices are charged. Dr. Wachler also aims at presenting new plays by promising young authors who cannot obtain a hearing in regular city theatres.

AT the Marylebone Police-court on Thursday, Louis Rees, a German hairdresser, of Clifton-road, Maida-hill, was charged with assaulting Miss Nancy Desmond, an actress, of independent means. Miss Desmond went to prisoner's shop to have her hair dressed. He assured her that she needed a tail of hair at the back, and when pressed to have one she consented, and allowed him to take a pattern as to the colour, and paid him 10s. as a deposit. Subsequently she called at the shop and the prisoner produced the tail of hair, but she refused to accept it as it differed in colour from her hair. He then declared that in the interval she had dyed her hair, and she told him that she had never dyed her hair. She left the shop, but went there again on the 7th inst., and asked for the tail of hair or the return of her half-sovereign. The prisoner took hold of her by the shoulders, and having tried to put her out, threw her down and kicked her on the mouth. Her leg and her arm were bruised, and she was covered with blood. The magistrate commented strongly on the brutal conduct of the prisoner. No fine he could impose, he said, would meet the justice of the case, and he therefore sentenced Rees to six weeks' hard labour.

THE successful musical farce, His Majesty's Guests, excellently performed by Mr Fred Karno's company, forms the attraction at the Theatre Royal, Darlington this week. Messrs William Rokeby (Sergeant Lightning), George Hudson, J. W. Hooper, Charles Leoville, E. C. Lilley, Charles Cardon, Charles Griffiths, Tom Manardo, and the Misses Madge Campbell, Katie Brunton, Marie Campbell, and other capable artistes are responsible for mirth-provoking representations of their respective characters. The speciality dances given in the third act by Miss Effie Northern are highly appreciated.

AT the Chesterfield County Petty Sessions, on the 17th inst., the magistrates renewed the theatrical licence of the local Theatre Royal, in regard to which the Watch Committee of the Chesterfield Town Council applied for an alteration of rules so as to prevent the audience smoking during the performance. The licence had been granted without any restriction as to smoking by the audiences for the past seven years, and a petition had been signed by over 2,000 citizens in favour of the continuance of the privilege. The Town Clerk drew the attention of the Bench to the fact that the London County Council were insisting that there should be no smoking in any part of the auditoriums of places of amusement. The chairman said the Bench were unanimous in their decision not to interfere. The licence was renewed.

MR JOSEPH WEINBERG, an actor, and secretary of the Jews' Oriental Dramatic Society, was charged on Monday, at the Thames Police-court, with disorderly conduct in Cannon-street-road, St. George's. A police-constable said the defendant complained to him that two youths had jostled him. The boys apologised, and the officer took their names and addresses. But Mr Weinberg was not satisfied, and became excited. He refused to go away, so the officer took him into custody. The constable denied saying to Mr Weinberg, "You are not killed or robbed; get on." He also denied using obscene language to Mr Weinberg and dragging him through the streets by the coat-collar. Mr Weinberg stated that the constable did not take the names of the boys, but arrested him without cause, and dragged him through the streets. Mr Mead stopped the case and discharged the actor.

"MY LADY MOLLY" AT SEA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—As there seems to have been some gross exaggeration in the reports in many of the papers as to what really occurred on the above company's voyage from Cork to Douglas, I feel compelled in my own interests to answer them. The company left Cork at 6 0 p.m. on Saturday evening after the matinée, by the City of Cork Steam Packet company's steamer Tumsfallen, dinner being provided for the whole of the company at 7 0 p.m. After dinner the ladies and gentlemen strolled about or read their papers and retired to their berths, state cabins being provided for all. The sea was as smooth as a mill pond, the sun shining all day on Saturday. The steamer arrived in Liverpool at 1 0 p.m., Sunday (up to time), and the company again had dinner provided for them on the same boat at 2 0 o'clock p.m. During the afternoon the scenery and baggage was transferred to the Isle of Man Steam Packet Company's s.s. Douglas, the various members of the company passing their time away as they wished, permission having been granted by the City of Cork Steam Packet Company for the company to remain on board their boat until the cabins of the s.s. Douglas were opened at 6 0 o'clock p.m. Sunday evening. As statements have got into the papers saying that we had a rough passage from Cork to Liverpool, I must contradict them, and say that the whole of the company agreed that the trip was most delightful; hardly a ripple on the water and no one was sea sick at all. So much for the voyage from Cork to Liverool. Now for the same from Liverpool to Douglas. S.s. Douglas left at 11 0 p.m. Sunday night, calm seas, some of the company had supper on board, and most of them retired to their cabins about midnight. The s.s. Douglas was due in Douglas Harbour about 4 0 o'clock Monday morning. All goes well until we are about three miles away from Douglas, when the captain (an excellent seaman, by-the-bye) finds that the boat does not answer to her rudder. He sends men to examine same and see what is the matter, and the result is that they find the rudder has broken away. We drop anchors at once and run up signals of distress, and the whistle is blown continuously. Eventually, after about four hours (the boats in the harbour having to get up steam to come out), the Isle of Man Steam Packet Company's boat Mona is sent out and asks what is the matter. The captain replies that his rudder has gone and that the ship is quite unmanageable. The Mona returns to the harbour. The seas by this time are running very high and increasing hourly. After a time the Isle of Man Steam Packet Company again sent out their boat the Mona, and after much trouble two hawsers were attached, the idea being that (with our own steam we could move, but we couldn't steer), going ahead, and the Mona following she would be able to steer us into Peel Harbour, the risk of attempting to enter Douglas Harbour being out of the question, as the seas were worse in shore than outside. All the time we were rudderless, and, had our hawsers parted at the harbour mouth, we should have been dashed to pieces on the rocks. For a little time the hawsers stood the severe strain, and then they both snapped; we, of course, had to drop anchor at once. The Mona went back near to the harbour, and then returned to us and shouted to our captain to drop anchor and ride out the storm. She then stood by us for a little time. I was afterwards informed that after the Mona left us it took her captain two and a half hours before he could bring her into Castletown Harbour, the seas being so heavy. During all this time the storm was raging, and as it was a 21ft. tide, seafaring men will quite appreciate the gravity of the situation. We were now at anchor twenty-one hours, and the Douglas rode the storm out well. Of course, should the anchor have dragged or the cable snapped, nothing could have prevented us going on a lee shore and breaking up. It was a most anxious time for all. The crew knew of the great danger we were in, and some of their pale faces were a good index to what was passing through their minds. A steamer outward bound shouted to us that a tug had been sent for from Liverpool. I saw the captain, and he said she would be here in about seven hours, but that it would be impossible to make for the harbour until it was daylight. The fact must not be forgotten that we were rudderless, and the boat quite unmanageable. About 5 30 Tuesday morning the powerful tug Kingfisher came out of the harbour, she having arrived during the night. We attached hawsers, and we went into the harbour under our own steam, the Kingfisher steering us.

This is the story of the voyage from Cork to Douglas, sixty hours. As to the panic and shrieking and praying of the ladies on board, I wish to distinctly contradict such statements as far as the first two are concerned, at least, I never saw or heard of any. For myself, I am thankful to say I am an excellent sailor, and was constantly down in the cabins. I asked all the ladies if they wanted anything in the way of refreshments, but they replied all they wished for was Bovril or a biscuit or brandy, and the stewardess had orders to supply them with what ever was required. Many of them never tasted anything for the whole thirty-six hours on board, and several never rose from their berths the whole time. The readers of this letter will be better able to appreciate what the storm was really like when they are informed that the seas were the worse seen in the Island for forty years—the promenade being strewn thick from end to end with seaweed, liked a ploughed field, and seaweed was hanging from some of the first storey windows of the houses on the promenade. During the Monday, whilst we were at anchor, a yacht was wrecked in the bay, and the Douglas lifeboat went out and rescued the eight persons on board.

"After the storm comes a calm." Tuesday was a lovely day, sun shining, and not a ripple on the water.

As to the "actress heroines" on board, I am quite proud to say that all the ladies in My Lady Molly company behaved like brave women, and certainly they did not shriek their troubles from the house-tops directly they got ashore, such an idea never entering their heads I am thankful to say.

Yours faithfully, GEORGE W. LINDSAY,
Manager for Mr Fredk. Mouillot's
My Lady Molly Company.

Opera House, Blackpool.

THE Incorporated Society of Musicians will on Oct. 8th, unveil an inscription in the Church of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, to the musician, John Dunstable, who died in the year 1453. This inscription will be a reproduction of the original one in Latin, which Stow mentions as being engraved on "two faire plated stones in the chancell, each by other, and which had become worn and almost undecipherable. John Dunstable, who was the most celebrated of the old musicians, and famous all over Europe as being one of those who laid the foundations of the great schools of the sixteenth century, was a native of Dunstable, in Bedfordshire. Examples of his music are preserved in the British Museum and Lambeth Libraries.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Tuesday, a sitting was held for the public examination of Walter Maclean, actor, described as of New Bond-street, W. The debtor stated, in reply to the Official Receiver, that he had at various times been a bank clerk, company director, motor agent, and actor. He had also been connected with the Stock Exchange, and on some occasions had conducted provincial touring companies on his own account. He attributed his failure to loss in connection with a stock-broker's business and with theatrical enterprises. The examination was concluded, the liabilities being returned at £1,086 and the assets at nil.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

The programmes arranged by Mr George Adney Payne are capital examples of the real scope of variety, and the inhabitants of Walthamstow and the surrounding district find excellent relaxation at the beautiful palace that has been placed in their midst. The enterprise of the directors meets with a liberal response, and now that there is a touch of autumn in the leaves and the evenings are growing longer excellent business is being done. Mr Arthur J. Barclay and Mr George M. Slatter are welcoming large audiences twice nightly, and there is much enthusiasm shown in the reception of the various turns. This is especially the case in the greeting given to Mr Brien M'Collough and company, who are appearing this week in the racing episode The Winner, and thoroughly succeed in their efforts alternately to amuse, interest, and excite the spectators. Mr M'Cullough himself as Bill Winner repeats an impersonation that is well-known here and is popular everywhere. The broken-down and bibulous rascal is capitally conceived and splendidly worked out. Mr Jack Wilcox is a fine, manly Frank Noble, speaking his lines with fine effect. Mr Johnstone Gould spares no pains to accentuate the villainy of My Lord Swindell; Miss Bernice Fielding is a spirited Lois Winner; Mr S. H. Neville a good trainer; and Miss Nellie Nelson a buxom Polly Primrose. The two racehorses look fit to win anything. The piece is beautifully staged. Mr Walter Wallis is a popular comedian; the Two Cecils sing fairly well, and the gentleman's step-dancing is neat and clever. Baroux and Bion are a very funny pair of eccentric acrobats, whose burlesque boxing match is laughable. Burke, Andrus and Frisco produce the wildest hilarity by their absurdity After the Covent-garden Ball, in which not the least popular and amusing actor is the splendidly trained mule. In place of an artist who did not appear on Monday evening three young ladies deputised. Their dancing was, perhaps, better than their singing. The Leggett Combination appear with great success in The Maid of Athens, in which Miss Amy Leggett is a beautiful statue. Mr Chas. Mildare astonishes everyone with his marvellous whistling, and Harrison Brothers are responsible for considerable merriment as knockabout artists and step dancers. Mr Ivan Caryll's overture to The Toreador is capitally rendered by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr H. Peterson.

MESSRS FRANCIS, DAY, AND HUNTER have in the Press "Ma London gal," so successfully introduced by Miss Gladys Mavius at her London engagements, and also sung by Miss Stella Stanley. This "goey" and melodious lyric, which is written and composed by Messrs John P. Harrington and Sam Mayo respectively, will be allowed to go "free" for pantomimes, subject, of course, to the discretion of Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter. So, in the words of a popular song, "hurrry up, young ladies," and secure it for pantomime.

IN consequence of the success achieved by Mr W. J. Churchill's song "Girls wouldn't be wanted at all," Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter have accepted it for immediate publication, and pantomime copies are already printed. This tuneful and humorous number, which is from the versatile pens of Messrs John P. Harrington and George C. Brown, will, in the opinion of Mr Lester Barrett, be one of the biggest pantomime hits issued this year by the firm he so worthily represents; in fact, to quote his own words, "it should be another 'Girl wanted there.'" which latter great success it somewhat resembles in style.

MISS ELLA DEAN is singing with immense success that pretty ballad "The ugly duckling," written and composed by C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton. The song is also a hit with Parks' Eton Boys and Miss Ethel Loftus, &c. The above-mentioned firm has this week supplied Miss Katie Butler with an entirely new répertoire.

MESSRS M. WITMARK AND SONS recently commissioned Mr John P. Harrington to supply the words of an up-to-date war song to an American melody, composed by Mr Gus Edwards, composer of "Good-bye, Dolly Gray." Mr Harrington, as a result, has written a stirring military song, entitled "Bravo, plucky Japan!" which, in the capable hands of Mr George Leyton, who holds the sole music hall rights, has been evoking nightly plaudits on the Barrasford tour. This really fine war song will be "free" for this year's pantomimes.

MISS RITA RESDAN, the dainty and realistic male impersonator, opens on Monday at the Oxford in her new and original scena entitled "My Girls," by Mr G. A. Stevens.

MR BILLY BINT opens on Monday next at the Marina, Ramsgate, with his own combination.—Mr Harry Conlin, who finishes a successful season in London to-night, goes to the Royalty, Glasgow, for pantomime, to play dame.—The Brothers Webb have just returned from a five months Continental tour, and open on Monday at the Empire, Hull.—Radford and Valentine will shortly leave for a Continental tour, returning in time to open on the Barrasford tour and the Tivoli, London.

REZENE AND ROBINI, after a most successful tour of thirteen weeks on the Moss Circuit, will return to London on Monday to the Hackney Empire.

NADJI is performing at the Empress, Brixton next week with her new electric staircase, a beautiful fitment that takes up the whole of the stage, and is only excelled by the beauty and grace of the performer.

THE act given by the Calcotts, musical comedy artistes, is one that is unequalled for versatility and comprises some very funny comedy business, unexcelled dancing and singing, and cleverly executed soli on the pianoforte, 'cello, and banjo. It is rare indeed that one finds a genuine vein of comicality in a gifted musician, but "'tis the exception that proves the rule." Already numerous contracts have been obtained for this clever act.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

FORDE.—Sept. 22, Mrs Hal Forde (Miss Marion Edith Murto), of a son, both doing well.

MARRIAGES.

ARMSTRONG—CORDINER.—Sept. 5th, at St. John's Church, Westgate-road, Newcastle-on-Tyne, by the Rev. Henry Greene, George, eldest son of Edward Armstrong, of Prudhoe, to Christian Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the late James Cordiner, for twenty-five years schoolmaster at Egglestone, county Durham, and formerly of the Dumfries Episcopal School, and a student in the Edinburgh Episcopal Training College.

CREBER—COCKRAM.—Sept. 20, at St. James the Less, Plymouth, by the Rev. R. H. Miers, vicar, John Henry, son of the late Theophilus Creber, show printer, Plymouth, and Mrs Creber, 28, Carlisle-terrace, to Violet Edith, second daughter of the late Charles Cockram, Salisbury Hotel, and Mrs Cockram, 99, Union-street, Plymouth.

DRAYSON—MARRISON.—Sept. 3, at St. John-at-Hackney, by the Hon. and Rev. A. G. Lawley, M.A., Albert Ernest, second son of John Drayson, Esq., The Villa, Codicote, Herts, to Georgina Maude (Miss Georgie Maude), daughter of the late William George Marrison, Esq., of Stoke Newington.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE.

The marriage of Miss Lelia Roze, the popular burlesque artiste, of Shrigley Hall, co. Down, to Mr Edward Downes Martin, J.P., of Killoskehane Castle, co. Tipperary, will take place at the pro-Cathedral, Liverpool, on Wednesday, Sept. 28.

DEATHS.

DOUGLASS.—Sept. 16, at 45, King Henry's-road, Hampstead, Bertie Richard Campland Douglass, aged twenty-six. Beloved of all. God rest his soul.

DRESCHER.—Aug. 9, in Johannesburg, South Africa, of enteric fever, the beloved wife of Carlos Drescher and mother of Cleopatra, snake charmer, and Bonita, sharp shooter. Gone but never forgotten by her sorrowing husband and daughters.

PERKINS.—Sept. 20, at his residence in Manchester-road, Blackpool, of acute pneumonia, Berkeley Perkins (Thomas Frederick Perkins), actor.

IN MEMORIAM.

MR E. A. PICKERING, late of our own Alhambra and now the popular manager of the Tivoli, Darling-street, Cape Town, was accorded a complimentary benefit there on the 26th ult. Among those who entertained were Mr Tom Woottwell, the Frasettis, Miss Lyndale, Le Roy, Talma and Bosco, Mr E. O. Freshwater, the Rhoda Brothers, Mr Frank Barclay, Miss Madeline May, Mr Harry Hearne, World and Kingston, Mr William Cromwell, Miss Maisie Ellinger, Miss Lilian Hubbard, Miss Crissie Leonard, Mr Manfred Russell, Miss May Audrey, Mr Arthur Stigant, and the Collins Quartet. The joint stage-managers were Messrs Harper and Clark.

THE most interesting event of the evening was the presentation to Mr Pickering, who came on the stage accompanied by Mr Fred St. Leger, the managing director of the Tivoli, of an illuminated address and a purse containing £170. Mr St. Leger also presented Mr Pickering with a solid silver shaving set and brushes, a gift from some intimate friends whom Mr Pickering in his neat reply referred to as "Tivoli stiffs." At the conclusion of the ceremony, the entire house rose and joined heartily in singing, "For he's a jolly good fellow," during which Mr Pickering quitted the stage.

LAST Saturday was Swindon's Lifeboat day, when the usual procession, including the Ramsgate Lifeboat, and crew, paraded the principal streets of the town. In the evening, on the generous invitation of Mr Alfred Manners, the popular lessee and manager of the Queen's Theatre, the crew of the boat witnessed an excellent performance of The Lady of Lyons by the Osmond Tearle Répertoire company, including Mr Alex Marsh and Miss Carrie Bailee, in the leading rôles. One glance at the faces of those hardy men was sufficient to testify their enjoyment of the play, and their appreciation of the kindness bestowed on them.

THE condition of Miss F. Glynne, the wife of Valvo, was so serious on Saturday last that she was taken to a private hospital at Newcastle, where she will have to remain for some weeks. She is receiving every attention, and is improving rapidly.

MR FRED MILLER, who has been somewhat unwell of late, starts to-day for a week's holiday, which he will spend in his native Gloucestershire. We hope he may come back reinvigorated.

THE cowboy hypnotist, Ahrensmeyer, has been drawing crowded houses to the Islington Empire. Not only have the north Londoners come to see his show at night, but Mr Spearman, the popular manager, estimates that about 15,000 people daily have looked at the lady in the lobby, who each morning has been put into a hypnotic sleep by Ahrensmeyer on a luxurious bed, and left for the inspection of the curious until awakened by the wizard at the night performance. So successful has Ahrensmeyer been that he has been engaged for the many enterprises ruled over by Messrs Gibbons and George Adney Payne.

MESSRS EDGECOMBE AND AISTON'S Pierrot Concert Party, who have had a very successful summer season at the Drill Hall, Maidenhead, had their first annual benefit concert on the 14th, when the efforts of the troupe (Miss Grace Castella, Miss M. Reddington, Miss Elsie Laureen, and Messrs Edgecombe, Aiston, and W. Redfern, with Mr Sydney Jones at the piano), were much appreciated by a large audience. Variety was afforded by an excellent series of pictures shown by the Mutoscope, that of the amorous policeman having been taken locally with Messrs Edgecombe and Aiston in the two central characters. The New Pavilion, the latest addition to Maidenhead halls for entertainment, has been secured by this party for the winter season.

THE National Band Festival will be held at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, Oct 1, when 150 bands, representing 4,000 instrumentalists, will compete for prizes valued at £1,750, the principal one being a magnificent trophy worth 1,000 guineas, presented by the Crystal Palace Company.

MR T. E. DUNVILLE is to play the part of the bold bad baron at the Theatre Royal pantomime, Newcastle-on-Tyne, where the Brothers Poluski will appear as the Robbers.

A NOVELTY has been secured by Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter entitled "The Little Laplander," and one which can be worked as solo or scena. It is by Harry Castling and C. W. Murphy.—Mr Will Johnson has secured a new humorous song, "How did you get there?" by Henry E. Pether.—Mr Josef Collins, of Dundalk, a composer for the variety stage, whose "There was I as large as life" for Mr Harry Freeman and "Dr. Bill's Purple Pills" for Mr Wallis Arthur will be remembered, has been spending an enjoyable holiday in London.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr E. S. Willard again favours us with a welcome visit, and on this occasion we have an opportunity of seeing the popular actor in a variety of parts. In The Middleman, which was staged on Monday, he appeared as Cyrus Blenkarn, one of his greatest successes, and his impersonation was again endowed with all those virile qualities which have contributed so much to its renown. Quite a different style of part engaged his attention on Tuesday, when he appeared as Professor Goodwillie, in Barrie's comedy The Professor's Love Story. Perfect in gesture and expression, his acting was finished to a degree, and afforded much pleasure to a full house. Prominent in the support were Mr Walter Edmunds as Pete and Mr William Sauter as Henders, their strange wooing of Effie Proctor, a character capitally sustained by Mrs Russ Whytal, occasioning hearty merriment. Miss Maud Hoffmann made a pleasing Lucy White, while Miss Mabel Dubois as Lady Gilding and Miss Eileen Warren were also successful. Miss Edith E. Combes was an earnest Agnes Goodwillie. Mr H. Cane imparted an air of geniality to his portraiture of Dr. Cosens, and Mr A. S. Homewood was usefully employed as Sir George Gilding. The Cardinal, a play in which Mr Willard has previously been seen in Newcastle, was presented on Wednesday, and on Thursday Tom Pinch was staged.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—This week the romantic comedy Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner is being presented here by Mr Lewis Waller's company, and the incidents here dealt with, in the days of the American war of independence, prove interesting. Mr Thomas Kingston as Captain Peyton, the prisoner referred to, has supplied an earnest and spirited embodiment. The honours are shared by Miss Gertrude Burnett as Miss Elizabeth, whose stern resolve is not proof against the power of love. Mr Hilliard Vox as the truculent Major Coldon gives satisfaction, and a good character impersonation comes from Mr George Mallett as Mr Valentine. Miss Alys Rees does well as Mistress Williams, while serviceable impersonations are those of Mr R. Atkinson, Tom Taylor, F. Perry, and Miss Edith Elton.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company is paying a return visit here with The King of Crime. Rougarre, the monarch of evil-doing, is enacted with considerable force by Mr William Clayton, and Miss Marion Turner submits an effective performance as Henriette.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—The appearance of Mr A. C. Lilly's company in the stirring military sketch Drummed Out is a leading feature here, and the performance is followed with keen interest. Rousby's "In Paris" is a series of electrically illuminated tableaux of scenes in the gay city, and some of the light effects obtained are beautiful. A very diverting entertainment is that provided by Clark and Hamilton, who amply prove their worth in song and dance and comedy business, while the male partner is a skilled pianist. Some vigorous long boot dancing is supplied by the Three Cape Girls, and Ben Albert gives us a sample of his dry humour. The Anartos precede their musical business with jokes and cross-talk of a very laughable nature, while Tennyson and Wallis, eccentric comedians, are well appreciated. Newhouse and Ward display exceptional ability as trick cyclists, and there are also appearing successfully Petras, comedy juggler; James Kurry, comedian; and Phil Herman, comedian.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will Boardman.—The principal item in this week's programme is contributed by Miss Madeline, "Looping the Loop" on a bicycle. Alf Gibson, "the quaint one," had to sing no less than five songs on Monday before he was allowed to retire. Quite an enjoyable sketch is provided by the Three Prestons, whose efforts create much merriment. Percy Honri makes a welcome reappearance, his concertina solos proving popular. As gymnasts the Lombarts are particularly smart. Mdlle. Florizell, speciality act; George Foyle, vocalist; Alice Lorette, with her statue dog; and Merton and Rydon, speciality artists, win approval in their respective acts.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Thornton and Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—Plenty of excitement is being derived from the sensational and highly wrought scenes which are to be found in The Biggest Scamp on Earth, a melodrama performed by Miss Frances Delaval's company. Derrick Knight, the scamp in question, is a personage with whom an intimate acquaintance is by no means desirable, and Mr Percy Carne Waram, who appears in the character, gives a highly coloured portraiture of unscrupulous, callous villainy. Miss Frances Delaval submits an effective piece of acting as Naomi Belvedere. Mr Douglas Hutchings is responsible for an earnest embodiment of Vivian Wakefield, and Mr Hamilton Urquhart as Sir Aubrey Knight and Mr G. Geddes as Napoleon Hawk are both seen to advantage. Miss Dorothy Mahomed imparts the requisite air of sympathy to her acting as Irene May, and the Mother Hawk of Miss Patty Groves is a good performance.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; Managing Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—J. W. Rowley, the popular comedian, is the star turn here, and he has met with a very warm reception. The Sisters Russell cause endless merriment; a most dramatic performance, entitled The Miser, is given by Mr Leo Harvey; W. H. Morgan sings a capital song in first-class style; the Gladenbecks go through a smart performance on the silver rings; Madame Louie is responsible for some wonderful thought-reading; Hannah and James are smart in a foot-balancing performance; the original Pueblo Brothers are successful in song and dance; Miss Rose Harvey sings a catchy song; and Harry Lawton also scored with his singing.

NOTTINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—Enthusiasm reached a high pitch on Monday, when Mr Martin Harvey presented his latest play, The Breed of the Treshams. The fall of each curtain brought him call after call, and at the final he was fain to respond to the greeting in a few words of thanks. As the roystering, fearless, devil-may-care "Rat" Mr Harvey is admirable, both voice and gesture being perfectly attuned to the part. Miss N. De Silva played with incisive force as Batty, and Miss Coleridge, acted with winsomeness and sympathetic feeling as Margaret. Miss Edith Coleman made a dignified Mrs Bagshaw, and Miss Bessie Elder presented Helena Pierrepont with grace and spirit. Mr Charles Glenney gave the fullest expression to the scoundrelly nature of Colonel Hungerford, and Mr Gilbert Yorke made a callous Captain Stanhope. Mr Albert E. Raynor depicted the stern old soldier, Viscount Dorsington, with admirable taste, and Mr Fred Wright, sen., submitted a capital portraiture of Colonel Bagshaw. Mr Milton Rosmer as Cornet Tresham acted with the natural vigour and spirit of youth, and minor parts are carefully acted by Messrs George Cooke, Eugene Wellesley, Arthur Maude, and Reeve Denbigh.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas. P. Cooke.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr Mark Blow present this week A Sailor's Sweetheart, in which the abundance of humour almost eclipses the dramatic element. There are some delightful scenic effects, and a capital naval band which adds much to the success. Mr Alfred Goddard is highly acceptable as Lieut. Clive, a part in which his artistic abilities have full play, making him a general favourite. Mr Charles Stafford portrays acceptably Admiral Sefton, and Capt. Mayland has an able exponent in Mr William Stoneham; Mr Robert Faulkner makes an adequate interpreter of Philip Pemberton's villainy, and Mr C. A. Johnstone is keenly incisive as the Rev. Robert Clive; Miss Adah Barton plays Grace Mayland with delicate emotional expression, earning sympathy and well deserved applause, and the drollery of Miss Evelyn Shaw (Phœbe), Mrs J. W. Braithwaite (Mrs Pembury), and Mr Edwin Millins (Jim Kelly), rouses the utmost hilarity.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr H. W. Bull.—Judy makes an excellent drama as played by Mr George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company, and Monday's audience was highly appreciative of their work. Miss Florrie Groves makes a capital exponent of the name-part, and is altogether an engaging little artist. Miss Mary Neil is cast for a dual-rôle, in both of which she displays high abilities as an actress, and her sympathetic rendering brings hearty recognition. Miss Muriel Thompson acts the vindictive character of Blake with sufficient energy, and Miss Alice Mitchell plays spiritedly as Becky. Mr George Kirk gives a careful study as the detective, and Mr William Vane obtains due appreciation as the hero, Sterling. Mr Carlton Wallace as the base scoundrel, Duburg, plays with subtlety and force, and abundant fun is furnished by Mr Will Casey (Jim) and Mr Fred May (Giddles).

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—The athletic performance of Apollo again demonstrates the marvellous capabilities of a man whose muscular system is physically perfect. Furthermore, he is a splendid specimen of manhood, and the turn throughout is graceful, skilful, and attractive. The M'Naughtons may always be depended upon to provide a vast amount of mirth-provoking humour, and their drollery is rewarded by constant peals of laughter. Herr Fritz accomplishes his mystifying illusions to the utter bewilderment of his audience, who accorded him enthusiastic plaudits. Robertus and Wilfredo submit a dexterous exhibition as ball manipulators, and Zanfretta and Naplo, the musical knife grinders, submit a clever item. The British Quartette sing ably and effectively, and Alice Lloyd's contribution is given with her customary sweetness. Bijou Russell dances well, as does also Marie Weston. J. W. Hall brings out once more the doings of Bill Bailey, and J. A. Wilson, the black oracle, adds to his reputation as a comedian.

NORTHWICH.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs S. Golden; Manager, Mr Percy Webb.—The attraction this week is Messrs Imbert and Wright's company with the sensational drama, by F. A. Scudamore, entitled First Class. The piece is powerfully written, and presents many thrilling situations. The company maintains a level standard of excellence, and good houses nightly follow the performance with interest. In the rôle of Philip Roscoe Mr Sidney Clare gains great appreciation by his manly impersonation. As Lewis Montford, alias First Class, Mr G. Naylor Grimson is equal to the exigencies of a trying part. Mr Fred C. Imbert as Dan the Miser supplies the comedy interest with great effect and is ably supported by Mr Sam Roberts as Nosey. The chief honours among the ladies go to Miss Ellen Armor as Peggy, the waif. Her acting is excellent, and her portrayal of the child of the gutter fighting against temptation rouses great applause. Miss Lizzie Ingles gives a pretty reading of Mildred Franklin. The mounting of the play is good.

RUNEATON.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr Henry Johnston's company, under the direction of Mr Hubert S. Chambers, is paying a six nights' visit with The Bank of England. Mr Chambers gives an excellent study of Sherlock Holmes, and calls forth much applause. As Stephen Hartley Mr Jaun De Albert shows great ability; Mr Charles Ninian is well suited to the part of Gordon Isaacs; Miss Amy Ellam is good as Margaret Dane; and Miss Marie Loreth's impersonation of Aminta J. Beane is all that could be desired. Others deserving of mention are Mr Edwin Walton, Sir Sidney Barraclough; Mr Duncan Bell, Hon. Bertie Burlington; Mr J. Ernstone, Godfrey Dane; Mr Chas. H. Gallier, Eric Dane; and Miss Ada Collins, Sylvia Barraclough. The comic portion is excellently filled by Mr Charles Goff, Tommy Sprouts, assisted by Miss Dorothy Normandale, Lucy Lockit.

OLDHAM.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—Messrs Geo. Edwardes and Charles Frohman's company is here in Are You a Mason? Mr Anthony Fawcett in the title-rôle of George Fisher and as the "Daughter" was greatly appreciated; Mr Harry Ashford as Amos Bloodgood and Mr Stephen Wentworth as Frank Perry were successful; Mr Tom Mowbray in the part of the farmer was well received; Mr Frank Ridley in the character of the seedy actor was good; and the "real" Mason of Mr Valentine O'Conner was commendable. Miss Harriet French scored a success as the nagging wife, Mrs Bloodgood, while Miss Violet Graham as Mrs Perry was sympathetic. Miss Lucy Edwin as the old servant, Miss Lily Beagle and Miss Isla Glynn as the daughters, and Miss Gertrude Spencer as Fanchon Armytage were effective and made up a capital company. Hushed Up was the curtain-raiser.

ROYAL.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—The star turn here is Bella and Bijou, who are very entertaining and artistic; Rich and Rich are an acceptable comedy pair; Massona gives a wonderful juggling performance; Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic, is as popular as ever; Silvo charms the audience with his performance on the musical glasses; Charles Lena, equilibrist, is very smart; gives a powerful and stirring impersonation of George Gordon; Mr Frank Liston is admirably suited as the villainous Richard Ellerton, whose father, Matthew, finds a capable exponent in Mr A. Moore; Mr Roydan is a natural and popular parson as Philip Ormond; Mr W. Clement is an amusing Samuel Plumtree; Mr E. J. Preston is realistic and effective as the convict, Bill Burkley; and Miss Alys Eden is a capital Ned Doyle. Miss Maud Buchanan gives a most interesting performance as Ethel Maythorn; Miss Emily Griffiths does well as Miss Lavinia Dove; and Gipsy Madge and the servant Mary find clever exponents in the Misses Amy Vennimore and Lydia Hart.

PAISLEY.

PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H Savile.—Her Second Time on Earth is meeting with pronounced success here on this its first visit. The company is that of Mr Walter Melville, who is also the author of the play. Miss Hilda Beverley, in her assumption of Dora Grey, distinguishes herself by her histrionic ability. Mr Charles Franmore acts with conspicuous success as Captain Jasper Norman; Mr Cecil A. Melton makes an intelligent and manly Jack Carlton; Guy Brand is characteristically delineated by Mr Charles Girdlestone; Mr St. John Stuart acquits himself with credit as Tom Norman; Beppo is a finely drawn portrait by Mr Wilton J. Selby; and Mr Percy Horton is commendable as Dr. Ridley. Miss Elaine Vanbrugh as Laura Norman is to be complimented on a capital performance; and as Elizabeth Burke Miss Polly Marsh scores in a decided manner. Humorous impersonations are cleverly enacted by Miss Nana Fiensberg as Kitty Rosebud and Mr Fred Ingram as Teddy Butterfly.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—The good all-round company engaged here includes Captain Devereux's troupe of dogs, a clever turn; Bella Leaburn, comedienne; Willie Mackie, comedian and dancer; Schack Seebold, Swiss musical artiste; Akbar, ring performer; and Onda and Leon, comedy bar performers.

PENTRE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Owners, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Eugene Hardie.—Topping the bill this week are the clever Matweef Hugostons, a troupe of acrobats, singers, and dancers, whose success is very pronounced; Adams and Ward, comedy acrobats, earn the admiration of all; Maude Vera's singing and dancing secure a warm welcome; a clever turn is the Two Cablacs, eccentric acrobats; Sandy and Carl are worthy of the highest appreciation in their humorous turn as knockabouts; and other items which keep up the interest of a capital programme are Robins and Collier, the photographer and the lady; Martino, in his unique speciality, "Nest of Vipers;" Raiston and Francis, in a musical nautical scena; and Collins and Croft, introducing the child singer, Miss Elsie Croft.

PENZANCE.

ST. JOHN'S HALL.—Mr Chas. W. Poole's Myriorama opened here on the 15th inst. for a season of nine nights, and the first-class entertainment provided has succeeded in drawing overflowing audiences. The series of animated pictures are greatly appreciated. Mr John R. Poole is an entertaining guide, Mr R. Craven Tebbitt is the acting-manager. A fine orchestra, under the able directorship of Mr Geo. Howard, delightfully accompanies the entertainment throughout. The variety combination includes Coma, an up-to-date Jap juggler; whilst the Three Condos, Japanese equilibrists, give a thrilling performance. Henny is billed as a veritable infant prodigy, and her acrobatic dancing verifies this description. Mr Harry Raymond is a clog-dancer of conspicuous ability, and always succeeds in winning enthusiastic applause. The Royal Comedy Four are an especially clever combination, their voices harmonising most pleasingly. The Musical Schaffers introduce their latest novelty, the Musical Sunflowers, and are a clever couple who have attained mastery over the various curious musical instruments on which they perform. Fanning's Fantoches are neatly worked, and the effective manner in which they are staged makes this one of the most enjoyable items in a varied programme.

PERTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Mr J. W. Turner's grand English opera company has been specially engaged here for the race week. Il Trovatore was staged on Monday. Mr Barton M'Guckin did ample justice to the rôle of Manrico; Mr T. Griffiths as Count Di Luna was highly appreciated; and Mr J. H. Ridding as Fernando and Mr A. Wootton as Ruiz were both seen to advantage. Miss Mabel Dennis enacted the rôle of Azucena with impassioned fervency; and Miss Alice Boaden in the onerous part of Leonora was repeatedly encored. On Tuesday Wallace's Maritana was given, Mr J. W. Turner appearing as Don Cæsar De Bazan. Faust, The Waterman, Tannhäuser, and The Lily of Killarney are also billed.

PETERBOROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. Darville Vernon.—Glittering Gloria was presented here on Monday, and was received with roars of laughter, towards the creation of which Mr Stanley Arthur as Archie Toddelby and Mr Haughton Macaulay as Zebedee Posket contributed a large share. Mr John Campbell was well placed as Jack James, Mr Gerald Clark provided plenty of amusement as Algernon Entwistle, as did Mr J. Wordley Hulse as Gallagher. Mr Charles Williams as Griddletop was very funny, Miss Eva Bertram made an excellent Gloria, and Miss Lillian Williams a charming Mrs Jack James.

PRESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt. Mr Edward Terry and company form a strong attraction here this week. The famous comedian is appearing in a répertoire of popular plays, and, needless to say, the performances have been excellent in every respect. On Monday You Never Know and Bardell v. Pickwick were presented. In the former piece Mr Terry gave an exceedingly clever and amusing impersonation of Willoughby Croon; Mr A. Hylton Allen was distinctly successful as Dennis Selwyn; in the rôle of Geoffrey Grimes Mr George Howard displayed genuine ability; Peter Twysden had a quaintly diverting representative in Mr Arthur Cornell; and Mr Fred Knight acquitted himself well as Baron Ornstein. Miss Olive Wilton was seen to great advantage as the Countess Olga Veronich; Miss Vara Renny's embodiment of the scheming Mrs Tupper was highly praiseworthy; Miss Evelyn Hall made a charming Hilda Hawtayne; Miss Clara Earle very pleasingly delineated Cecile Verner; and Miss Beatrice Selwyn was thoroughly capable in the character of Mrs Croon. The other plays included in Mr Terry's répertoire are Sweet Lavender, The Passport, The House of Burnside, and Love in Idleness.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr Fred Willmot's grand vaudeville variety company occupies this theatre this week. The Sisters Brenton prove themselves to be charming duettists and dancers; Walter Emerson, comedian, causes roars of laughter; Derby and Dent in their absurdity entitled The Singing Barber are screamingly funny; James De Voye introduces his wonderful performing pony Billy; the Two Countees bring the house down with a series of harmonised duets; May Mars and Kenneth M'Leod are well appreciated in their refined light comedy act; Professor Stark, the eccentric magician, is very clever; The Lady and the Parson duologue creates much amusement. The programme concludes with an exceedingly comical sketch entitled Three of a Kind.

NOTWITHSTANDING the ruinous commercial crisis through which it is passing, Marseilles has not abandoned its liking for amusements, and a Spanish bull-fight, on Sunday, at which six bulls were butchered, proved not only a great attraction, but provided considerable excitement. Several spectators, anxious not to miss a single incident of the display, had made their way into the narrow passage which runs round the arena and forms a safe retreat for the matadors. The third bull was facing its tormentors and made a rush for one of them. The man jumped the balustrade, but the bull crashed after him, and caught one of the spectators, a Spaniard, who was badly gored, the bull's horn penetrating his chest. He was taken to the hospital, where his condition was pronounced hopeless. The accident, however, did not stop the show, and horses and bulls were butchered until the programme was completed.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of 'Dramatic and Musical Law' ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2d, 1901

Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

MR. STEAD AND THE STAGE.

Mr W. T. STEAD'S concluding instalment of his "impressions" of the theatre in the Review of Reviews this month is characteristic. It is what may be described as a "hedging" essay. It is cleverly calculated to conciliate the Nonconformist conscience, without absolutely offending the sensible majority who, alas! have sixpences to spend on monthly publications. Mr STEAD, as he states and as is well known, has always "avoided" the theatre. There is no reason, indeed, why he should have done otherwise. His life has been one round of excitement. When he has not been defending an ill-treated wife or reforming an abuse he has been listening to the advices of a familiar spirit—a "party by the name of" Julia. Few men in London have had more stirring and adventurous careers than he; and his energetic efforts have not been unrewarded by the stimulating guerdon of notoriety. We can quite understand Mr STEAD'S not wanting to go to the theatre. His stage has been the world at large; and, to a man who can start off for St. Petersburg and interview the CZAR pour s'amuser, the fictive sensations of the drama must appear tame and artificial. Mr STEAD is entirely independent of recreative excitement. He views the stage from the same standpoint as that from which a total abstainer views a glass of wine or a non-smoker a cigar. Of the needs and tastes of the average steady and industrious citizen he is entirely ignorant, and with them he is quite unsympathetic.

We confess, however, that we prefer the downright denunciations of the extreme bigot, to the side-long, inferential attacks of Mr STEAD in his latest essay. He begins by paying a very pretty tribute to the value of the stage. He says:—"When an apprentice boy in Newcastle-on-Tyne I learned from the old records of the various Guilds that on Corpus Christi Day nearly every trade society regarded it as a privilege and a glory to be entrusted with the representation of a mystery or miracle play. In some things our benighted ancestors in the middle ages could give points to their enlightened descendants. The Tyneside carpenters and cordwainers did something for the popular culture of the dramatic genius of the democracy. So far, therefore, from belittling the theatre, I am, perhaps of all men, most impressed with the immensity of its latent possibilities. There is no reason why the theatre should not become a popular university. The experience of Russia—barbarous, uneducated Russia—has shown the wealth of dramatic talent that exists among the common people. In England, when SHAKESPEARE was a boy, 'acting was the especial amusement of the English, from the palace to the village green. The strolling players in Hamlet might be met at every country wake or festival; it was the direction in which the especial genius of the people delighted to revel.' That is Mr FROUDE'S testimony."

It is soon apparent, however, that Mr STEAD has only been setting the theatre up to knock it down again. His want of information allows him to make erroneous statements without reserve. "How often," he asks, "do we hear or read of anyone receiving an impulse to nobler living from the stage?" It is a matter of recorded fact that many criminals have had their consciences awakened when "sitting at a play;" and as for the thousands who have been humanised and improved by witnessing good dramas, they merely do their duty and do not rush into print and write their biographies. The theatre is not the friend, the instructor, and the consoler of the ambitious journalist, the pushing politician, or the self-advertising philanthropist. These persons' lives are various and dramatic enough without artificial stimulus. The office of the drama is, as it was in the early days of which Mr STEAD writes so amiably, to afford recreation to those whose lives of monotonous industry render "diversion" of some kind an absolute necessity. Deprive them of amusement and they must either drink or go mad. As a matter of fact, where there is no amusement to be had public-houses multiply. The selfishness of some people is extraordinary. Because they are so happily situated or so curiously constituted that they do not feel any desire for or need of art or amusement, they would, if they could, deny both to thousands of their fellow-creatures It is true that they cannot, as the Puritans did in 1642, shut up all the theatres. They dare not even denounce the drama in downright terms. "It may be so." "I am stating the argument, not endorsing it," says Mr STEAD, insidiously Here is a sample of his style of argument, or rather, of ex parte statement:—"So far as my observation goes, especially among young people, the tendency of stage plays is not conspicuous in the cultivation of philosophic patience in bearing the ills of life. Rather does it tend to the opposite direction of unsettlement, restlessness, and discontent when they return to the grey, humdrum life of every day after revelling in the purple splendours of the mimic world behind the footlights."

It has been cynically remarked that the great thing needed by a journalist in order to write a sensational article is to know nothing whatever of his subject. By "avoiding" the drama, and by devoting all his energies to more or less sensational journalism, Mr STEAD has placed himself in a position of enviable ignorance which allows him to make the most grotesquely absurd statements without even a suspicion of their inaccuracy. Anyone who has the slightest acquaintance with the lives of the hundreds of young men and young women who have to earn their living in London, often without home life of any kind, knows that the weekly visit to the theatre is the one thing which enables them to endure with "philosophic patience" the monotonous industry of their daily lives. Such a sentence as "the purple splendours of the mimic world behind the footlights" is sheer fustian, very suggestive of the curious condition of Mr STEAD'S imaginations of the stage. Fancy the "purple splendours" of Charley's Aunt! Mr STEAD is, he states, soon going a round of the theatres. We are now well warned of the "frame of mind" in which he will start on his mission. There were certain officials in the Puritan times which Mr STEAD alludes to who were clever at "smelling out" a witch. Mr STEAD may be trusted not to leave even the shadow of an impropriety overlooked. But we think that it would have been better had he postponed his insinuated censure of the contemporary drama until after he had gained some information concerning it.

"BILL BAILEY IN JAPAN."

Bedelia ..... Miss LOTTIE COLLINS
Messenger Boy and Tramp Mr JACK LESSOR
Smooge Takemdown .... Mr ALF LAWTON
Bill Bailey ..... Mr BILLY M'CLAIN

Bill Bailey is the popular personage of the hour. By means of a song with a catchy melody he has invaded London, and his alliterative name is on the tongue of every Cockney lad. In fact, there is no avoiding the gentleman who is so earnestly entreated to return to his home. Having thus become a prominent character of the day it was, of course, to be expected that he would make his appearance on the stage. This expectation was fulfilled on Monday evening, when a musical sketch bearing the title of Bill Bailey in Japan was produced at the Royal, and also at the Granville, Walham-green. Many years ago the late Mr J. B. Buckstone used to appear in a farcical piece from his own fertile pen, entitled The Illustrious Stranger. He acted the part of a Cockney, who, wrecked on the coast of a strange island, is mistaken by the King and his court as the foreign notability who has promised to wed the monarch's daughter, and comic complications ensue. Bill Bailey in Japan runs on somewhat similar lines, but the laughter-compelling consequences of the imposture are not so fully or effectively represented as in the Haymarket play. In this respect the anonymous author of the sketch seems to have missed a good opportunity. A king of a neighbouring country is expected on a visit to the Mikado, but sends a message intimating that the unsettled state of his kingdom prevents him from fulfilling his intention. The telegram gets into the hands of Smooge Takemdown, who prevails upon a Negro known as Bill Bailey to take the place of the expected monarch, the bait held out being gold. The first scene is the courtyard of the Mikado's Palace at Tokio, where, after a dance by some charming Japanese girls, Bill Bailey makes his appearance, and is introduced to a captivating lady named Bedelia, who, being of a mischief-loving disposition, plays a practical joke with the newcomer by means of a camera. However, she recognises the stranger as Bill Bailey, but her attempt to extort money from him proves a failure. It is ordained that Bill shall become a member of the Royal Order of Tea Leaves, and this leads to the third and last scene—the Lodge room of the fraternity, where Bill is initiated into the mysteries of the society. Mr Billy McClain gives a broadly comic embodiment of the principal male character, and wins favour by a humorous performance, the success of which is increased by song and dance contributions. Miss Lottie Collins is a shapely and eminently spirited representative of the fascinating Bedelia. In the first scene she has a capital song, "A Breach of Promise Case," with chorus by Japanese ladies, &c. She also scores in a duet with Mr M'Clain, while in the last act she introduces a medley of popular ditties with good effect. Mr Alf Lawton is well placed as Smooge Takemdown, and Mr Jack Lessor gives able assistance first as a messenger boy and afterwards as a tramp all tattered and torn. Miss Dora Harrison is a handsome lieutenant of the Mikado Guards. There is a well-dressed and well-drilled chorus, and the new sketch has been excellently staged. The Mikado dancers are the Misses Flossie Harcourt, Daisy Fancourt, A. Silcot, and Jennie Jacobs. Amongst the general company here this week is Miss Hetty King, whose ability as a male impersonator receives generous recognition. She gives a capital rendering of "When a fellow's twenty-four," and next appears in the character of a smart young naval officer, with an appropriate song. Scanlon and Stephens, American comedy artists, do a successful turn, both the lady and gentleman being expert patterers, and also excelling in their song and dance contributions. Miss Blanch Gurard has a song and dance which are applauded; Newham and Latimer are old favourites; and Mr Will Poole, comedian, is well received. The Eight of Hearts has no reference to cards, but are a troupe of young ladies who make their mark as speciality dancers; Nellie and Naro are seen in a refined musical act; and the Northern Troupe of dancers achieve their usual success, footing it as lightly as ever, and winning the applause of a well-pleased audience. The orchestra is under the efficient direction of Mr Frederic D. Wood, and the management of the front of the house is in the capable hands of Mr H. Ketteman.

PLYMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee. —Old Heidelberg is cleverly and effectively staged here by Mr Mouillot's company. Mr George Tully's portrayal of the hero is a finished study; and Mr Clifford Bown makes a decided hit as the old tutor. Graced with many natural advantages, Miss Irene Lavington is a charming Kathie.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Williams. —Two Little Vagabonds never fail to draw in this locality, and Mr Hardie and Miss Von Leer have taken pains to perfect the accessories of this fine drama, which is played by a good company. As the little heroes Miss May Hart and Miss Dorothy Marsdin were first favourites—a position largely due to their abilities. Mr F. W. Henson's impersonation of the hero was powerful, and the part of Captain Darville was well sustained by Mr Wolston Foster. From start to finish Miss Laura Hansen had the sympathy of her auditors, who accorded her a flattering reception.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr J. Field. —First and foremost in point of popularity here comes Mr Arthur Lennard, whose répertoire includes good songs, sung by an artist who knows how to get the best possible effect from them. Highly developed canine intelligence is forthcoming from Madame Emmy's troupe of terriers, and the imitations of stage favourites by Barnetti, a quick-change character musician, are smart. Hilarity reigns supreme whilst the Albert and Edmunds Troupe are on the boards. A wonderful exhibition on horizontal bars is provided by the O'Briens, and feats of strength are given by the Three Romas. Other acceptable items are introduced by Charles Vincent, comedian; Georgie May, vocalist; and Lizzie Fletcher, comedienne.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton.—The late Wilson Barrett's drama, The Golden Ladder, is doing fine business here. Mr Harry Cullenford as the hero acquits himself very ably, and the arch villain, played by Mr E. V. Edmonds, elicits storms of hisses nightly. Miss Mary Austin acts with quiet dignity in the trying part of the heroine, and words of praise must also be meted out to Miss Doris Dale, a bright and fascinating little actress.

PONTYPRIDD.

PORTH.

POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE. — Manager, Mr W. Bynorth. — Mr John Leopold's company, in the farcical comedy entitled Frivolity, opened on Monday to an excellent house, the audience being kept in good humour throughout. The chief feature of the piece is undoubtedly the Leopold Troupe of acrobatic performers, who contribute greatly to the evening's enjoyment. Mr Bert Lloyd is very successful as Sammy and evokes much applause. Mr John Gerant is a great favourite as Oliver Buckwheat; Miss Ruby Wyndham scores as Madame Cobweb; Mr John Leopold, jun., as Daniel Teething; and Miss Amy Hall as Lucy Buckwheat are well received in their coon song and dance.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell. —Mr Mouillot's chief company is here again with The Geisha. O Mimosa San is capitally and charmingly played by Miss Aimee De Leska; Miss Florrie Saunders is vivacity itself as Molly Seymour, her singing and dancing being very pleasing; the French girl, O Julietta Diamant, is effectively played by Miss Violet Kenyon; Miss Aubrey Ashton does well as Lady Constance Wynne; Mr Arthur Cartwright's impersonation of Reginald Fairfax is most creditable and his singing much appreciated; Mr Edward Carlton as Wun Hi scores well; the Marquis Imari of Mr Lionel Braham is a great success. On Friday A Greek Slave was given PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—Mr Stanley Hope's company is playing here this week The Master Criminal. Mr Robert Forsyth as Telford Lestage, alias Anthony Harley, the Master Criminal, acts powerfully. Philip Manners, the hero, is ably depicted by Mr Herbert Skardon; James Sharples, alias Gentleman Jim, is in the safe hands of Mr Stanley Hope, who makes the most of the part; Mr Julius Wright as the detective, Ben Beauday, shows marked ability. Miss Nellie Thearle is a capital Cecile, alias Lady Travennes; Mrs Manners is successfully portrayed by Miss Edith Lawrence. The humour of the piece is sustained by Miss Mollie Robertson as Peggy Perks, a serio comic, and Mr Tod Squires as Tommy Dale, a music hall comedian.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—This place of amusement is doing good business. At the top of the bill is Kate Carney and company in The Mouth Organ Brigade. This little lady, who impersonates the coster, sings several songs successfully before introducing the brigade. Arthur St. George, actor-vocalist, is very good, and the same may be said of Clara Victor, character vocalist. The Three Victorias, burlesque artists, singers, and dancers, are a taking turn; Clark and Argyle score as international dancers and pipers; Frank Cass, vocal comedian, is in demand; and Charles Austin, eccentric comedian, is well received. Mabella May, dainty vocalist and Terpsichorean expert, and Payne's Photo-Bioscope, which seems to be a fixture, are also in the programme.

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Miss Rose Faith and a good company are here in the Georgian costume play No Cross, No Crown. The refined acting of Mr J. P. M'Bride, who undertakes Sir Francis Luttrell, is appreciated; Mr Harrison Chapman is a success as Professor Nebb; and the villainous Austin Blake is well depicted by Mr Logan Dana. Mr Herbert Clifton is a satisfactory Dr. Ashby, and the performance of Mr C. George as Rawson Haimes is meritorious. Miss Maude Elliott is funny as Dame Barclay, and Miss May Warden as Doris Luttrell is promising. Miss Gwen Stewart in the dual-part of Lady Margaret Luttrell and Mistress Gray displays much talent, and Miss Rose Faith ably enacts the rôle of Clare, the second Lady Luttrell.

RUGBY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Kingsley.—This week Mr Herbert Fuller's company is appearing here in Fiends of London. Mr F. C. Biron gives an excellent representation of Captain Crawley; Mr Herbert Fuller as Bob Archer contributes materially to the success; Mr H. Evan Gibbon as Peter Shark has some effective low comedy business, in which he is ably seconded by Mr Archie Seddon as Clarence Fitzherbert. Miss Emily Lewis as Flossie Spring is smart and vivacious; and Mr William Burge is good as Sir Horace Bream. As Sophie Shade Miss Alice Lane is effective.

RAWTENSTALL.

GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—On Monday Mr Ernest R. Abbott's company commenced a third visit with The Mariners of England. As Lord Nelson Mr E. R. Abbott is clever; Mr Clifford Clifford as Admiral Talbot is responsible for a good portrayal; as Harry Dell Mr William T. Riley gives a fine and manly interpretation; and Mr Edwin Keene as Tom Tripp is distinctly humorous. Mr W. H. Garbois makes the most of the part of Captain Lebaudy; Miss Ada Abbott is a charming Mabel Talbot; and as Polly Appleyard Miss Isabel Singleton shows conspicuous ability. Miss Linda Riley as Nellie Dell is thoroughly capable. The latter portion of the week is devoted to East Lynne.

READING.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr Reginald Taylor.—Mr Arthur Hart's clever company in My Lady Molly is paying a welcome visit here this week. Miss Mabel Lait as Lady Molly acts admirably, and gives every satisfaction. Alice Coverdale is charmingly embodied by Miss Maud Thorne; Miss Sybil Thorne gives a lively rendering of Hester; and Miss Lottie Sargent is good as Mdlle Mirabeau. Mr George Grundy as Captain Harry Romney creates a favourable impression, as also does Mr Frank Stather as Lionel Bland, and Mr Walter Ashley as Sir Miles Coverdale. Mr Arthur Power scores a great success as Mickey O'Dowd, causing uproarious hilarity. The full chorus and augmented orchestra are ably conducted by Mr Carlton Mason.

RHYL.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr P. J. Ashfield; Secretary, Mr E. W. Parry.—Mr Edmund Bosanquet is to be congratulated upon the great success of his new musical séance. As the curtain rises the musician steps out of a large violin, and plays excerpts from the popular masters illustrated by photographs. He next appears as an infant prodigy, and causes much amusement as he bows his acknowledgments. Mr Bosanquet terminates a successful engagement of fourteen weeks, leaving for Scarborough and afterwards visiting Holland. The programmme also includes Tell and Tell, comedy acrobats; the Sisters Bosanquet, duettists; the Rameses in a statuary act; Jennie Belmore, burlesque actress; and the Brewster Troupe, who remain from last week. Mr Ashfield's benefit was arranged for Thursday.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr A. R. Sutcliffe.—A return visit of Charley Harvey, comedian, is much appreciated. Emilie Tait's cultivated soprano singing and John Green's baritone selections are greatly enjoyed. A. R. Sutcliffe continues a great favourite. Henry Saunders is accompanist and solo pianist.

ROCHDALE.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr Lee.—A strong programme is submitted here this week. Zertho's clown dogs; Mdlle. Bartenelli, contortionist; Miss May Lilian Levey, comedienne; Frederic Neiman, ventriloquist; Bros. Landolf, gymnasts; Lil Gorman, burlesque actress and vocalist; the Boultons; and S. L. Spry complete the list.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Hargreaves.—Lockhart's elephants, with Captain Joe Taylor, create roars of laughter by their amusing yet clever tricks. Edie Endon, comedienne and acrobatic dancer; J. Haggerty, Negro comedian; Bert Holmes, vocalist; Pattie Bella, sparkling soubrette; Cameron, kerchief king; Two Gems, comediennes and dancers; and Wilfrid, flexible marvel, complete an enjoyable bill-of-fare.

RYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard; Business-Manager, Mr J. Westbrooke Poole.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday the Ben Greet company performed the comic opera La Poupée. The company was an excellent one, and has attracted very good audiences each evening. Miss Cissie Wade as Alesia has a fresh voice, and sang all through extremely well, while she thoroughly looked the part. Mr Algernon Lee made an excellent Launcelot, his mellow tenor in the various songs being much admired. Mr J. Brull sang with artistic expression as Father Maxime; while Mr Stanley White and Mr Williams delighted the audience in act two by their capital singing and comic business. The scenery and dresses were far above the average of travelling companies.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—The sensational melodrama, entitled A Sister's Sin, is again meeting with success here. Mr Robert Hilton as George Oakley forcibly impresses the audience with the villainy of the character. The part of Minnie Hastings, the wrongly accused one, is well sustained by Miss Cora Linda. The gipsy, Charsel, is well in the hands of Miss Clara Santley, while Miss Grace Jones acts the part of Redempta successfully. Miss Edie Macklin as Floss Perks and Miss L. Warren as Nellie Stubbs are well placed. Mr E. T. Kisby as Theophilus Hope is a funny dude; Mr Cecil Morand capably presents Larry Murphy; and Mr J. Parker Royston as Harold Raymond, Mr S. Rennef as Walter Hastings, Mr Ernest Frere as Ikey Moses, Miss Renie Douglas as Jack, and Miss Josie Grove as May Raymond also do well in support. The specialities, including those by Masters Tiny and Dot Pape, are much enjoyed.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—The singing of Miss Annie Purcell, a pleasing comedienne, is much applauded. Good value is also given by Wills and August, amusing jugglers; Rhoda Paul, a miniature Vesta Tilley; Mdlle. Clothilde, with her performing cockatoos and parrots; La Cigale, descriptive vocalist; Kimberley Boys, eccentric comedians and dancers; Brothers Donar, acrobats; Mons. D'Musto, contortionist; and Ward Bros., eccentrics. The pictures are good.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr Wm. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—A beautiful and charming dance is introduced as Flora Lumiere's Fairy Grotto. The Akimotos Troupe of Japs execute some startling feats of juggling and balancing. Victor Newman cleverly embodies characters from Dickens, &c. A laughable bar act, introduced by Rosaire Bolero's Troupe, is very acceptable. Performances are also given by Harry Albery, eccentric comedian and dancer; Pollo Jerome, marvellous lady gymnast; Arthur Gilbert, with his humorous songs; Cliff and Kean, comedy artistes and clever speciality dancers; and Tate and Tate, comedy acrobats. The animated pictures are entertaining.

SCARBOROUGH.

SPA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Fras. Goodricke.—Mr C. W. Somerset and Mr Lionel Rignold occupy the stage here with the amusing farce, A Stranger in a Strange Land. Mr Charles Rignold is a capital Charles Dudley; Mr J. A. Bentham is good as Jack Thorndyke; plenty of laughter is caused by Mr A. V. Widdicombe as Nathaniel D. Boller; Mr Arthur Newman makes the most of his opportunities as Inspector Harrington; Mr H. Brame is successful as Watson; Miss Laura Clement is a clever Mrs Haloombe; and as Alice Washington Miss Miriam Nesbitt scores heavily. Preceding the play Mr C. W. Somerset gives a dramatic recital of "Eugene Aram's Dream."

LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr J. T. Carpenter. —Mr George Edwardes's company has been here for three nights playing San Toy to large audiences. Miss Fanny Dango is a charming and vivacious San Toy; Miss Maud Darling works hard and successfully as Dudley; Poppy finds a refined representative in Miss May Francis; Miss Louie Collier's voice is heard to advantage as Chu-San; Mr Reginald Kenneth is an excellent Captain Preston; Mr Statham Staples as Li is a great success; and the same can be said of Mr John Humphries as Yen-How. The minor characters are well sustained. Miss Alice Lethbridge gives a pas seul in the second act.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietress, Mrs Henry Mayhew; Business-Manager, Mr F. P. Morgan.—Mr F. A. Scudamore and Mr Arthur Richmond's company is appearing here in The Beautiful Avenger. Miss Nannie Meade scores as Vashti Volta and Victor Stanhope; Miss Cissie Podmore as Baldie Mansfield is pleasing; Miss Mabel Scudamore is good in the rôle of Edna Volta; Mr Algernon Syms makes a frank Cyrus Telford; as Zadok Foxbane and his son Mr Lionel Scudamore and Mr William Diamond both do well. The comedy element is in the hands of Miss Lilian Hawkins, Mr Fred Withers, and Mr William Ames.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr George Zalva.—The principal attraction this week is the engagement of the Imperial Boys' Orchestra, under the direction of Herr Wilhelm Linde (late Strauss Court Orchestra, Vienna), and the skill shown by the boys is remarkable. The variety part of the programme includes Permane's performing bears; Mystery Gauze, lady impersonator; Prince, trick performer; Leotard Brothers, hat throwers; Miss Ethel Payne, vocalist; Hector, wire performer; and Doodles fills the intervals with absurdities.

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM. — Managing Director, Mr W. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr William Kitchingman. — An enjoyable programme is still provided here. Mr Wilfrid Hudson, vocalist, sings in capital style; Mezzetti and Mora, trapezists, give a clever turn; Learto, musical comedian, introduces an educated dog; the Alskarno Trio, acrobats, are smart; Linton, tight-rope artiste, is exceptionally good; Master Leonard Ankers, a promising boy comedian; the Cairo Orchestra, under the direction of Professor Voorzanger; and Professor Dickinson's troupe of lady swimmers are a great attraction.

SEACOMBE.

IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—The series of animated pictures on exhibition here, with its supplementary films of the latest local events, is proving a powerful attraction. The interludes are agreeably filled by a number of talented artistes, the following deserving mention. Harry Condor in his "Shades of Charles Dickens" proves himself a talented delineator. The Albani Troupe of Buda-Pesth ladies, with orchestral selections, scores heavily, the musical talent and pretty dresses forming an ensemble altogether pleasing and agreeable.

NEW BRIGHTON, TOWER THEATRE OF VARIETIES. —Manager, Mr Albert Bulmer.—A strong company is in possession here this week, including the Vivians, in a pretty and clever musical travesty entitled Life's Reverie; Johnson and Bert, in their novel comic act, A Queer Customer; Patty Yole, comedienne and dancer; Arthur Albert, actor-vocalist, in his latest successes; the Brooklands, comediennes and dancers; Andy Burn, a clever character comedian and step-dancer; Olga Tosti, ballad vocalist; and Keen and Walad, a pair of wonderful acrobatic eccentrics.

SHEFFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter. —Mr Fred Karno's company of comedians opened to a good audience on Monday in the laughable musical comedy The New Mamma. Mr Tom Wallace was irresistibly quaint and amusing as John Jaggs, and Miss Aggie Morris made a prepossessing Clorinda. Mr Herbert Lewis was a humorous representative of Mr Blake, and the fun was kept going by other clever members of the company.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—The popular comedian Mr James Welch commenced his third visit to Sheffield on Monday in The New Clown. Mr Welch, who was cordially welcomed after his return from South Africa, "fit and well," again kept the audience in a continuous state of hilarity as the mirth-provoking Lord Cyril. That old Carl Rosa opera favourite Mr G. H. Snazelle repeated his clever impersonation of the Ducrow-like circus impresario, Signor Dixon. Mr Cyril Harcourt was a smart and well-groomed Captain Jack Trent; Mr Leopold Profelt submitted a good sketch as Mr Penniquick; and a humorous character study was the riverside landlord of Mr C. C. Headley. Mr Lloyd Earle did well in the part of Figgis; Mr H. Belding again caused mirth as Billy; and Master Ernest Winter was sufficiently precocious as "the boy." Nothing could surpass the dainty charm and girlish grace of Miss Audrey Ford as the captivating Rosie Platt. Miss Estelle Wenwood as Maud Chesterton and Miss Alexandra Carlisle as Winnie were pretty and engaging, and Mr H. Entwistle was a characteristic policeman. The curtain-raiser was The Man in the Street.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—The Renad Brothers and their talented troupe are again appearing before big audiences in that screaming musical and pantomimical absurdity The Swiss Express. As the two comic servants the Messrs Renad are as diverting as ever, and their perfect sangfroid in the most surprising situations keeps the spectators in a condition of speechless hilarity. Mr Harwood Cooper is again to the fore as the gendarme, and Mr Wilford Balley as the unfortunate husband is still successful. All the other characters are well played.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The company this week includes the marvellous Chinese illusionist, Chung Ling Soo; the Werner Amoros troupe in the pantomime act An Artist's Studio; Kitty Wager, comedienne; Frank Seeley, eccentric comedian; Bard and O'Brien, comic wire performers; Bros. Damm, eccentric acrobats; Fred Poplar, comedian; the Stella Troupe of vocalists and dancers; Mr and Mrs Hughes, sketch artistes; and Charles J. Johnston, a real dandy coon.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr Augusta Lyons.—The variety concerts here are a great success. Last Saturday Sills and Silcott, Gus Gauntlett, and other well-known entertainers appeared before a crowded audience.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

THE George Adney Payne syndicate—or should we not say the Variety Theatres Consolidated?—is extending the area of its operations, and, as we foreshadowed in these columns some time since, East Ham is to be endowed with a new palace of varieties that will not in any way be behind the Chelsea, the Euston, or the Walthamstow in point of comfort or of elegance. Messrs Wylson and Long, the designers of the halls mentioned, have prepared the plans. Quotations of shares of the Variety Theatres Consolidated now appear in the stock and share lists.

MUSIC HALL readers have heard so much concerning the effects promised in Mr John Lawson's production of Mr Todd, of London, that they will be interested to learn that it will be seen for the first time at the Palace, Sunderland, on Monday, Oct. 3. It is understood that Mr Lawson intends chartering a special saloon for the London press. His Vanderdecken Todd promises to be a very remarkable creation of the Hyde and Jekyll sort, and it will be curious to learn how the weird mysticism and unrest of the Flying Dutchman can be assimilated with the bloodthirsty ferocity of the Fleet-street barber. We await the solution of the psychological problem with much interest. The Ship at Sea, a great sensational scene, will cost £700 to put on.

MR OSWALD STOLL, on the walls of his temporary office in Chandos-street, proclaims his intention of applying for a music and dancing licence for the new London Coliseum, and the application will come before the Theatres and Music Hall Committee of the L.C.C. on Nov. 2, at the Clerkenwell Sessions. It is understood that the Coliseum will open on Monday, Dec. 19. There will be four shows a day, and there will be a fine orchestra.

MR CLIFFORD KING, whose management of the Duchess, Balham, since December last has won the confidence of Mr Walter Gibbons, the proprietor of that successful house, has been entrusted with higher responsibilities, having been appointed general manager of all Mr Gibbons's enterprises, including the Duchess, the Royal, the Islington Empire, the Grand, Clapham, and the Palace, Croydon.

THE Hyman Circuit in South Africa is rapidly developing, and to the Empire, Johannesburg, and the Tivoli, Cape Town, will be added—as we stated in these column some time since—another Empire at Durban, the building of which is to be shortly commenced. Edgar Hyman, the managing director of these enterprises, brings his visit to England to a close shortly. He has quite recovered from the operation to his ear, which was entirely successful, and though he is reluctant to make his departure he considers the climate of South Africa suits him better than the humid atmosphere of this country. The business of booking the Hyman engagements is in the capable and experienced hands of Mr Sydney Hyman.

MR NORMAN MILLS, the Australian descriptive actor-vocalist, brother-in-law to Dr. Walford Bodie, with whom he has served as manager for the last seven years, will conclude his present engagement with the doctor, opening on Monday in London as general manager of Collins's. Mr Mills is to be congratulated on the appointment, he having been selected out of a very large number of applicants. He will take the reins on Monday.

MR GEORGE ROBEY, who was out leg before wicket to a sporting journalist in a charity match at Lord's on Tuesday afternoon, is a well-known figure on the famous ground during the summer months, but only his familiar friends recognise him in the unfamiliar flannels. He takes a very great interest in the Millwall football team, and is an enthusiastic socker. He returns on Monday to the Oxford and Tivoli with two new songs. One is called "Frantic the Fearless; or, the Gorgeous Gladiator," and the other "The Road Up."

MR WILKIE BARD, whose success at the Oxford is associated mainly with the funny song "O-oh-Capital O," will introduce another screamer to his audience on Monday. It is entitled "The Singing Master," and promises to be a very quaint creation. Mr Bard has, we are given to understand, just completed arrangements whereby he is to appear exclusively at the Lyceum at a three-figured salary. Mr Arthur Collins was listening with much interest to Mr Bard on Monday at the Tivoli.

AT the forthcoming general meeting the directors of the Palace Theatre, Limited, will recommend a final dividend of five per cent., making, with the interim dividend of seven per cent. paid on Feb 5 last, twelve per cent for the year ended July 26, 1904. The balance carried forward increased from £13 902 to £14,840. The general meeting is to be held on Thursday next. Mr T. Ernest Polden is the retiring director.

MR AMBROSE THORNE who discovered a few years ago that the prosaic routine of Throgmorton-street scarcely accorded with his artistic inclinations, is by way of returning to the London Pavilion, where his refined comedy is always popular. He will reappear at the Piccadilly-circus establishment on Monday next, when he intends to make a special feature of two new songs. The first of these, by Mr J. P. Harrington and Mr J. Airlie Dix, is entitled "If the girl says no," and the second, by Messrs C. H. Bovill and P. E. Braham, is described as a song of boredom. The title, "Nothing in it," suggests a wealth of comic possibilities.

MR CARL HERTZ evidently does not mean to be left in the background when magic kettles are attracting attention. On Oct. 3, at the Canterbury, he will show, for the first time, what he calls his "demon kettle," which, we understand, performs wonders yet unheard of. By the way, the magic kettle act is to be shown for the first time in Paris to-day at the Olympia, where its wonderful doings are to be supervised by M. Humbertz.

MISS IDA RENE, who is giving her musical recitations during the third act of The Royal Chef, at the Lyric Theatre, New York, will leave for Chicago on the 17th inst. for a fortnight's engagement with the same play at the Garrick Theatre, the Chicagoans having pronounced it a great success when it was originally produced there, while the New Yorkers failed to "enthuse" over it. At the end of the Chicago engagement Miss René will return to New York, and will probably appear in a musical comedy to be produced by her present managers, the Messrs Shubert Brothers.

MISS RENE says that she is "horribly homesick," and that she is very much disappointed with American audiences. She had heard that they always "saw the point" very quickly, but she had found that the audiences at the Lyric Theatre "always laughed five or six seconds after the proper time." "In other words," says Miss René, "I find a New York gathering of pleasure-seekers just a little bit dull. Not that I do not find very many pleasant things in America. The same audiences which are so slow to get my meaning are most hearty in applauding it when they do get it. I do not think I was ever received with more sincere interest than at the Lyric. Of course I am British to the bone, and I find many queer things here. I told Mr Shubert the other day that I thought America was made up of little pieces of paper. One gets scraps of paper at soda fountains, at restaurants, when one sends out laundry, when one gives up a ticket on the trains, and in every other conceivable way. Very funny, don't you think so

THE Imperial Hippodrome and Circus, Belfast, will reopen early in October. The proprietors are Messrs Carter and Bosco, and Mr George Daibler is the energetic acting-manager.

MR GEORGE SAPHRINI has been appointed manager of the Britannia, Glasgow, by Mr James Anderson, who opens that popular hall on Oct. 3.

THE recent innovation of matinees every Thursday at the People's Palace, Bristol, continues to increase in popularity, the matinées enabling many country people to attend the performance after concluding their market business, which otherwise might be inconvenient.

MR HENRY KEMBLE has been appointed general manager of the Palace of Varieties, Cork, and commences his duties on Monday. He will still look after M. Chester and Co.'s interests in Manchester.

MR CHARLES PERRY, brother and partner to the late Joe Perry, and William Edward Perry, a son of the deceased, have arranged to run the Happy Valley Minstrels, at Llandudno, for the next two years. They will worthily sustain the prestige of these exceedingly popular entertainments, which may be considered the most notable of their kind.

THE promenade pier in the North Bay, Scarborough, which originally cost £25,000, was sold by auction at Scarborough on Wednesday for £3,500, the purchaser being Mr William Morgan, Mayor of Scarborough, who is also managing-director of the Scarborough Aquarium and People's Palace and the Bridlington People's Palace. At Scarborough the rival troupes on the beach have paid the corporation this season no less than £340 for the "pitch." They must have done a good business to afford such a rental.

MR EDMOND BOSANQUET, who has for the last two years fulfilled with such conspicuous success the office of musical director at the Queen's Palace, Rhyl, took his benefit there last week, and was supported by a rare combination of artists, whose cleverness and versatility afforded complete enjoyment to a large audience. The bénéficiaire's violin playing was the great attraction of a very pleasant evening.

SIGNOR PEPI'S benefit at the Hippodrome, Blackpool, on Thursday evening was a very successful function. The bill contained forty names, and the stage was managed by Messrs Jesse Burton, C. F. Morgan, and Walter Whewell. Several gifts, together with a valuable cheque, were presented to Pepi. Mr Harry Brooks made the presentations on behalf of friends and Mr Duignan for the employees. The following were among those present:—Messrs Tom Shaw, Fred Higham, Tom Pacey, Edgar Granville, Tom Edwardes, of Derby; Geo. Dexter, Geo. Harrop, Tom Sergeison, C. Henderson, Cavill, E. Devere, Jesse Burton, Will Sley, Fred Walker, Jim Finney, and Harry Yorke. Congratulatory telegrams came from Misses Marie Collins, Julie Mackay, Lillie Langtry, Marie Loftus, and others.

MR WILL WARD, formerly of Ottaway and Ward, a well known "seaside serenader," has recently had the honour, at Cowes, of singing by command before their Majesties the King and Queen, and his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Fred Leigh and Henry E. Pether's famous song, "I'se a-waitin' for yer Josie." The author and composer, both of whom are, as is well known, members of Mr David Day's permanent staff, have been fortunate in their choice of Miss Millie Lindon to sing their latest ballad, "The Angel of my dreams." The musical director of one of the first variety theatres in London this week assured the popular lady that it was a real pleasure for him to conduct, and the gentlemen with him to play this exquisite song.

MR E. H. BOSTOCK on Tuesday evening entertained to dinner at the Windsor Hotel, Glasgow, the committee who had charge of the arrangements for the complimentary concert and presentation of illuminated address to him in the City Hall on the 26th ult. In the course of the evening there was handed over to Mr Bostock £45, being the suplus of the proceeds of the concert and testimonial fund, for distribution among the city charitable institutions. In acknowledging the gift, Mr Bostock expressed his thanks, and intimated that he would increase the sum to £75 to enable him to gift £15 to each of the undernoted institutions:—Royal Victoria, and Western Infirmaries, East Park Cottage Home, and Sick Children's Hospital. Thereafter the committee, on the invitation of Mr Bostock, visited the Empire Theatre at the second performance.

CONSIDERABLE progress is being made with the new Olympia in Liverpool, an establishment that is due to the enterprise of the Moss Empires, Limited, and which is being erected at a large cost. The major portion of the brickwork is completed, and the main walls are well above ground. Mr Frank Matcham, the eminent theatrical architect, who has planned the house, has designed it with three tiers, the stalls and pit being on the street level. A novel feature will be the erection of three very large waiting rooms, which are to be built adjacent to the main entrance in West Derby-road. The new Olympia will be larger than the London Hippodrome, and will be equipped with a stage and a mechanical sinking area.

MISS ELLA SHIELDS, who is known as the Southern Nightingale through the States, was discovered by Mr Frank Macnaghten on his recent American tour, and is exclusively engaged for that gentleman's circuit. She has a contralto voice of considerable sweetness, is a cultured vocalist, and is bright and pretty. At the end of this year she returns to New York, where she has just finished a six months' engagement. Three of her greatest successes are "I hates to get up early in the morn," "A little boy in blue," and "Just plain folks."

NETTA, one of a troupe of minstrels performing at Llangollen, showed great coolness and presence of mind on Saturday, when attacked by a labourer named Evan Edwards. The latter rushed forward, and approached Netta, brandishing a pistol, aiming point blank at the performer, and threatening to shoot him. Mr Bob Otto jumped from the stage and rushed at Edwards, giving him a violent blow. A fierce struggle ensued. A constable arrived, and clutched Edwards's throat. He was finally removed to the police-station with the assistance of other constables. No motive can be assigned for the strange act. Edwards was on Monday sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

MESSRS CARLTON AND DUCKWORTH, having purchased the Hippodrome, Ton-y-Pandy, from Miss Ada Alexandra, have wisely decided upon running a variety season at the Lyceum, Pentre, in conjunction with the Hippodrome. By this means the best talent available will be brought within the reach of all the inhabitants of the Rhondda. Monday evening was the opening night of the variety season, and a packed house awaited the rise of the curtain. A greatly augmented and well-balanced orchestra, under the directorship of Mr T. Weldon discoursed well executed selections to the eager audience. Mr Eugene Hardie, the genial resident-manager, in a neat speech thanked his numerous patrons for their support, and explained that Messrs Carlton and Duckworth, with their continued patronage, would be able to bring to the valley the best artistes that money could secure in this their last venture. Owing to previous bookings of excellent companies for the next year, the variety season could not be run at this theatre for more than a few months.

THE fame of Mr George H. Chirgwin, the "White-eyed Musical Kaffir," had preceded him, and in consequence the mirth and innocent laughter provoker has met during the week with a hearty reception on his first visit to the Palace Theatre, Aberdeen. Although he has never been in the Granite City before, Mr Chirgwin has many friends there who were pleased to meet him once more.

WE are pleased to hear that the fire which took place in Miss Harriett Vernon's dressing-room last Saturday morning at the Empire, Newcastle-on-Tyne, did not prove so destructive as was reported. Miss Vernon's dresses were all saved, and the loss she sustained was confined to some stage jewels, hats, curtains, dressing-table, toilet necessaries, &c. Mr E. Leslie Conroy, the energetic manager of this popular house of entertainment, was immediately acquainted with the outbreak, and did all in his power to aid the fire brigade in their well-directed efforts, the result being, as we have stated, that only slight loss was sustained.

THE marionette show now being given at the Egyptian Hall is creating so much attention that a film has been taken of it and is shown at the Empire. Mr Walter Graham, who manipulates the figures in this particular show, gives a side splitting imitation of Mr Harry Lauder, who has the misfortune while playing the bagpipes to burst the bag of his pibroch, which brings down the house.

THAT popular artiste Miss Edna Cragge had rather a narrow escape from injury on Monday evening. In driving from the Cambridge to the Kilburn Empire the horse slipped, and she was thrown into the road. Luckily nothing but a severe shaking and a few bruises resulted from the misadventure, and Miss Cragge was able to take her turn and score her customary success.

M. BLONDIN, the deceased French tight-rope performer, crossed the Niagara Falls, but the present-day Blondin, Hardy, claims to have crossed not only the wonderful falls of Niagara, but also the Great Montmorency Falls in Canada and the Genessee Gorge, each marvellous feats. Crowds of sightseers are always attracted to the wonderful mid-air feats of the intrepid Hardy.

MR TOM TINSLEY, the popular manager of Gatti's, "In the Road," a house he has successfully pioneered for a number of years, is by way of taking a benefit there on Oct. 27. As it is two years since he was similarly honoured, we may expect to see an immense crowd gathered. The genial Tom at one time was known as Young John Bull, and was born in the pottery district. The passing years deal lightly with him, and his energy is proverbial. He is properly proud of the fact that he has given warm encouragement to artistes who have since become famous.

THE 373rd meeting of the executive committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association was held on Tuesday afternoon, Captain Slingsby presiding. The secretary reported that twenty-four new members had joined during the past week, making the total number enrolled since the commencement of 10,558. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Mr Douglas White for his kindness in acting as hon. sec. pro tem. during Mr Stuart's holiday.

IT may not be generally known that Walter Rowley, the well-known teacher of physical culture in Leeds, who has been so cleverly defending himself against the redoubtable Yukio Tani at the Tivoli, Leeds, is a son of J. W. Rowley and brother to Edwin Boyde. Young Rowley, to whom on Saturday last Apollo presented a massive gold medal, is a fine specimen of youthful manhood. He stands 5ft. 9in., and scales 11st. 6 lb. He demonstrates to his pupils and friends in school that developing strength is not muscle-binding by indulging in double forward somersaults over a table 6ft. high, from an 18in. rise. An accountant by profession, he is strictly an amateur.

MR FELICE NAPOLI is revelling in the rural delights of a farmstead in the neighbourhood of Sevenoaks. His partner, Mr Dave Cohen, has just returned from a holiday amid the snowy peaks of the Alps, and despite the fact that it rained almost incessantly the whole time, he did the mountains quite conscientiously.

MISS CARRIE JULIAN, who retired from the variety stage on her marriage to Mr O'Brien, proprietor of Rule's, Maiden-lane, celebrated with her popular husband, on Friday, the 16th, the tenth anniversary of their occupancy. Miss Julian was a well-known entertainer at the old London Pavilion in the days of Mr Emil Loibl, and the last of her important parts was that of Robin Hood, in a short version of the celebrated story of the Notts forester, prepared by the late Frank Hall, the second secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund.

MR DAN THOMAS and Mr ROMEO MISSOURI have been fishing in the Isle of Man, and during six days they caught 234 trout. Mr Thomas reports a delightful holiday, and he returns to town on Monday to three balls. He is engaged for pantomime by Mr John Tiller, and will appear as cook in that gentleman's production of Dick Whittington.

MISS DAPHNE DE ROHAN, whose clever sketch, entitled Hettie, the Hot 'Un, was produced on Tuesday evening at the Middlesex, has the idea of at some future date of returning to her old work with her clever mandoline and guitar accompaniments to Neapolitan and French and Italian songs, assisted by a chorus. She gave a special performance of her sketch, Oh! My Wife, on Tuesday evening at the Middlesex.

MR ALBERT LE FRE will finish his engagement in The Prince of Pilsen at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Friday next, the last night of the American musical comedy. He will then go on the Moss circuit until Christmas, when he opens under the management of Mr Chute at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, in a very elaborate pantomime production.

IT is now definitely decided to adopt the "twice-a-night system" at the New Grand, Clapham-junction. The hall opens on Monday night under the title of the Grand Palace, with Mr E. Ball's Night Alarm as the principal attraction.

MR GEORGE LE BRUNN has completed a topical duet of the "'Gracious good goodness!' 'Goodness gracious!'" order, a morceau which, it will be remembered, was a tremendous hit at Drury-lane in a former "annual." The new essay, which is in nine verses—with power to add to the number—is named "'Do you mean it?' 'Yes, I mean it?'" It has been specially written with an eye to both town and provincial pantomimes.

MISS VIOLET ELLIOTT, who made her first appearance at the Alhambra this week, is a young Australian contralto. She came to England a year ago, and succeeded, a few weeks after landing, in getting an engagement to play Princess Pauline in The Duchess of Dantzig, but unfortunately there was no opportunity for her voice to be heard. She is a Melbourne girl, who started concert singing eight years ago, and has toured in all parts of the world, excepting the United States. The popular ballad called "Home, dearie, home," is one of her favourite songs, and she has sung it in Hong Kong and Burmah, in Sydney and Johannesburg. Miss Elliott was considerably amused during her visit to a small town in China, to receive a long, ceremonious letter from a Chinaman entreating her to sing "The Honeysuckle and the Bee."

MR CHARLES URBAN, whose name is so well-known in connection with the bioscope pictures at the Alhambra Theatre, has been notified that the Czar has expressed a wish that the war pictures, Japanese as well as Russian, should be exhibited before him at Peterhof. Mr Urban has accordingly made special preparations to take all the films with him to Russia, and will leave London as soon as the day for the "command" performance at Peterhof is communicated to him.

A MOST interesting series of bioscope pictures has, after fifteen months of patient labour, been now almost completed, and is to be shown for the first time at the Alhambra next month. The life of the ant world is to provide the subjects. To obtain the results great assistance has been given by Lord Avebury, and by Miss Grace Burns, of the Crystal Palace, both of whom gave nests of these tiny, industrious insects that their daily life might be photographed through the microscope for the bioscope.

AN excited crowd on Saturday witnessed a game of billiards played in a cage containing four lions in the Empire music hall in Dudley, where Madame Ella and her lions have been a star turn for a fortnight. A specially constructed billiard table was fixed in the cage. The players were Messrs Hutchings and Jackson, two prominent local cricketers and partners in the Dudley brewery. The game was twenty-five up, and the players, apparently, were more cool than the audience. The attendants got ready with their iron bars, but the beasts made no attack, and the audience was greatly relieved when the game was over and the players had left the cage. Jackson won.

MADAME LA GOULUE, the French lion-tamer, who, a week ago, was pounced upon by one of her lions and almost clawed to death, has now been able to leave the hospital. "I have suffered terribly," she said on being interviewed. "I have had horrible nightmares in which I saw gigantic jaws, and great claws ready to rend me to pieces. The picture of the dreadful evening is still vividly before my mind—Negus, the lion, held my head between his paws, and I can still feel the hot breath upon me, and see the cruel, white teeth. . . . I used to give him milk every morning, and he seemed to love me; he would lick my hands. Beware of lions!" she concluded. It is significant that a piece of meat was found adhering to the tamer's costume on the night of the accident, a fact that might explain the sudden attack.

AT Marylebone Police-court, on Saturday, James Adolph Auerbach, twenty-eight, a Danish subject, better known as Behrens, was charged on remand, on a warrant, with stealing £295 in Bank of England notes, the money of Charles Prinz, the well-known lion tamer, his master. The prosecutor about July 11 was temporarily lodging at Manor-place, Paddington-green, and the prisoner was serving him as a porter. He (prosecutor) had occasion to go out, and left his pocket-book, in which he had deposited £5 notes to the amount of £295, on a table in his bedroom. When he returned home he found that the money was all gone and the prisoner had disappeared. Detective-sergeant Enticknap arrested the prisoner at Brighton. When brought to London he admitted the offence, and explained that when he went into the prosecutor's bedroom he saw the bank notes, and the temptation was too great for him, and he took them. A further remand was ordered.

THE programme to be submitted at the Crystal Palace to-day will include two aerial performances of a startling character by M. Theo Orion, the famous funambulist, who was trained by M. Blondin, the hero of Niagara. Upon a slender wire erected at a high elevation across the Palace grounds M. Orion will walk, dance, stand on his head while blindfolded, give a firework display, ride a bicycle, carry a man on his shoulders, and perform other remarkable evolutions in mid-air, with which Blondin astounded immense audiences in the sixties.

M. ORION, in the Italian Alps, once essayed to bear a man on his back while walking along a slender wire stretched across a chasm 250ft. wide and 750ft. deep. When the couple reached the centre of the wire M. Orion's companion chanced to look down. The sight of the almost illimitable space below him so affrighted the young fellow that he fainted, and hung, a dead weight, on M. Orion's shoulders. The thousands of spectators who swarmed the inclines of the neighbouring hills stared aghast at seeing the man slip, but M. Orion, bending down until his hands reached the wire, carried his unconscious assistant safely to the opposite side.

THE brilliant wane of a splendid summer has resulted in the closing weeks of the Italian Exhibition, Earl's-court, surpassing all previous records in attractiveness to the general public. Those to whom the autumnal crispness of the night air proves chilly find warmth and snugness in "Venice by Night," and entertainment from the Venetian and Neapolitan singers and dancers, with the result that the Empress Hall is crowded nightly. On Thursday over 200 inmates from the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum were invited by the directorate to visit the exhibition, where they were provided gratuitously with refreshments by Messrs Spiers and Pond and the Pure Water Co.

ON Saturday last the well-appointed green at the Cross Hotel, Kingswinford, kept by that popular sportsman Teddy Oxborrow, was the scene of a Grand Open Bowling Competition which drew a big crowd. Mr Tom Prichard, of the Dudley Empire (who had kindly given five guineas in prizes), together with Miss Violet Friend favoured the green with their presence, and received an ovation.

LEE AND ARDEN, who direct the West of Scotland al fresco entertainments at Dunoon, Saltcoats, Prestwick, Troon, and Ayr, concluded a highly successful season last Saturday.

MR FRED SINCLAIR AND MISS GRACIE WHITEFORD are presenting for the first time in London a new comedy duologue, entitled Getting Even, which has met with immediate success this week at the Britannia. Amusing situations are derived from that inexhaustible source—matrimonial jars. Did not Sheridan deal with them in The School for Scandal? Douglas Jerrold was not less droll in the Caudle curtain lectures. Who shall say, therefore, that time will ever stale the infinite variety or the real whimsicality of crises raging round the domestic hearth? When a husband comes home late from his club there is often trouble with the missus. It is so in Getting Even, and a wife, whose temper can only be fitly compared to Katharine's in The Taming of the Shrew, has a slight argument. A calmer mood, however, follows, and the pair are reconciled—only to quarrel again, like Sir Peter and Lady Teazle, as to the author of the original disagreement. A little jealousy might be imported into the domestic sphere with advantage, thinks the wife, and she immediately puts her plan into execution by making-up as an old lover. Precisely the same idea occurs to the husband, who appears as a former swe-theart of his own. Misunderstandings are speedily cleared up, and at the curtain fall the matrimonial barometer stands at "set calm." Miss Grace Whiteford, a comedy actress of rare ability, plays the wife with a humorous and vigorous flow of shrewish abuse that keeps her listeners in roars of laughter; and Mr Fred Sinclair's alternate coolness and suppressed irritability are exactly in the right vein of comedy. Miss Whiteford and Mr Sinclair have offers of dates until 1908.

THE marriage of Miss Lelia Roze, the popular burlesque and musical comedy artiste, of Shrigley Hall, County Down, to Mr Edward Downes Martin, J.P. of Killoskehane Castle, Tipperary, will take place at the Pro-Cathedral, Liverpool, on Wednesday next.

MISS LILIAN DOREEN, who, since her recent sad bereavement, has been resting by medical advice, has returned to town, and will appear on Monday at the Metropolitan, where she is a great favourite. She will present a new song by Kendall Robinson, which bears the effective title of "A Broken Dream." The orchestration will have some special effects by Mr Maurice Jacobi, who will be found at the new London Coliseum at Christmas. Miss Doreen will appear at the London Pavilion in three weeks' time.

THE Magic Kettle still boils merrily at the Palace Theatre, and has proved a phenomenal draw, every part of the house being lost in wonderment at the series of scientific puzzles so deftly performed. Next week Mealy, that Parisienne serio without a rival, whose bewitching songs "Amoureuse," "Bon Soir, Madame la Lune," and "Les Gamins de Paris" are on everyone's lips, makes her appearance. The Dandies, Maud Courtney, Daisy James, La Petite Superbe, and Lucette De Verley, with Alexandre, the bird imitator, and James Stewart, the piano tramp, will also materially strengthen an already very strong programme. The autumn matinées begin on Oct. 1, and Madame De Dio and Mr Arthur Roberts are announced as shortly joining the company.

MISS NELLIE WALLACE has been released by the Messrs Hyman from her South African tour in consequence of her present state of health. Her new song has caught on at the Tivoli, and though she terminates her present engagement at the Strand house to night she will return there after one week's absence, and also go to the Oxford and Metropolitan.

MR HARRY BAWN, who, as we announced last week, is leaving the Chelsea Palace to take up the duties of management at the Grand, Clapham, was specially honoured at the former house on Monday evening. After the second entertainment Mr Edward Swanborough, with that geniality and tact that always characterise his speeches, voiced the congratulations of the staff and other subscribers, and presented to Mr Bawn, on their behalf, a handsome silver épergne. Mr Swanborough referred in glowing terms to Mr Bawn's popularity and to the esteem in which he is held by his fellows, concluding his speech with hearty wishes for success in his new appointment.

MR CHARLES RELF, of the Royal Albert, Canning-town, E., has, for the fourteenth year in succession, very kindly placed his hall at the disposal of the Seamen's Hospital Society for two nights, viz., Thursday and Friday, October 20 and 21, when entertainments will be given in aid of the Seamen's (Branch) Hospital, Royal Albert Dock. In recognition of Mr Relf's generosity and valuable help, it should be mentioned that since their inauguration in 1891, these entertainments have realised for this charity a total net amount of over £2 000. Offers of help from members of the music hall profession will be gratefully received. Any ladies or gentlemen who would like to assist at these entertainments (thus benefiting a most deserving institution), and who can reasonably hope to be able to appear, are asked to communicate with the Honorary Secretary, Concert Committee, Seamen's ("Dreadnought") Hospital, Greenwich, London, S.E.

MR GUS GARRICK, who is now appearing at the Royal, Holborn, with an original act, "All Styles," has been highly complimented on his novel idea. He claims to be the first to do a mimicry show with original songs.

There was a slight fire at the Alhambra Hotel, Sandgate, on Thursday. Fortunately it is no way interferred with the music hall, which opened on Thursday night just as usual.

IT was intended that the music hall walk to Croydon, which was organised last year by Mr Bob Hutt, should have been repeated this year, with the wind-up in town, but the project, we are given to understand, has now been abandoned.

"ELECTRO," the title of a new mystery which the invention of Mr George H. Webster, the originator of the "Phroso" act, will shortly be produced in the West-end. A box 2ft long is used, and in this receptacle is placed a man whose height is 6ft. 3in., dressed in Pierrot costume. The box is opened in some mysterious form, and the "doll" or man—whatever it is—goes through some toy-like evolutions, including a performance on the trapeze. At the conclusion the figure disappears suddenly into the box. The wonder is how a man over 6ft. long can get into a box whose length is only 2ft. The act opens at the Hippodrome on Oct. 10.

FRANCIS AND DAY have accepted the successful song sung by Miss Sadie Simpson and composed by Mr G. A. Stevens, entitled "I've brought you my soldier boy." The same firm has also just secured a novel song by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, entitled "The Carnival of Toys." This should be in great demand for pantomime, as it lends itself to a very effective production.

IT is extraordinary how things theatrical run in circles. Every operetta or revue this season has a classical theme. At Paris they have had Olympus, Venus, and now Phryné, who was a blood relation of Venus, at the Olympia. The operetta is by Louis Ganne and Auguste Germain, and the title-rôle is impersonated by Cléo de Merode, "she of the parted locks." The press is enthusiastic over her performance, and compare her to a Tanagra at Pompeii. The story is simple, what there is of it. Phryné is sent to the studio at Praxiteles to serve as a model for the most perfect figure in the world. But Mrs Praxiteles—Helioste by name—is a jealous dame, and she bundles Phryné out of the studio and calls her a saucy baggage, with a few pertinent remarks thrown in concerning Venus and her little ways. Phryné is haled before the Æropagus and there made to reveal her charms. The effect so overwhelms the multitude that they promptly acquit her of all she has or has not done in that eventful epoch-making studio of naughty Praxiteles. All's well that ends well in a ballet, and the conclusion is reached with the apotheosis of Phryné. Cleo was well supported by Louise Willy, a delightful artiste who does not depend merely on her beauty for her success. Cinquegrani was excellent as the sacred vestal, and Zanini good as the lover. The scenic effects are supplied by Menessier, and the costumes by Pascaud.

THE concert portion of the entertainment is up to the usual mark. The Phantom Guards, as depicted by Tiller's troupe, give us Tiller's manœuvres, dances, and songs. Bordeverry is a very fine shooter. He sets up a pretty girl as a target, and shoots all the clothes off her, and then shoots at a piano and makes melody by striking each note with a shot with lightning rapidity. The Attabs are always a welcome number in their clever acrobatic and quilibristic work. Gallando, too, is good when he models three statuettes at the same time. The Agousts are too well known to say more than that they achieve their usual success; and the clever Borellis, duettists, are warmly applauded. The sensation of the evening is the representation of the Midinettes walking match on a moving platform. These charming ladies give way to a race between a rider and a bicyclist—the jockey Wallour and the bicyclist Kreamer, who make a fine fight for the finish.

LONDON PAVILION.

Mr Dan Leno made his reappearance at the London Pavilion on Monday, and the event was signalised by a packed house, which gave the popular little comedian a welcome that was simply overwhelming. He comes back with new songs, which are largely interspersed with patter of that peculiar kind which has made Dan famous on the variety stage. In his first song he appears as a youth, eccentrically dressed by a loving mother whose ideas of the outfit of a boy are not altogether without parallels in real life. The corduroy knickers, the funny hat, and, more than all, the coat have each a rare comic significance. Billy, who has been in the country, has been sent out shopping, and is loaded with parcels which peep from receptacles all over him. He produces from his pockets a couple of bloaters, a kipper, and a steak, talking amusingly meanwhile of diet. The song bids fair to develop greater humorous possibilities after a few days' airing. Mr Leno's elderly dames have always been real comic creations, and the "Lane" lovers of pantomime have roared many a time and oft at his whimsicalities in this kind of part. His latest "lady" has much to say concerning her late lamented. To this frivolous creature Friday has not been altogether an unlucky day, for did she not meet the partner of her joys on that day of the week, which also witnessed his burial. Amusing references are made to the departed, and the turn is rounded off by some more droll business and a wonderfully funny dance. Mr Leno has been drawing immense houses all the week. The current programme put forward by Mr Glenister contains a couple of excellent sketches. Early in the evening is presented The Water Cure by Mr Charles Steuart's company. The slight plot concerns the artifice of a jealous fiancée, who mistakes her future husband's sister for an old flame and dresses as an office boy in order to discover his little game. He leaves on the table some laudanum which he has used for an aching tooth, and the jealous one drinks it, or, rather, she thinks she does; but the bottle has been emptied and refilled by the sister. Miss Isa Bowman as the boy is not at all deceptive in her make up, but acts humorously. Mr Charles Steuart is nonchalant and easy as the solicitor, Harry Parr, and Miss Annie Chippendale makes a fascinating representative of Kitty. The "smart set" story, for which Mr Homer B. Mason and Miss Marguerite Keeler are responsible, does not belie its origin, for it certainly has original situations and a plentiful supply of comedy. A young engaged couple—Millicent Raybridge and Oliver Herkomer—return to the latter's flat to find a burglar in possession. Bill strengthens his demands for money by threats with a revolver, and gets twenty-five or thirty dollars out of Herkomer. Of the latter's peremptory command—"Now, get out!"—the cracksman, who has a pretty wit, takes no notice. He is a humourist, and, after Millicent has held him up with another revolver, which breaks in half, he makes her promise to marry Oliver, and suggests slyly that their "first" should be named after him. Bill is about as funny as Mr Homer B. Mason can make him, and that is saying a good deal; for besides playing the part he gives an excellent entertainment at the piano. In saying this we do not mean to suggest that the playlet is a slipshod affair just written round its principal interpreter's "business," if one may so call it; on the contrary, it is very smartly written indeed, and teems with funny lines. It is just as well to mention that its title is Hooked by Crook. Speaking of piano sketches reminds us that Ross and Grayson are presenting once more their clever little duologue The Professor and the Pupil; and another excellent musical turn is that provided by Master Charlie Rogers, a very fine banjoist. Orpheus also adds to the musical attractions of an excellent programme by his capital selections on a number of instruments. Mr T. E Dunville's new song concerning a certain marquis promises well, but will go better in a week or two; Mr Johnny Johnson, the musical dude, who reminds one strongly of the only Chirgwin, plays a 'cello accompaniment to one of his numbers, and has a good whistling song; Mr Tom Edwards's ventriloquism is very much appreciated; Mr Leo Stormont recites a poem on the Russo-Jap war; and Celest gives a remarkable exhibition on the slack wire. Miss Nell Richardson sings prettily of "Eyes of Blue;" Vandy juggles as he only can; and other turns announced on the bill include Mr Harry Martell, comedian and dancer; Miss Kitty Bell, vocalist and dancer; Miss Arabella Allen, in a heartily applauded impersonation of Quilp; Miss Lily Lenora, an attractive speciality dancer; and the Judges, eccentric acrobats.

THE CANTERBURY.

The Canterbury programme is rich in productions of a genuinely humorous character. Amongst these may be classed the comedy sketch, entitled Castles in the Air. Jeremiah Hobbs is a wealthy retired pickle merchant, who has a daughter named Arabella. Her heart's desire is to marry a man with a title, and it would add to her happiness if he possessed a picturesque old castle, such as she has seen while on a tour with her father in Germany. A matrimonial advertisement in a daily paper catches her eye. It is to the effect that a German baron is desirous of wedding a lady with money. Having replied to the advertisement, Arabella impatiently awaits the arrival of the Baron, and is greatly annoyed when she discovers that her father has given the servants a day's holiday. As a way out of the difficulty he proposes to play the part of butler and wait on the Baron himself. As a matter of fact, the butler has left, and a local servants' registry office has promised to send round a new one as soon as possible. He duly makes his appearance. He is a German, who speaks broken English, and old Hobbs rather foolishly jumps to the conclusion that the new-comer is no other than the expected Baron. He accordingly gives the astonished German, whose name is Ludwig Hockenheimer, an effusively cordial welcome, and the series of misunderstandings which ensue are most laughable. Arabella is introduced to Ludwig, and her conduct is certainly not marked by any maidenly coyness. The German is a married man; his wife's name is Katrina. This is also, it appears, the name of an ancient castle on the Rhine which Arabella and her father visited while on their tour. When Ludwig, who has good reason to suspect he is in a lunatic asylum, is asked if he is the owner of Katrina, he replies in the affirmative, believing it is his wife that is being referred to. This error leads to further complications, the German getting enraged by what he regards as insulting allusions to his Katrina. When the inevitable explanation comes it is the turn of the old man and his disappointed daughter to be angry, and Ludwig is sent about his business. Mr William Lee is a capital representative of the retired pickle merchant; and Miss Helen Bentley does well in the part of Arabella. Mr John Zanger plays the rôle of the butler very naturally. The sketch is well received, and so too is the musical comedy sketch, Saturday to Monday, played by Mr Fred Karno's company of comedians. Mr Fred Kitchen as the bridegroom, John Willie Jaggs, is the central figure in the piece, and his genuinely humorous embodiment of the character is the cause of frequent merriment. His performance is funnier than it was originally, this resourceful comedian having carefully elaborated the comic details. Miss Cossie Noel is a fascinating bride, whose sister Violet has a charming exponent in Miss Jessica Deane. Mr Frank Haylett is active and alert as Tom Freeman, and Mr Henry Kitts is very good as the father of the bride. Mr Charles Baldwin does well as the bridegroom's best man, and the unnamed representatives of the middle-aged spinster and Jaggs's three children deserve warm praise. The sketch is excellently staged; and it is worthy of note that the bride's wedding-gown comes from the famous establishment of Worth, of Paris. The voices of Mr Richard Mackwey's London Glee Men blend very harmoniously in a well-selected set of part-songs, which includes "Oh! who will o'er the Downs," "The Cloud-cap't Towers," "All among the barley" and "When evening's twilight." Miss Victoria Monks is again here, and she gives a very dainty rendering of "You will have to read your answer in the stars." This favourite comedienne is also successful with "Ain't I no use, Mr Johnson?" Miss Vokey Gaylor wins applause by her singing of a sentimental song, and Mr Austin Rudd makes a hit with his parody on "Pansy Faces." Mr W. Selkirk's juvenile spectacle All Scotch should not be missed. About a hundred children of the neighbourhood take part in this production, and their military manœuvres are followed with the closest attention and interest. Miss Nellie Wallace again distinguishes herself as an eccentric comedy artist; Mr Will Dalton introduces a song suggested by the Beck case; Miss Maud Esmond is a pleasing vocal comedienne; and other attractive turns include the Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers; Larola, the funny man; Mr James Stewart, the tramp at the piano; Downes and Langford, comedians and dancers; and the Great Northern Troupe of International dancers. Mr Fred Miller is the courteous manager here, and Mr Harold March has the direction of the orchestra.

THE STANDARD.

Mr Thomas S Dickie's success in compiling programmes that appeal to the patrons of his snug little establishment opposite Victoria Station is attested by large audiences nightly; and the assistant manager, Mr Maurice Voisy, whose energetic and tactful management of the entertainment is much to be praised, reports excellent business. A very popular interlude in the Standard scheme is that of Miss Arabella Allen, who appears in characters from Dickins. The love of the great novelist is not a special appanage of the rich; it is firmly implanted in the breasts of the lowlier inhabitants of this great London of ours. Strange to say, Miss Allen affects mostly the male characters of the novels, and apparently ignores the heroines. Her reasons for this are not far to seek. The strongly marked characteristics of such a brute as Quilp, the potent hypocrisy of Uriah Heap, and the plaintiveness and pathos of Little Nell's grandfather more readily appeal to the popular mind. Miss Allen has a countenance that betrays striking intelligence, and when she hides a wealth of fair hair under the bald pate and white hair of senility the effect is somewhat startling. Her Quilp is wanting in strength and malignity, though it may be looked upon as a creditable effort for one so young. Her Mrs Gamp is not the grimly humorous creature we are accustomed to, but rather more serious. Miss Allen's impersonations meet with undoubted approval. Early in the evening Mr Frank Gillard excites hilarity by a smartly worked idea—nothing less than Dan Leno, Joe Elvin, and Gus Elen singing "Won't you come home, Bill Bailey," the mannerism and voice of each star being faithfully depicted. The Three American Idols are exceptionally agile and graceful young ladies, who are possessed of smartness as high-kickers, benders, and acrobatic dancers, their handsprings being a sensational wind-up to a spirited performance that is much applauded. The word mimic was never more aptly applied than to Mr Harry Vincent, who shows wonderful versatility in his entertainment. He takes in the bird and animal kingdom, imitating the song of the canary and the laughable and jocund cry of the patient jackass. The starting of a train, the working of a saw, the drawing of a cork, and the "sissing" of a syphon are all in his répertoire, and there is real humour in his realisation of two small boys playing a trombone and euphonium duet, and in his episode of a midnight brawl, in which a cat, dog, and poultry take part. In another very remarkable series of imitations is included the various noises made by a motor-car and the lift of the "Tuppenny Tube." Mr Vincent only uses his hands occasionally, his entertainment for the most part being given with the mouth unaided by any mechanical means. He is loudly applauded. The Sisters Dacre have a number of smart and amusing singing duologues in their répertoire, and the one in which they represent respectively a soldier and a nurse has just that touch of comedy that recommends it to a popular audience. In another duet the sister who represents a middy declares an undying attachment with equal warmth to a Spanish señorita or a Jap maiden. The business is bright, brisk, and taking. The Leonards, who are genuine favourites at the Standard, appear with great success as a postman and a housemaid, and the patter introduced by the reading of various post-cards is ingeniously put together, and is quite in the right vein of drollery. Travis, the ventriloquist, repeats his clever business with the boy loafer, who resents being disturbed while having a "doss" on a sofa. The quick-changing of one figure from a boy to a girl, and then to a Frenchman, and finally to an aged veteran sounds the dernier mot of polyphony, and Travis's vocal exercise while smoking a cigarette is one of those things that only those versed in his art can fathom. Mr Thomas E. Finglas, in his coon business, reminds us strongly of another performer; but his popularity with Standard audiences is not in any way affected by the resemblance. He is particularly successful with "Let me be your slave," in which he is assisted by Miss Grania Herbert. The bill has a touch of Shakespeare, and Mr Albert Wyndham and company give episodes from King John quite successfully. Sentimental vocalism has few exponents equal to Stewart and Morgan, who introduce the prettiest Irish ballads in their interlude "Leaving Ireland." They give a most artistic rendering of "Kathleen Mavourneen." Other attractions in the bill are Little Gladys Witton, the Zaro Troupe, George D'Albert, and the Edisonograph, with some interesting pictures.

ROYAL ALBERT, CANNING-TOWN.

The annual complimentary benefit given to Mr Charles Relf, the popular proprietor of the Royal Albert, Canning-town, is a local event of considerable interest and importance. The inhabitants of the neighbourhood have good reason to be grateful to Mr Relf for his charitable efforts on behalf of seamen and dockers, and they flock to his benefit in large numbers. The Royal Albert has grown from small beginnings into a variety theatre of the most modern type, where a first-class entertainment is provided all the year round. It is a well-conducted place of amusement to which a man can take his wife or his sweetheart without the slightest hesitation; and ample evidence of the personal popularity of the genial proprietor and his family is furnished on the occasion of Mr Relf's annual benefit, when his many friends flock around him to offer their hearty congratulations and good wishes. The entertainment, too, is always interrupted by one pleasant little ceremony, which takes the form of presentations to Mr Relf. In this respect his experience must, we think, be unique amongst music hall proprietors. With unfailing regularity come the annual gifts to Mr Relf. As usual, Mr Walter Leaver, who enjoys the distinction of being the last of the London music hall chairmen, acted as spokesman on Thursday night and, on behalf of "the friends in front," had much pleasure in presenting Mr Relf with a case of carvers, as a token of their regard and esteem. From the staff came a useful handbag and an umbrella, but these were for Mrs Relf. A large framed photograph of Mr Relf, taken by Mr Reeves, and presented by that gentleman, was last on the list. Mr Relf, in replying, referred to the fact that he had been proprietor of the Royal Albert for a quarter of a century. He could not, he said, find words to adequately express his thanks for the presents which he received year after year. He did not know how they managed to vary them so well—it must be difficult to select something fresh every year. He valued the gifts more particularly as a tangible token of their regard and good feeling; and his sons would value them after he was gone. With respect to the presents to Mrs Leaver he was sure she would appreciate them very much. In conclusion, Mr Relf expressed his thanks to his patrons, the artists who had contributed to the programme, the orchestra, and the staff. He also thanked Mr Reeves for his present, and Mr Walter Leaver, who had served him well and faithfully for over twenty-five years. The long and well-varied programme included the following turns:—Messrs Adderley Howard and company, in the sketch Night and Morning, Dolly Elsworthy, the Cirnoss, Daisy Silcott, Jack Heath, Queenie May, Billy Banks, the Yorkshire Mill Lasses, Thomas Cecil, Fred Newland, Connie O'Dell, Kurtz, Carl Millow, Lily Pender, Chas. Lloyd, Bob Pearson, Deller and Oxford, Sisters Beatrice, Henri, Becker, and Birt, Bessie Spiers, Ern Sparks, Jessie Reed, Tom Dunmore, Ada Blanche, Hal Croueste, Serpentello, Fenton and Harrison and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope. Mr Mitchell was the hard-working stage-manager. The chair was occupied during the evening by Messrs Frederick Baugh, Bob Van, and Jack Watkins. Others present were Messrs Alf Snelling, Sam Fredericks, J. Johnson, Fred D. Harris, Jas Fortune, and Tom Hill.

CHIRGWIN IN ABERDEEN.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME.

An interesting and memorable engagement opened at the Palace Theatre last night, when G. H. Chirgwin, "the White-eyed Kaffir," on his first appearance in Aberdeen, was enthusiastically welcomed by a crowded house. For more than twenty years Chirgwin has held a leading place on the variety stage, and those who saw and heard the famous artiste last night can be at no loss to discover the secret of his sustained success. Chirgwin is "a fellow of infinite jest," and no comedian knows better how to adapt himself to the mood and taste of the passing hour. He is thoroughly up to date; his "business" is indeed as fresh as it is clever and ingenious, and, before and above everything else, he is always himself. His style is like that of no other artiste, for although he has had many imitators, these have failed to reproduce the essential qualities of his humour, and have been fain to content themselves with a merely superficial resemblance. Chirgwin's drollery was perfectly delightful, and the audience was as sympathetic and responsive as any artist could desire to face, laughing boisterously over his many quips and applauding his songs to the echo. Mr Sheldon is to be warmly congratulated on his enterprise in securing so conspicuous an attraction, and one may confidently anticipate that Chirgwin, having at last found his way to Aberdeen, will gratify his new admirers by a speedy return visit to the city. The management of the Palace will have some difficulty during the week in accom-

MUSIC HALL HOME.

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.)

Sir,—A late issue of The Era reports a meeting of the Music Hall Home, at which reference was made to Atlas and Vulcana's collections for the Fund during their Australian tour and to Miss Nellie Wilson as having headed the list of collectors for the Home with £8. Now, sir, I would not have it supposed that I wish to detract from the splendid efforts of Miss Nellie Wilson, for £8 from one individual collector means hard work indeed; but the statement is somewhat misleading, and likely to place my sister, Vulcana, in a false position. She sent during the Australian tour three lists. First, £6 18s. (the amount of the second I forget at the moment, but the secretary of the Fund will perhaps kindly look this matter up), and the third list of £3 10s. was half of £7 collected, and shared equally between the Music Hall Home and Music Hall Benevolent Fund. So you see the first and third lists amounted to £10 8s., without counting the second list. Yours truly, ATLAS (Atlas and Vulcana).

THE Leslie Brothers, Australia's representative musical team, opened at the Apollo Theatre, Dusseldorf, on the 16th, when they made their first appearance in Germany. Offers for future dates are coming thick and fast. They return to England in November to fulfil contracts in the provinces, and open at the London Hippodrome on Dec. 12.

THE latest to swell the ranks of the Terriers' Association is Mr Bob Hutt, comedian. On the "honorary" list are Mr E. E. Giles, manager of the Empire, Battersea; Mr Tom Tinsley, manager of Gatti's; and Mr James Fortune, agent.

HACKENSCHMIDT, the champion wrestler, failed at Yarmouth on Tuesday night to throw in fifteen minutes a Norwich artilleryman named Pickford, who accepted his challenge, and £25 was paid to Pickford.

AT Wednesday's meeting of the Edmonton Education Committee Dr. Burton protested against the recent closing of the schools on the occasion of a visit of a circus to the town. He said the committee ought not to go out of its way to provide it with patrons. The Rev. E. A B. Saunders joined in the protest, as he regarded a circus as absolutely uneducational. The schools had only just reassembled after a five weeks' holiday when they were again closed for a half-day.

MR H. FOX late box-office manager of the New Grand Hall, Clapham, has been offered a similar post at the Leicester-square Empire, and will commence his duties early next month.

MRS ALLAN M'ASKILL, professionally known as Miss Nance Harder, has been lying dangerously ill at Scarborough for the last three weeks, suffering from pneumonia. She is under the care of Dr. Breden, who thinks she will be strong enough to take the journey home to West Hartlepool during the coming week. Her husband has never left her bedside for ten days and nights.

MISS VESTA TILLEY IN LEICESTER.

VESTA TILLEY AT THE PALACE.

In Leicester the name of Miss Vesta Tilley is one to conjure with; there is probably no town where the queen of music hall artistes is more popular, or where her efforts are more keenly appreciated. It goes without saying, therefore, that last night the Palace was well filled at both performances, and that the house applauded to the echo the four songs which Miss Tilley gave from her extensive repertory. Never has she appeared to greater advantage; her refinement of style, her charming naïveté in the delightfully varied impersonations of male characters—from the seaside "king" of the jeunesse dorée to the spic-and-span young infantryman—seem to become intensified on acquaintance. And although she generously responded to three rapturous encores the people evidently wanted more. It would be difficult to say in which of the four songs Miss Tilley scored her greatest success—that was really question for individual taste—but in all of them she was simply delightful. Commencing with "The king who reigns by the seaside shore," which was probably new to most of those present, she responded to the first encore with another new song of a totally different type, "The wise old owl," which introduces some topical matters in clever fasion, while she completed her turn with those two old favourites, "Following in father's footsteps" and "Out on furlough." It was, perhaps, in the latter that Miss Tilley's native humour and inimitable style were most fully displayed, and at the close of it she was again and again enthusiastically called to the front. It would be a poor compliment to so gifted an artist to associate her with third-rate performers, and the patrons of the Palace are therefore favoured this week by an exceptionally good programme, in addition to the outstanding attraction of Miss Tilley's visit.—Leicester Daily Post, Tuesday, Sept. 20 1904.

HERBERT CAMPBELL MEMORIAL.

Sir,—In consultation with several old friends of the late Herbert Campbell, it was unanimously considered that a memorial to his memory should be obtained, and placed, if possible, in the vestibule of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, which was the scene of so many of his triumphs, and in which theatre he had amused and delighted so many thousands of persons.

It is thought the best way to perpetuate the memory of this very generous and genial artiste is by the erection of a marble or bronze bust, and through his old friend, Mr Arthur Collins, the directors of the Drury-lane Theatre have been approached, and they have agreed to the suggestion, and, in addition, have generously promised the sum of £10 10s. towards the fund.

A meeting will shortly be held, of which due notice will be given, and it is desired that as many as can make it convenient to attend will kindly do so.

Being so well and universally known, myself and those interested think that there are very many of his old friends and fellow-artistes who would like to contribute to this memorial, and several subscriptions have already been promised. Mr Edward Ledger has kindly consented to receive and acknowledge any sums which may be sent for the above object.

Yours faithfully, HENRY JOYNER.

MUCH interest was excited at Earl's Court last Saturday afternoon by the race between Nino Salin, the champion gondolier, and Giovanni Moschietto, who had challenged him to maintain his title. The course was five times round, and the trophy a goblet presented by Mr Charles Urban, but the event provided little sport, as Salin fouled his rival not long after the pistol was fired, driving him into the structure supporting Sir Hiram Maxim's flying machine, and provoking him to discontinue further effort. In the circumstances Salin received little cheering at his finish, much disappointment being felt by all the spectators. A second race was between Piranese and Pezzile, and a good struggle was witnessed, Pezzile being beaten, after a plucky attempt, chiefly because of his slackness in turning. A chute boat race in which the competitors sculled from the notch resulted in a win for T. Cash against Dobson. Mr Hewitt Griffin was starter and timekeeper.

A DUEL which was to have taken place at La Grande Roue, Paris, has had a curious ending. The two antagonists, with their seconds, appeared and began to strip for the fray, when a stranger, bearing a narrow oblong box, which he proceeded to unpack, came on the scene. He then erected a tripod, upon which he fixed a cinématograph, and awaited the development of events. The duellists, however, were so indignant that they forgot the cause of their quarrel, embraced each other, reclothed themselves, and left the field of battle arm in arm, while the disappointed cinématograph man sadly repacked his apparatus and departed.

LIZZIE DALTRY, Bethnal-green's nine-year-old fat girl, appeared at the Middlesex on Tuesday night. Encouraging cheers resounded through the hall when it was announced that she was 4lb. heavier than she was a fortnight ago.

THE Boccacio Minstrels, whose engagement proved such a popular one at the Empire a short time ago, will open at the Alhambra on Oct. 17.

MANY English as well as Continental variety artistes will regret to hear of the death of M. Rasmussen, the manager of the Cirque Varieties in Copenhagen, who passed away on the 17th inst. M. Rasmussen was very popular with British performers, and was much liked and respected throughout the profession.

MRS BLAKE ADAMS (Miss Mona Robin), who is at present appearing with her husband in his dramatic episode, The Last Pitch, which was so successfully produced on Monday last at Sheffield, made her first appearance on the stage some twelve years ago. Since her marriage, which took place in '96 at Holy Trinity Church, Barnes, she has only appeared occasionally. Before going on the stage Mrs Adams was well known as a favourite reciter in Edinburgh, and studied in London under the able guidance of Miss Bateman (Mrs Crowe).

MR JAMES CARTER WHITE, proprietor of the Empire Theatre, Cleethorpes, gave a complimentary benefit to Mr William Hepworth, stage and acting-manager, on the 16th inst., and presented him with a handsome gold watch and chain. A capital variety company appeared, consisting of Miss Maud Dewey, Miss Flo Deighton, the Lauri Brothers, Barney Vox, Bob Vokes, and several local artistes. Altogether the performance was a huge success. Mr Hepworth is re-engaged for next season.

WHEN F. M. Radcliffe called upon Mrs Hughes, of Chapel-lane, Wigan, and represented himself as a member of an American trio engaged at the local hippodrome, the acute landlady thought he "did not look like a 'pro.'" So she communicated her suspicions to the police, who arrested him when he got up in the rooms. He was found to be a convicted thief, and was sentenced to three months for obtaining lodging by false pretences.

PAUL CINQUEVALLI HONOURED.

A POPULAR ENTERTAINER.

On Monday night a new departure was made from the usual method of dispensing hospitality to distinguished visitors, when a private supper was held at the Central Hotel in honour of Mr Paul Cinquevalli, the famous juggler now appearing at the Empire. The host was an old friend of Mr Cinquevalli, and he invited a number of his most intimate acquaintances, the gathering being thoroughly representative of the mining and commercial interests of the town. A similar celebration was arranged by the same friend on the occasion of Cinquevalli's last visit to Johannesburg, in September, 1898, and Monday night's function was therefore invested with a reminiscent interest, inasmuch as a large number of the guests were present on the previous occasion.

The host (Mr W. E. PARK) occupied the chair, and there were also present Mr Harold Strange, Mr E. Hopper (consulting engineer, Transvaal Goldfields), Mr Beachy Head (Tyne Valley Colliery), Mr Reyersbach, Mr H. C. Behr (consulting engineer, Consolidated Goldfields), Mr Sam Thompson (consulting engineer, Messrs Neumann's), Mr Oppenheim, Mr W. Bradford (manager, Langlaagte Deep), Mr W. Mein (manager, Robinson G. M. Co.), Mr J. M'Cracken (Fraser and Chalmers), Mr D. Gilmour (consulting mechanical engineer, Consolidated Investment Co.), Mr H. B. Griffiths (consulting engineer, East Rand Extension), Mr Tamplin Lewis (Middelburg), Mr H. Christian, Mr Geo. Thurston (Consolidated Goldfields), Mr H. Hay (manager, Wit Deep and Knight Central), Dr. Stuart, Mr C. Gluyas (manager, Salisbury and Jubilee), Mr C. Distel (Eckstein's), Mr B. Mitchell (Fraser and Chalmers), Mr E. J. Way (general manager, New Kleinfontein and Benoni), Mr Chas. Hatton (manager, Van Ryn), Mr J. R. Williams (consulting metallurgist, Eckstein's), Mr A. Brakhan (Goerz and Co.), Mr C. J. Price, Mr Robeson, and Mr J. F. Cook.

An excellent little supper, which proved that the Central Hotel is still in the front rank of Johannesburg catering establishments, was served, the whole of the arrangements reflecting the utmost credit upon Mr J. Osler and his staff. The toast of "The King" having been honoured,

The CHAIRMAN proposed the health of the guest of the evening, and in doing so said that as a very old friend of Mr Cinquevalli he had singular pleasure in welcoming him back to Johannesburg. Someone had once told him that when Cinquevalli decided to go "on the halls" his people objected very strenuously. They said that the people of that profession were not gentlemen. Mr Cinquevalli said to his people that he should go into that walk of life, and he would prove to them that gentlemen were to be found in the profession. He (Mr Park) believed that Mr Cinquevalli had proved that statement. He remembered the occasion of Mr Cinquevalli's last visit just before the war. He had a splendid reception; as a matter of fact the greatest reception any artiste ever had who came to this country, and there would be no doubt that he would be accorded the same reception on this occasion, an honour to which he was justly entitled as the cleverest known exponent of the art of juggling. He asked them to drink to the health of their guest.

The toast was then cordially honoured, and

Mr CINQUEVALLI, in responding, said he was unable to express adequately what he felt on that occasion. Speaking of their host, he (Mr Cinquevalli) had travelled all over the world, and everywhere he had been he had heard nothing but the highest praise of Mr W. E Park. With regard to what Mr Park had told them about the beginning of his (Mr Cinquevalli's) career, he was sure of one thing, and that was that through his profession he had been enabled to meet gentlemen wherever he went. He had most pleasant experiences, and that occasion was one of the pleasantest. He thanked them for their kind reception, and asked them to drink to the health of their host.

The health of the host was then honoured.

Mr HAROLD STRANGE then entertained the company with one of his amusing after-dinner speeches, and the guest of the evening afterwards gave an excellent programme of conjuring. A feat which created great amusement was that of removing Mr Harold Strange's vest without that gentleman taking off his coat. The garment was afterwards readjusted, but there was considerable laughter at the expense of the Chairman of the Chamber of Mines when it was noticed that his vest was inside out.—Rand Daily Mail, Wednesday, Aug 24.

WE regret to hear that Miss Florrie Zola, who played Eros, in Ben-Hur, at Drury-lane, is now lying in St. Thomas's Hospital in a critical condition, and cannot be seen by anyone. Our readers will sympathise deeply with the father, Little Zola, in his great anxiety.

MR SAM MAYO on Saturday night last presented Mr Harry Tunbridge, manager of the Corporation Pier, Great Yarmouth, with a solid gold pendant. Mr Mayo spoke very highly of Mr Tunbridge, who much appreciated the compliment paid him.

MESSRS BURG, HAUD, AND WISE, after a successful tour of five months in South America, arrived home per s.s. Thames on Sept. 19, and open at Palace, Halifax, on Monday next.

MR WORLAND S. WHEELER, the capable and energetic secretary and treasurer to the Paragon Theatre of Varieties, has returned from an enjoyable fortnight's holiday, mainly spent on the wheel in the direction of Bournemouth.

REGAN AND RYAN'S engagement at the Palace Theatre has been extended. They have also been re-engaged for next October.—The Harvey Boys finish to-night a thirteen successful weeks in town, and commence the "Stoll" provincial tour on Monday at the Empire, Cardiff.—Mr W. F. Frame, "The Man You Know," goes on with his vaudeville entertainment, and visits Auld Reekie on Oct. 1.—Mr Fred Curran, who leaves town to-night for a three weeks' tour, has this week secured three star numbers by that busy duo of song writers C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton.—Master Cliff, the clever little comedian, has been engaged for the forthcoming pantomime at the Camden Theatre.

MR TOM COSTELLO'S forthcoming song, "Mistaken Identity," was suggested by, but does not deal with, the Beck affair. It is written by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, the latter of whom is now located at Glengarriff-mansions, Brixton, having removed from Canonbury.

SO great has been the success of the songs "Pansy faces," "Sammy," and "The whistling bowery boy" in Paris and Berlin, that arrangements have been made with Mr David Day, and the three are being published in those cities in French and German.

THE next meeting of the Haverstock Amateur Trotting Club takes place on Monday next at the usual venue—Wembley Park. £70 in prizes is being given for a first-class handicap, distance one mile and a-half. Mr George Fuller, the energetic agent, will welcome a crowd of his friends in the committee's stand.

AN attendant at the Glasgow Hippodrome was charged at Glasgow on Tuesday with having assaulted one of the audience. The man wished to test the genuineness of Houdini, the handcuff king, and placed thumbscrews upon his hands. The latter easily freed himself, and the man asserted that Houdini had a key secreted upon his person, which enabled him to open the screws, and that he had obtained this article between Monday and Wednesday evenings. The audience clamoured for an apology, and the prosecutor was assaulted. The charge was dismissed.

THE GRANVILLE ANNIVERSARY.

The sale of the seats at the Granville on Tuesday was so brisk that by the time proceedings had well started not an available space remained. That such functions have by no means declined in the public estimation was proved by the crowded assembly that united in the observance of the sixth anniversary—a tribute to the popularity of Mr Jesse Sparrow, to whose influence the success of the evening was due. His return to the hall to which, six years ago, he brought its first prosperity has resulted in an accession of patronage, and the constant support of the residents of Walham-green is assured. A programme consistent with the size of the audience and the importance of the occasion was presented, two dozen out of the thirty-five turns listed contributing to the entertainment. The new sketch, Bill Bailey in Japan, introduced Miss Lottie Collins, who brought the wealth of her vocal and comic art to bear on the rôle of Bedelia, the renowned hero being played by Mr Billy M'Clain. The audience found the melodies, the fun, and the dances entirely acceptable, and laughed and applauded by frequent turns. A movement in favour of mirth was made by Mr Wilkie Bard, whose score of laughs reached the customary high mark. The house rendered willing assistance in the chorus of "O, O—capital O," and to their delight the comedian answered an enthusiastic recall with a burlesque of a soldier as quaintly original as all his other impersonations. An impetus to merriment was also given by Mr Sam Mayo, who was not allowed to go until he had twice sung, and Mr T. E. Dunville cut a ludicrous figure as a railway guard, whose drollery is irresistible. Miss Cissie Dryden introduced a new song by H. Cory Woodrow, with music by Albert Perry, called "The Sailors of the Empire," dedicated to the boys of H.M.S. Excellent. A picturesque effect is obtained by a cloth representing the old battleship Victory, at the portholes of which the heads of bluejackets appear and join vigorously in the refrain. It is a popular theme wedded to a melodious tune, and the thrilling lines were smartly rendered by Miss Dryden, who appeared as a trim little sailor, and took the house with a neat hornpipe at the end. Miss Rachel Lowe was moved by applause to add to her song of "What's the use of that, huh?" an impersonation equally unique, and the popular Miss Queenie Lawrence had a medley of the latest choruses to offer to an eager assembly. Mr Tom Leamore found in "The Wrestler" abundant mirthful material; Mr Will Dalton obtained sympathy for "Adolf Beck;" Mr Vincent Adams was comical as a boot salesman; and Mr Horace White's ventriloquial interlude proved interesting and amusing. Miss Lottie Lennox plaintively queried "Ain't it nice to have a father?" Miss Sable Fern gave a couple of her sweetest songs; Miss Kitty Beresford sang a charming lilt of a parasol; Miss May Belfort cleverly captured the audience with "The manner and the style;" and the festival bill was completed by Miss Vesta Victoria, Miss Sadie Simpson, Verno and Voyce, Mr Will Johnson, Mr Leo Stormont, Virto and Irene, Mr Harry Phillips, Mountford and Walsh, and the animated pictures. Well-wishers from all parts of the metropolis swelled the merry throng, among whom were to be seen Messrs Harry Lundy, J. C. Coe, Frank Allen, G. E. S Venner, H. Joyner, A. W. Bray, E. E. Giles, Fred Baugh, Will Sergeant, Fred Reeves, Armstrong, Tom Shaw, Geo. Foster, Dave Cohen, C. Chapman, Syd Hyman, Geo. Aplin, H. Barnard, F. Leo, E. Edelsten, H. Lester, C. Cory Woodrow, and Captain Woodger. The traffic of the stage was skilfully manipulated by Mr George Peel; the acting-manager, Mr Ernest A. Bridgen, was as ubiquitous as the crowded state of the hall would allow; and Mr W. S. Bassett skilfully piloted the orchestra through the arduous duties of a busy evening.

JEAN STANLEY FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Kindly acknowledge receipt of £1 1s. from Mr George Adney Payne, per Mr Richard Warner, towards the Mrs Jean Stanley Fund. The total amount received is £86 10s. The committee will hand the bank book to Mrs Stanley on Sunday, and so close the matter of receiving subscriptions. At the same time they beg to thank you for acknowledging monies received from week to week through the columns of your valuable medium, which has done much to make known this deserving case. For the response Mrs Jean Stanley is truly grateful.

Yours faithfully, WM. F. MOSS
Southend, Sept. 20. (Hon. Sec.).

PAUL CINQUEVALLI, who left Southampton on July 30, and arrived on Aug. 16, at Capetown, left there the same day for Johannesburg, which he reached on the 19th. Although in the train three nights and two days, he did not feel the effects of the travelling. He passed through the places where the battles were fought, and saw the graves of those brave ones who died in defence of their freedom and country. In several instances little white wooden crosses were the only sign. On his arrival at the city of the Rand he had a most cordial reception, meeting many of those he saw six years ago on his last visit. In those days they were wealthy men; to-day some of them are almost penniless, but they are cheerfully looking forward to the good time that is coming. Money is very scarce, but the patronage of the Johannesburg Empire does not seem to suffer, as the famous juggler has been playing to full houses nightly. His début was most successful, and a long time will elapse before he forgets (if ever) the reception with which he was honoured on his first appearance. He stays in Johannesburg six weeks, and then plays Cape Town for six weeks, sailing for home on Nov. 16. He will be back in London on Dec. 3, when he starts for pantomime in Ireland.

CHAPELTOWN FEAST, LEEDS, was held in fine weather on the Windmill Field. Mr William Murphy's golden Venice, Hamilton's four-a-breast gallopers, and Baker's yachts provided good riding facilities. Messrs Kayes, Doubtfire, Church, and Newell supplied the riding machines for juveniles. Testo's cinematograph, Birch's midgets, and Holdsworth and Powell's fine art show, were well patronised. The fair ground novelties of Messrs Doubtfire, Steward, Peters, Eastwood, Illingworth, Ashcroft, Towend, Johnson, Gallagher, Holdsworth and Powell, Baines, Ratliffe and Morley provided a variety of amusement for the public. Messrs Campbell and Whitehead arranged the fixing of the numerous stands for the lessee, Mr William Murphy, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

IN the Tamworth County Court last week Frederick Montague Barber, a travelling auctioneer, brought an action against William A. Collett, coachbuilder, Glascote, for breach of contract, claiming £26 damages. The defendant had been employed by the plaintiff to repair his living carriage, but Collett, it was claimed for the plaintiff, did the work so badly that the job had to given to a Kidderminster coachbuilder. His Honour held that the plaintiff had ample opportunity of examining the work, and did examine it, and that he agreed to accept it, the best proof of that being that he paid £29 on the nail and left the van behind him. On those grounds the judge found for the defendant.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches. People troubled with a hacking cough, a slight cold, or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box. Sold by Chemists everywhere, 1s. 1½d. per Box.—[ADVT.]

PRESENTATION TO HARRY BAWN.

The subject of the accompanying picture, Mr Harry Bawn, the esteemed acting-manager of the Chelsea Palace, who is leaving, with every expression of good will from his directors, to fulfil with Mr Walter Gibbons the important position of manager at the Clapham Grand, was on Monday last the recipient of a very handsome testimonial in the shape of a magnificent epergne subscribed for by the members of the staff and band. At the conclusion of the performance on Monday night, after the fireproof curtain had been lowered some time, it was raised and disclosed a table bearing the present, surrounded by the whole of the staff and some intimate friends of the management. The genial Mr EDWARD SWANBOROUGH then called for Mr Bawn, and in well-chosen words made a most appropriate speech, expressing the regret of the whole staff at his leaving, and their very great pleasure at knowing that he was going to fill such an important position, and incidentally mentioned that many friends outside of the staff had requested to be allowed to participate in the subscription, but the committee had resolved that it should be exclusively a token of good will from those with whom he had been associated in business. Mr ANGELO ASHER then endorsed all that had been said, not only on his own behalf, but on behalf of every member of his orchestra. Mr BUCCI, stage-manager, then presented to Mr Bawn, to convey, to use his own words, "to his darling wife," "My Fancy," a beautifully executed bust of Miss Mary Anderson, on a pedestal. Mr BAWN made a most suitable response, in which he stated that he was not leaving through any unpleasant or uncomfortable feeling, for he had always experienced the greatest of kindness at the hands of Mr Henri Gros and his co-directors, Mr Swanborough, Mr Asher, and every member of the staff and band down to the programme boys, but it was the duty of every married man to look ahead, and as he was leaving to improve his position he only hoped that he should receive the same assistance from the staff at the Grand as he had always received from those at the Chelsea Palace. Before the company parted Mr W. S. LYON, a constant visitor at the Palace, stated that although those outside the theatre had been prohibited from subscribing to the presentation made that evening, the friends who had always received such attention and kindness from Mr Bawn were not going to be outdone, and they intended to make a presentation on their own account. We give our readers an illustration of the present, and we hope to do the same, at some future time, of the testimonials to be presented shortly.

THE press were invited recently to witness an alarming exhibition at the Folies Bergère, Paris. Mademoiselle Mauricia De Tiers with her Autobolide is hauled up to the top of the roof to a platform. Here the lady gets in surrounded by cushions. At a given signal the Autobolide is started off. It descends an incline of 45 degrees, 12 metres long. At the finish the course bends down suddenly. The auto follows the bend and dashes off into space like an arrow at the rate of 50 kilometres an hour. She thus describes a parabola of 14 metres and dashes on all four wheels on an inclined board, which enables the machine to pull up horizontally. Such terrible risks to life should not be allowed by the police. They prove nothing; they are not amusing; and they only pander to a morbid love of the dangerous and the horrible. When one reflects that it is a solid mass weighing 400 kilogrammes which is hurled into space with its human burden, which after accomplishing the passage through the air strikes a board with the accumulated force of 2 000 kilogrammes, it gives food for thought. The intrepid little lady told us that she was but slightly nervous. It is the head which suffers most particularly at the moment of passing so violently through the air. We doubt very much whether Mademoiselle De Tiers will find any imitator.

AFTER thoroughly renovating and installing electric light, Mr J. M. Paul, of Edison-Paul animated picture fame, has opened the Empire, Shildon, Durham, as a variety house, and the large audiences who nightly attend seem thoroughly appreciative of the fine array of talent brought before them.

"HETTIE, THE HOT 'UN."

Ena ..... Miss DAPHNE DE ROHAN
Jack ..... Mr HARRY J. WORTH

Miss Daphne De Rohan possesses conspicuous abilities in more directions than one. She is well known as a talented player of the mandoline and the guitar, and she has, in addition, an admirable soprano voice, which has been heard to advantage in some very taking Neapolitan melodies and French and Italian songs. Now, however, she goes away from those departments of stage work, and becomes, in the first place, the author of a sketch, secondly the producer of a sketch, and thirdly, an actress in a sketch. As a sketch writer she may fairly lay claim to no inconsiderable merit, if we may take the amusing little comedy, entitled Hettie, the Hot 'Un, which was produced at the Middlesex on Tuesday night. The story opens in a drawing-room, where one Ena and her husband Jack are having strong words over the former's amateur theatricals. Jack swears that his life has been made a perfect torment, and he has determined to put an end to her idea of going on the stage. Ena has arranged to give an exhibition of her dramatic art before a Mr Graball, a theatrical manager, who is about to produce a new burlesque entitled Hettie, the Hot 'Un, and has offered her the title-part provided she can satisfy him at rehearsal. Ena's husband hears of these arrangements and sternly forbids his wife to have anything to do with theatres or theatrical managers. As a sort of protest against his command she picks up her banjo and commences "strumming" upon it. He orders her to desist playing while he is there, and, losing her temper, she smashes the banjo on his head, and leaves the room. Jack, however, determines to give her a Roland for her Oliver, his scheme being to disguise himself, call upon her as Mr Graball, and interview her. By the time the interview is over he feels sure she will be quite cured of her ridiculous craze to become an actress. Accordingly he changes his clothes, dons a wig, paints his face, and announces himself as Mr Graball. The first question he puts to her concerns her qualifications as an actress, but she assures him she can sing, dance, and thoroughly understands the principles of speech and gesture. He next inquires if she has a husband, and after receiving a reply in the affirmative, he runs through a little burlesque scene with her. That ended, he begs her to elope with him, the prospects he offers her being of the rosiest. She declines at first to leave her husband, and as Mr Graball is quitting the room she suddenly recognises a handkerchief he placed upon the floor to kneel upon as Jack's property. Realising that she has been tricked, womanlike, she immediately devises some method to "pay him back in his own coin." Calling Mr Graball to her side, she tells him how delighted she will be to fly away with him. He, however, makes an anxious solicitation as to her husband, to which she replies that the latter is a stupid sort of creature. Finally, after some amusing by-play, he pulls off his wig and reveals—what has scarcely been a secret to her—the fact that he is her own Jack and not a theatrical manager. Miss Daphne De Rohan very charmingly and cleverly enacts the part of the heroine of her pleasant and interesting little comedy-sketch. Her style on the stage is most engaging, and at once gained the affection of her audience, who showed in an unmistakable manner that in the playlet were many laughable situations which commended themselves to the sense of humour of the Middlesex "boys." Mr Harry J. Worth was no less successful in his interpretation of the rôle of Jack, his characterisation of the two men, each of whom was the very antithesis of the other—one being a hater of things theatrical, and the other a theatrical manager — being extremely well drawn. Both his and his partner's efforts at bringing out the ludicrous points in the sketch were met with roars of laughter from a delighted audience, and the little piece may be said to have scored a triumph exceeding, perhaps, Miss De Rohan's anticipations.

MR HAROLD FINDEN has purchased this week the sole rights of a new duologue entitled The Thief in the Night, written by Henry Merriman, and it will be played shortly by Mr and Mrs Finden.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Newcastle, in the Black Country, is an important fixture on the Midland round. The pleasure fair commenced on Monday, Sept. 19, and was well attended, and satisfactory business done by the showmen present. The entertainers were:—Holland, with varieties and ghost illusion; Cordwell, with animated pictures; the lifeograph; Harry Hughes, with athletes and school of boxers; and Wright, with fine-art gallery; Farrell, with steam horses, swings, bottle battery, and varieties; Mrs Collins, with Venetian gondola set and park swings; Beech, with swings, rifle saloon, and varieties; and Messrs Wright, Mason, and others with the usual fair ground novelty stalls, &c.

Again the speeding years bring round the solemn anniversary of a good man's death. James Dean, every showman's friend, adviser, and champion, entered into rest Sept. 27, 1899.

The ancient Scotch gathering known as Falkirk Tryst was down for Wednesday, Sept. 14. Here we had M'Indoe's (Mr Arthur Henderson's) electric cinématograph and ghost variations, Professor William Woods and his school of boxers, Cyclops and May, heavy weight lifters, Mr James White's "Golden Venice," Mr John White's electric jumpers, Howard's steam swings, and the manual swings of Messrs Palmer and Thomas, the shooting tubes of Messrs Leyland, Strand, Dawson, Palmer, and the Horne Family. The minor fun of the fair was supplemented by Messrs Gidlow, Towers, Johnson, Carroll, Cunningham, Palmer, Leyland, and M'Indoe.

Bullock Fair followed Falkirk for Sept. 16, and the following concerns remained over the week-end:—Mrs Harris and Son's varieties and cinématograph, Mr Tom Paul's Continental circus, Prof. W. Wood's fistiana artists, Mr John White's four-abreast Newmarket gallopers, two sets of manual swings, and the shooting saloons of Messrs Harris, Wright, Kayes, and Horne.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West visited Whitehaven on Tuesday, and was well patronised.

The funeral of James Rhodes at Burmantofts Cemetery, Leeds, as briefly reported last week, was unique. From the residence to the cemetery thousands of people lined the streets and respectfully uncovered as the cortege passed along. At the cemetery the officials stated it was the largest crowd ever seen inside the gates, composed of all classes, from the local gentry to the working classes—densely packed, all hustling, jostling in their eagerness to catch a last glimpse of all that remained of "Jimmie," as he was familiarly known. In addition to the persons who are interred at the same cemetery are the remains of Edward Morley, a well-known showman of Leeds, who will be remembered by many.

Through the courtesy of the Leeds Corporation, Rhodes Theatre was allowed to remain on Holbeck Moor in extension of the time usually allowed. The theatre will now be carried on by the deceased veteran's son, Mr J. Rhodes. In addition to the family mourners at the funeral we noticed Mr William Murphy, roundabout proprietor, Newcastle-on-Tyne; Mr Joe Whitehead, billposter, Pudsey; Mr Leyburn, New Empire Theatre, Pudsey; Mrs Hamilton, South Shields; Mrs M. A. Hughes, Leeds; Mrs Redfearn, Bradford; Mr R. Isles, Stanningley; Mr S. Brown, Leeds; Mr J. Podesta, Leeds, and Mrs Birch, Birch's midgets.

Although it has been reported that James Rhodes was the oldest showman, it appears that it is not so, for there was up to a few weeks ago, and may still be living, Mr Harry Goole, better known as "Horse Harry," who was born in 1812, and exhibited giant horses. When heard of last he was residing in Middlesbrough. Also Mr J. Newsome, who is ninety years and still living at Sunderland. Mr James Chipperfield, who is still travelling, and is now located at Woodhouse Feast, Leeds, claims to be eighty-two years.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—On the Stroke of Twelve is being played here this week by Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company. The chums, Jack and George, are capably presented by Mr Fred Rivers and Mr Leslie Lingham; Mr H. Creagh Hunt as the schemer, Horton, is distinctly good; Henry Rutledge is typically drawn by Mr Harry C. Robinson; Mr Fred J. Little as Jasper, Mr Karl H. Edwards as Moses Levi, and Mr Will Bass as Pat invest the piece with humour; Miss Nellie Moore and Miss Bertha St. Ruth as Jess and Doris submit pleasing portrayals; Marie Bergerre is successfully depicted by Miss Elma C. Turner. In act three pleasing specialities are introduced by several members of the company.

SHEERNESS.

TRANSFIELD'S HIPPODROME — Sole Proprietor, Mr T. G. Transfield; Secretary and Manager, Mr Chas. Melvin.—Another excellent programme is submitted here, and includes the Boccaccio Minstrels, Italian singers and instrumentalists, who, with Signor Francia, a clever mandolinist, meet with well-deserved recognition. The Ernest Trio are responsible for several daring feats of horsemanship. Amongst the remaining interesting features of the bill are the Black Apollo and his little black ocon; Miss Clarice Netta, soprano; Miss Hettie Le Boa, burlesque actress; and Mr John Lloyd, described as the singing collier. A series of new and interesting films, exhibited by Bertram Theobald, concludes the performance.

VICTORIA PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr T. C. Dorling.—Mr Fred J. Kirke's company opened here on Monday with The Naval Detective. As Lieut. Jack Beresford, R N., Rev. Frequent Nipper, and Pat M'Guinness Mr Arthur Hickman appears with much success. Miss Louie Fontaine as Phyllis Leslie is decidedly good, her singing being much admired. The remaining characters are ably played.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr P. Reymond.—The Calden Combination is remaining here for another week in the dramatic sketch In the Pay of the Czar, the remainder of the programme being ably supported by Harry O'Moore, comedian; Frank Royland, comedian; and Miss Gracie Drew, burlesque actress.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr F. Marlow.—Mr Frank Wilson's company is playing The Marriage of Kitty to good houses. Amongst the artists are Miss Vera Fordyce, in the title-rôle, Miss Averil May, Miss Kate Harwood, Mrs Sydney Orton, Mr J. F. Orton, Mr Frank Wilson, &c.

PIER PAVILION. — Sole Lessee, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr W. S. Penley's company is here with Charley's Aunt. Stephen Spettigue finds a capable exponent in Mr Walter Pemberton; Mr E. Savery makes a capital Col. Sir Francis Chesney; Mr Aubrey Mallalieu gives an excellent impersonation of Jack Chesney; Charley Wykeham is ably characterised by Mr Mark Wylton; Mr Edwin H. Wynne scores as Lord Fancourt Babberley. The remaining characters are ably sustained by Misses Mary Morison, B. Fitzgerald, Marie Grogan, and Mary Mallalieu and Mr Fred Epitaux.

THE KURSAAL.—General Manager, Mr J. Sydney Childs.—The variety programme for this week is of a good class, and the audiences find plenty of amusement. Franks Brothers perform some interesting and clever conjuring tricks; Johnny Dane is a smart comedian and dancer; Miss Unity Vezzey plays the concertina in a charming manner, and her musical dogs are well trained; Walker and Lake, comedians, dancers, and patter purveyors, are accorded a hearty reception; the Escaladors in their acrobatic performance and their unique ladder act, are commendable for their smartness; and Clown Leo has been retained with his performing dogs. Still more new and interesting films have been added to the Bioscope. Captain Towyn Thomas's Royal Welsh Glee Singers are engaged in the Café Chantant.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—Mr William Greet's No. 1 company, in Wilson Barrett's evergreen play The Sign of the Cross, is appearing before large and enthusiastic audiences here this week. The able cast, which has undergone many changes since its last visit, still includes Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, whose effective portrayal of the suppliant Mercia rivets the attention of the house. Mr F. B. Woulfe is cordially received as Marcus Superbus, his sonorous voice and manly bearing being quite in keeping with the part. The characteristics of the dissipated and avaricious Nero are ably presented by Mr A. Bernhardt Turner. Mr Charles Aldred is advantageously placed as the brutal and subtle Tigellinus, and an excellent second is the Lucinius of Mr J. Weatherall. Mr Frank Wood enacts Glabrio with his wonted quaintness of style. Miss Alma Bolton brings to the surface the jealousy of the handsome Berenice, and the scandal-loving Dacia is vivaciously embodied by Miss Cissie Carlton. Miss Ivy Millais acquits herself creditably as the boy Stephanus. As Favius Mr Robert Hare is dignified, being well supported by Mr E. J. Carlin as Titus.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—The Coster's Friendly Lad is attracting capital audiences here, with Alec Hurley, the famous coster comedian, as the chairman, "Thick Ear'd Jim." Manning's Entertainers, billed to appear in a spontaneous combustion of effervescent hilarity, entitled A Hotel Boots, ably succeed by their lively and untiring efforts. Popular Harry Coates, the singing navvy, excellently renders "Mona" and other songs, for which he is loudly applauded. Dolly M'Calla, a talented young artiste, in her success, "The Little Brown Man of Japan," sings sweetly, her sylph-like movements and graceful dancing aiding her success. Charles Chard, eccentric comedian, and Annie Casey, comedienne, are two favourites here, having both appeared in pantomime. Calile and Walker, in a comedy act; the Sisters Bijou and Lanton and Lane, comedians and dancers, complete a good bill.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr Jos. Sweeney.—The principal turn here is Los Angelos, two charming vocalists and duettists, their cleverly rendered numbers creating a profound impression. The Joshberthos Trio furnish a pleasing strong act; a banjo entertainment by the Clarks is appreciated; and some funny songs are submitted by Archie Glen. Baker and Rose are amusing patter comedians, and considerable laughter is caused by Ryder Slone. Flo Villier, burlesque actress, and Wal Croft, Scotch comedian, also appear with success.

VICTORIA HALL.—An important engagement is being fulfilled here by the Scarlet Mr E.'s and their Jester, who have been playing to packed houses.

STAFFORD.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr James Elphinstone.—After an interval devoted to variety business, the dramatic season has opened here, Mr Henry Hare's company presenting The Girl from Chicago. Flora Bloomer is acted by Miss Lily Beverley with considerable success; Mrs Sweetlove is played with vivacity by Miss Lucy Beaumont; and Miss Nelly Vicott gives a humorous delineation of Lucretia Flatfoot. Mr Buckstone Clair scores as Judge Ananias Hussel, and is ably assisted by Mr Edwin Dodds as Billy M'Guffin. Mr Clarence Ibbotson is well received as Brother Obadiah Cacoles, and Percy Montmorency is cleverly impersonated by Mr Douglas Vigors. Speciality dancing is contributed by the Daffodils, who are received with much applause.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—Mr Benson's North company has this week paid a welcome visit with The Merry Wives of Windsor, The Rivals, Twelfth Night, Romeo and Juliet, As You Like It, and She Stoops to Conquer. In The Merry Wives of Windsor Mr Henry Herbert acted the part of the amorous old knight with considerable ability. Mr B. Forsyth may be complimented upon his performance as Fenton, Mr Arthur Fayne made a good Shallow, Mr William Senior as Slender was all that could be desired, Mr F. Owen Chambers infused plenty of spirit into the part of Ford, Mr Bernard Limpus merited high praise as Page, Mr A. Phillips made a capable Sir Hugh Evans, Mr A. A. Harries was amusing as Dr. Caius, Miss Dorothy Green was attractive and clever as Mrs Page, Miss Maud Garth looked well and acted with ability as Mrs Ford, Miss Christie Laws was efficient and pleasing as Ann Page, Miss May De Launey made a capital Mistress Quickly, Miss Vera George as Robin played carefully and well, and various minor rôles found capable exponents. The Rivals, played on Tuesday, attracted a full house. Mr Henry Herbert performed in the most artistic and talented manner the part of Sir Anthony Absolute. To Mr F. Owen Chambers must be accorded considerable praise for his capable acting in the character part of Sir Lucius O'Trigger. Mr Bernard Limpus was well qualified for the rôle of Captain Absolute, and Mr A. A. Harris as Bob Acres was decidedly amusing. Miss Dorothy Green as Miss Lydia Languish was bright, graceful, and clever, and Miss Maud Garth as the confidential maid Lucy merited high encomiums. Miss May De Launey extracted much humonr from the "epitaphs" of Mrs Malaprop. Mr Benson is to be congratulated on having secured the services of a smart advance representative in Mr Arthur H. Yolland.

SOUTHAMPTON.

GRAND.—Mr George Dance's company is again appearing here in the successful musical play, A Country Girl. The staging is on a sumptuous scale, and the tuneful music is exceedingly well played by the augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr Otto Manns, jun. The whole of the members of the company, with one exception, are newcomers, and they all fill their respective roles with credit. The one old favourite is Mr Fred W. Pattrick, who as the Rajah of Bhong scores a great success. Mr Francis Ludlow is a breezy Geoffrey, and his vocalisation is highly appreciated. Mr Harry Buss is extremely funny as Barry, and Mr H. C. Morton scores as Sir Joseph Verity. Amongst the ladies, Miss Kathryn Comber sings admirably as Marjory, and Miss Nellie Cozens is very successful as Nan. Miss Rosie Begarnie is delightfully chic as Sophie, and Miss Ernestine Desborough a stately Princess.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Mr John Denton's company is appearing here in A Modern Judas, which is well acted. Miss Violet King is very successful as the heroine; Mr Frank Beresford, Mr Percy Rhodes, Mr Trueman Towers, Mr Willie Scott, &c., are also seen to advantage.

PALACE.—The principal turn here is given by Melot Hermann, a French conjuror, whose feats are marvellous; Harry Pleon is as funny as ever; and Will Musgrave is delightfully droll. Chinko, a smart juggler, scores well; and Chas. Lilburn entertains with his comic ditties. Others appearing with success are Sanford and Lyons, the Lavers and Lake Comedy company in My Landlord; Alice Pierce, mimic; and Edie Rivers.

SOUTHPORT.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Winter Gardens Company, Limited; General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming.—A second visit of Mr Geo. Dance's company in The Girl from Kay's has been much appreciated here. Mr Johnnie Schofield as Max Hoggenheimer introduces much humour into the part; as Winnie Harborough Miss Lily Lingard excels both in vocalism and dancing; Mr Louis Du Cane is an amusing Pepper; Mr Chas. Goold makes an exceptionally good Joseph; Miss Polly Prim as Ellen is seen to advantage in several clever dances. The stage-management is under the direction of Mr T. Reynolds, and Mr Harry Whittaker directs the musical arrangements.

PAVILION WINTER GARDENS. — That clever comedian Malcolm Scott is here this week, and, together with Edwin Adeler, is drawing good houses.

PAVILION PIER.—Lessee, Mr Charles Parker; Manager, Mr J. H. Mertz.— Prominent upon the bill at this popular place of entertainment is Walter Curtis, "the star of the North." Other clever contributors to the programme are the Musical Bentleys, Thornley Dodge, Almon, and Annie Nelson.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE. —Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; Resident Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—Mr Fred L. Conynghame has extended his visit into a second week, and has put on The Best of Luck, which gave every satisfaction on Monday. In the rôle of Matthew Merryweather Mr Conynghame submits a truly funny study of a country bumpkin. An attractive adventuress is presented by Miss Violet Macaree as Gwendoline Murdoch. Miss Laurie A. Pardy appears with credit as Dorothy Dornton. Mr Arthur Rose has congenial work in depicting the much-persecuted hero, Ronald Bruce. Mr Geo. P. Beresford as Ralph Murdoch is sufficiently callous to earn the execrations of the audience. Little Bertha Hanbury as Ruth displays much skill. Plenty of fun is supplied by Miss Lallah Davis as Kitty and Mr Willie Barratt as Bob. The many popular songs contributed by Miss Davis are much appreciated.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED. —General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company is here in the Oriental drama, A Traitor Prince. The piece is capitally acted, the principal parts being undertaken by Messrs G. M. Montanni, A. H. Longford, A. Mortimer, E. C. Livesey, G. E. Hall, T. G. Vane; Misses Beatrice Western, Lilian Rosebery, Maudie Grayson, and Mrs E. C. Matthews.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs T. Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Willmot; Resident Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—The chief attraction here this week is Palles and Cussick, "the two rib ticklers." The following also contribute successful turns:—Meir and Mora, speciality artists; the Three Zaracs on triple horizontal bars; Jack Pleasants, comedian; Johnny Holland and company, in My Friend Boots; the Ladderites; Miss Molly Doon, a charming vocalist; and Tom White's Arabs, in their clever singing act.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Miss Nettie Ware and company, in When Woman Hates, opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday. As the hero, Fred Rokeby, Mr John B. Shinton acts with much acceptance; Mr Oscar Adye's Godfrey Lawton shows a good deal of realism and power; as Colonel Hiram R. Vancutson Mr Bensley Evans does good work; and Mr Eric Campbell is well fitted in every way for the part of the gigantic Bill Smasher. The comic element is well provided by Mr Will Percy as Patrick O'Brien and Mr William Wallace as Alphonse Picolot. As Marie Rokeby Miss Jennie Hughes does well, and the sinister Cora Daintry is faithfully acted by Miss Nettie Ware. Mr Fred Jarman's company, in Dark Siberia, appeared on Thursday and Friday.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—This week's bill includes Staig's sensational motor racing in mid-air; H. G. Prosper, comic; David Poole, a ventriloquist with novel ideas; Sanos and Montes, comedy acrobats; Stylo, a clever hoopist; Harry Bancroft, vocalist; Payne's Bioscope; and the Okito Family, who in Chinese costume do some really clever tricks in the art of conjuring.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—There was a crowded house on Monday to welcome the return visit of Mr E. St. Alban's company in Les Cloches de Corneville. As Gaspard Mr E. St. Alban was excellent, and Mr George A. Fox as Henri, Marquis De Corneville, sang ably. Mr Geo. Delaforce as the Bailie and Mr Fowler Thatcher as Gobo were responsible for much humour. Miss K. Farrell charmingly filled the part of Germaine, and Miss Lucy Fitzroy was distinctly clever as Serpolette.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Ohmy.—Picitt has been a distinct draw here this week, his ability to extricate himself from all kinds of leg-irons, chains, and regulation handcuffs being indeed marvellous. Among others who contribute to the entertainment with success are Claude Ohmy, a most versatile performer; Abouty, the sliding wire wonder; Miss Chloe Comvere, with her cake-walking horse, and a beautiful statuary performance by Miss Ernestine Rose.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—Miss Winnifred Hare heads the bill this week, and proves a decided success, her song "The Little White Coon" being excellent. The Jackley Wonders are clever acrobats, and the funny business introduced is particularly good; Gerald Mount, a refined mimic, is excellent; Bandoni is a clever instrumentalist; and Gracie Compton is much applauded for her cleverly rendered songs. Dan Filmer is a smart comedian; the Motramos are seen in a really good sketch, which is musical and humorous; and Fox and Melville, song illustrators, are well received.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mysteries of the Thames, an exciting drama, played by Mr F. Brooke Warren's company, is the attraction this week. Mr F. Brooke Warren, who undertook the rôle of Captain James Denbigh, was unfortunately suffering from a bad cold, yet his hard task was ably performed. Miss Gwynne Warren in the dual-rôle of Helen Price and Grace Rochdale was much admired. Miss Lallah Shelton as Kate Brandon played this character in a winsome manner, and Miss Nellie Palmer as Little Doris proved very popular. Mr Roy Fortescue as Richard Brandon proved a versatile exponent, and his rendition of this difficult part was much applauded. Mr Dan Hardie as Peter Waggles and Mr Elton Morgan as Bill Bosco were also prominent.

SUNDERLAND.

AVENUE, LIMITED. — Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr George Edwardes's company, in The Toreador, is here this week. Mr Lionel Victor as Sammy Gigg is very droll; Mr T. W. Volt as Sir Archibald Slackitt causes much amusement; as Pettifer Mr W. H. Powell is excellent; and Mr Gobo were responsible for much humour. Miss K. Fred Allandale is successful as Augustine Trail. As Carajola Mr John Donald is an able representative; Miss Nellie Bouverie as Mrs Malton Hoppings is extremely good; Miss Daisie Wallace is charming as Dora Selby; Miss Alice Oppitz is an admirable Donna Teresa; and Miss Daisy Stratton as Susan is also successful.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—A Girl's Cross Roads was presented here for the first time on Monday. Miss Beatrice Homer as Barbara Wade is worthy of much praise. Others of the cast mostly distinguishing themselves are Mr Edwin J. Wylde, Mr Wingold Lawrence as Livingstone, Mr H. K. Ayliff as Lumley, Messrs J. Brooks, J. Hichens, Chas. Terry, and Miss Nellie Meadows. Miss E. Custance and Miss Octavia Noel are also well to the fore.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alfred Browne.—Mark Sheridan is appearing here in his latest successes, and W. H. Clemart, ventriloquist, presents a clever turn. Other interesting turns are given by the Trapnell Family of acrobats; Mueller and Coyne, variety entertainers; Minnie D'Aubyn, serio; Risto Brothers, contortionists and hand-balancers; and Will English, comedian.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce.—Mr Lawrence Brough and his company have been paying a return visit here with the amusing piece The Lady of Ostend. Mr Harry Hampson was remarkably good as Dick Whortles; Mr Percy Marshall made an excellent father-in-law, Joseph Carbury; Mr Edmund Gurney scored as Toby Krockitt, the prize-fighter; Mr Lawrence Brough gave a capital representation of Le Baron De Longueville; Miss Kate Milford was good as Dorothy Whortles; Miss Bessie Harrison made a praiseworthy mother-in-law, Matilda Carbury; and the Lady of Ostend, Jane, the maid, and Millie Grace were ably sustained by Misses May Cardew, Churchley Howell, and Margaret Anthony respectively. The play was well staged. The Cruise of the Saucy Sally was played on Thursday and Friday evenings.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—The attraction at this house during the week has been provided by Mr Harry Starr and his company, who are appearing in the musical comedy-drama, Carl the Clockmaker.

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners.—The Osmond Tearle répertoire company concluded their highly successful visit on Saturday with an exceptionally fine performance of The Lady of Lyons to a crowded house. This was followed on Monday by The Mockery of Marriage, a drama of a sensational nature, presented by Miss Olga Audré's company, under the business direction of Mr Arthur Wimpenny. The popular parts of the theatre were filled with an enthusiastic audience, and soon had their sympathies aroused by Miss Florence Zillwood's delightful impersonation of the part of Alva Kenyon. Mr Frank Dalton submitted an excellent study of Seth Pearce, and was rewarded with well-deserved applause, while Mr Harry Stebbing did well as the hero Jack Stanley. Mr Will Skelton as Toby Wright and Mrs Sidney Halling as Mary Ann were responsible for much genuine fun. Messrs A. Wimpenny and Harold Grahame, with Miss Lydia Audrey, were each seen to advantage in their respective parts. The leading feature of the production was the clever acrobatic feat of the Four Aces, who suspend themselves, one from the other, from the parapet of a railway bridge in order to rescue the heroine, who has been placed on the rails, before an approaching train runs over her.

TENBY.

DE VALENCE GARDENS.—Entertainment Directors, Messrs Baring Brothers; Acting-Manager, Mr W. E. Boycott.—A capital entertainment wound up the season by the Brescians orchestra and singers. Their charming costumes were greatly admired.

MR SYDNAY JAMES and party terminated their season with a benefit concert at the Assembly Rooms, which was well attended.

TORQUAY.

TYNEMOUTH.

PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr J. H. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Blome.—An excellent programme is provided here this week. Mr W. L. Murray, strong man, heads the bill, and is accorded a flattering reception; the Four Estrellas, acrobats, perform some wonderful feats; Madame Evans Warwick is a contralto of exceptional merit; Miss Vera Douglas, entertainer, causes considerable amusement; the Italian Orchestra, conducted by Signor Fossati, still continues to please with their well-rendered selections; and Mr Nelson Hardy, ventriloquial impersonator, meets with much approval. There is also a good show of animated pictures by the American Bioscope.

VENTNOR, I.O.W.

GRAND PAVILION.—Mr James Stephens's company opened here on Monday with Our Boys. Mr Stephens was an excellent Middlewick. Mr George Markwell made a dignified and impressive Sir Geoffrey Champneys. Mr T. G. Davies was a manly Charley. Mr J. Hart gave a quiet and effective reading of Talbot. Miss L. Victor was a bright and vivacious Mary, and never missed a point. Miss J. Elvin made a good Violet, Miss A. Hart was thoroughly sound as Clarissa, and Miss Viviane Douglas's performance as the lodging house-slavey, Belinda, was a clever study. On Tuesday The King of Beggars was performed, and on Wednesday The Life of an Actress.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr Leslie Norman's company, in the musical comedy A Trip to Chinatown, occupies the stage this week. Mr Charles Seguin repeats his clever, humorous impersonation as Mr Welland Strong; the character of Ben Gay is ably filled by Mr Jerrold Manville; Mr Leslie Norman acts well as Rashleigh Gay, and is ably assisted by Mr Oswald Smith as Saxon Blood; Mr S. Champion is well suited as Slavin Payne; and the eccentric dancing and all-round smart representation of Noah Heap, a waiter, is decidedly praiseworthy. Miss Harriet Fawn sings well, and makes a charming Mrs Guyer; Miss Dorothy Vicott is chic and vivacious as Flirt, a French maid; Miss Florence M'Innes is pleasing as Tiny Gay; and Miss Winifred Davies is admirable as Isabel Dames. The Three Canadian Belles' dancing wins applause.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Miss Madge Girdlestone and company opened here on Monday with the sensational drama The City of Millions. Mr Martin Sabine is highly successful as Captain Wilfred Dread; Mr Henry Nelson makes an excellent John Townsend; as John Stacey Mr Vernon Sansbury is very good; Mr David Denard is exceedingly funny in the part of the Hon. Benjamin Boodle; Miss Madge Girdlestone is seen to marked advantage as Rosa De Valois; Miss Gladys Vernon plays the part of Kitty Taylor with credit; and Little Audrey Sutherland does well as Jessie Townsend. The remaining parts are adequately acted.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Company, Limited; General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr C. Watson Mill's company with A Wrecker of Men. Mr C. Watson Mill capitally portrays the rôle of Jim Murley; Mr Alfred Maurice ably impersonates Guise Strange; Mr Chas. Yorke is well placed as Pharosaphus; Miss Rosalind Tate plays Rica Mallinson in a capable manner; Miss Victoria May gives a pleasing portrayal of Doris Melville; and Miss Kitty Melville is good as Vavasole Slopper.

WALTHAMSTOW.

KING'S THEATRE. — The resuscitation of the famous, or rather infamous, Figaro of Fleet-street is going on apace, and Mr Sweeney Todd has made his appearance here this week. The old play, rechristened simply Todd of Fleet-street, as presented by Mr Edward Sullivan's company, maintains its old-world reputation as a blood-curdler of the first order. As the malignant barber Mr Sullivan presents a character-painting of rare power and weird intensity. Mr J. Lake is a handsome and spirited Colonel Jeffery; Mr James Shaw a manly Mark Ingestree; Mr John Allen a capital Dr. Lupin; and Mr H. A. Cecil a clever and careful exponent of the jeweller. Miss Flo Denver is duly timorous as the barber's assistant, Tobias; Miss Ethel Blake plays Lucy; and the Mrs Lovett of Miss Nesta Sandford has its good points.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company is paying a return visit here in A Beautiful Fiend. The play is lavishly mounted and capitally acted. Miss Sidney Crowe makes a decided hit in the character of Wanda Lubinoff, which suits her style and appearance admirably. An attractive and bright Patty Woodlands is Miss Annie Clunn, and Miss Irene Munro is a pleasing and capable Nadine Karateff. Mr Montague Beaudyn is excellent as the unscrupulous Ivan Pauloviteh. Mr A. G. Polson is a powerful and earnest Fedor Katareff and Mr A. F. Dudley is good as Sergius Strogoff. The comedy element as supplied by Mr Charles Kean as Christopher Crackles causes much merriment, and a clever study of Nicholi Trolski is supplied by Mr F. H. Stanley.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmot.—Another excellent company is here this week, and the young American Quintette delight all with their glees and dancing. Walter Munroe, an old favourite here, scores with several songs, and Wat Tyler is a capable character vocalist. Arthur Stratton has a good voice which he uses to advantage, and young Igo, comedian and clog dancer, supplies a good turn. Edmunds is an especially clever ventriloquist, and the Royal Bioscope depicts several fine pictures illustrating the British Army.

PARR HALL.—Sole Lessee, Mr J. Lyon Whittle.—The New Century Company is showing a series of delightful pictures here this week, the chief being that illustrating the recent royal visit to Liverpool.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr J. C. Cranston.—Messrs Fred Sinclair and W. Burnett's company in the up-to-date drama, False Lights, is proving a big attraction here this week. Mr E. S. Petley as Captain Talbot does extremely well, and Mr Gerald Munroe gives a characteristic portrayal of Plympton. As Seth Kaye Mr David Hamilton submits an artistic rendering. Mr Lincoln Calthorpe as Denbigh Lennox scores successfully. The comedy parts of Jimmy Holly and Susie Hawthorn are capably acted by Mr Fred Ramsdale and Miss Connie Meadows respectively. Miss Alice Inman makes a charming and effective Ethel Forrester. The scenery and effects are excellent.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Fred Conneaux.—Messrs Carson and Granville present A Modern Adventuress this week, and the piece is well played by a capable company, from whom may be singled out for especial praise Miss Alice Defoe, who, as Vivette Delby, endows the character with an amount of realism that at once finds sympathy from the audience. As the cool, calculating adventuress, Violet Meredith, Miss Beatrice M. Anderson is admirable. Mr Charles Stirling as Harry Delby and Mr W. R. Winning as Wallace Danton acquit themselves creditably. Miss Mimi Fisher's Sally Hodges is a wonderfully faithful piece of character acting. Mr Frank Hilton is an ideal happy Yorkshireman as John Crompton, and Mr Leonard Aardale as Pietro Donelli and Mr Geo. P. Lester as Walter Beal ably sustain their rôles.

PALACE. — Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—Mdlle. Martha, a clever gymnast, delights and astonishes her audiences nightly. The Five Royal Zerbinis give an interesting musical performance, which is greatly enhanced by a capital stage setting; and other turns which complete the programme are Lily Black, comedienne; Zaro and Arno, comedy bar act; Bicknell, an expert clay modeller; Phillips and Lorenzi, pantomimists; Henriot and Sauvion, burlesque conjurors; Sisters Wingrove, duettists and dancers; and Milner Verren, vocalist.

TOWN HALL.—The second annual benefit of Messrs Bliss and Bliss, Park-road Pierrots, which was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday, was a huge success. In addition to the Bliss list of popular artists, which includes Geo. and Leo Bliss, Louis Kerno, Ernie Percival, Harry Tomlinson, Arthur Holland, Fred Clifford, and Bert Bertram (the latter at the piano), there appeared from the Palace (by kind permission of Mr Frank Macnaghten) and from the Empress (by kindness of Councillor Everton) the good old favourite comedian Frank Coyle, whom time limit prevented doing as many songs as the audience would have demanded, so hearty was the reception accorded him. Reuben Hill also met with a greeting that must have convinced him of the favourable impression he made. Harry Edson and his wonderfully intelligent dog Doc bewildered the audience with their performance, and Varley and Sinclair were also successful.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Payne.—Mr Charles Macdona's company opened here on Monday in Three Little Maids. Miss Vera Vallis (Ada), Miss Nellie Groves (Hilda), and Miss Doris Trevor (Edna) were exceedingly charming exponents of their parts, their acting, singing, and dancing being truly artistic. Miss May Wright as Gretchen deserves a special word of praise; Madame Ilma Norina was very successful as Lady St. Mallory; Miss Iris Coley (Lady Rosemary), Miss Margery Douglas (Venetia Grafton), Miss Eva Swinborne (Lady Marjory Crichton), and Miss Marie Herve (Miss Price) all gave delightful performances. As Lord Cheyne Mr F. Hulme Sharp was irresistible; his humorous acting kept the audience in one continuous roar of laughter. Mr Ewart Drake was equally successful as Cupid. Mr H. A. Welchman was a capital Brian Molyneux, his singing being especially good. The M. De L'Orme of M. Jules Charmettes was an excellent interpretation.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—This week the Dandies are making their mark and drawing large audiences. On Monday a delightful programme was submitted. Miss Dolaro's song "Little Mary" gained a decided encore; Miss Brickwell sang with much expression "The Gipsy Song," for which she was loudly applauded; Mr H. Rasson is a clever humourist, his sketch A Serial Story being much enjoyed; Mr H. J. Corner is the possessor of a powerful baritone voice, which was heard to great advantage; and Miss R. A. Davies did excellent service at the piano.

WEST STANLEY.

VICTORIA THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr T. C. Rawes; Resident Manager, Mr David Williams.—This theatre was filled on Monday with a highly appreciative audience to witness the production of the sensational drama The Worst Woman in London. Mr Edwin J. Collins as Jack Felton was highly successful; as Vincent Lyle Mr P. B. Lavers was very good; Mr Roy Byford as James Milford gave a creditable performance; and Miss Lilian Ross displayed ability in the rôle of Ruth Milford. Miss Constance Medwyn was excellent as Frances Vere, and the comedy element was well sustained by Mr George H. Asquin as Bob Goldfinch and Miss Helena Rigby as Matilda Parker.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Stanley Theatres Company, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Mark H. Lindon.—Mr and Mrs William Maclaren's company is here this week with Proof. As Pierre Lorance Mr Maclaren acts with his usual ability; as Lazare Mr Richard Fulton is admirable; Mr Ardene Linden is really good as Chamboran; and as Victor Mr Alfred Waring is most commendable. Miss Lily C. Bandmann is sympathetic in her portrayal of the part of Valentine, and as Adrienne Miss Gertrude Evans displays remarkable ability. Mrs S. Hay is a creditable Madame Deprets. Davy Garrick was given on Wednesday before a good audience, and The Lady of Lyons on Thursday.

WHITEHAVEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Clark.—Mr Julian Malvern's company, under the direction of Mr Chas. M. Julian, is engaged here in the drama I Defy the World. A powerful piece of acting is submitted by Mr Lewis Gilbert as Leon Darville, and he is capitally supported by Mr J. W. Worley as Count De Beaulieu, Mr Chas. Conway as Laroche, and Mr W. Denning as General Delaporte. Other parts of a long cast are capably enacted by Miss Guinevere Shilton as Pauline and Miss Lina Nazeby as Blanche Darville.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—This week's attraction consists of Miss Edith Ostlere's company, which is appearing in Dr. Wake's Patient, a new comedy of considerable merit and well-sustained interest throughout. The play is admirably performed, chief interest being centred round Miss Ostlere's portrayal of the part of Lady Gerania, which is a clever and artistic performance. Mr Dennis Eadie is excellent as Dr. Wake; Mr F. Percival Stevens is capital as Andrew Wake; the Earl of St. Olbyn has a capable exponent in Mr Charles Combe; while Mr W. Gayer Mackay's efforts as the Hon. Duff Wynterden are not only highly appreciated, but such appreciation is well deserved. Miss Hilda Thorpe gives a splendid exposition of the part of the Countess of St. Olbyn; Miss Violet Wilson is an attractive Harriet Bronson; and Mrs Henry Leigh's acting as Mrs Wake is very effective and natural.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr Fred Benton and Mr Fred J. Little; General Manager, Mr Fred Benton.—This week Mr and Mrs Charles Clifford's company is appearing here in On Circumstantial Evidence. For Friday and Saturday At Twelve Midnight was billed.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Barnard; General Manager, Mr W. H. Lennon.—This week's attractions include Bobby and Blank, horse musicians; Leener's Imperial Russians, singers and dancers; Gertie Gitana, in A School-girl's Holiday; and Will Hebden, comedian. The Solari Duo, vocalists and instrumentalists; Max Holdin, magician; Ferris and Farnley, comedians; Charles Somers, comedian; and Dolly Moore, male impers

WIGAN.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company, under the direction of Mr James Willard, has presented the powerful drama, A Woman's Pluck, in which Mr Jas. Willard, the author, acts with much originality the part of Dick Darrell. He is ably supported by Miss East Robertson, who gives a forceful representation of the character of Grace Daremont. Mr J. P. Dryden in the dual part of Mark Scanlan and Jim Daremont, "the Tiger," displays great histrionic ability; and the comedy of the piece is admirably furnished by Mr Harry Emmerson as Roger Pippen, the showman, and Miss Agnese D'Aragon as Ophelia Pippen.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—The chief attractions this week are Atlas and Vulcana, society athletes; Mendel, skilful blind pianist; and F. V. St Clair, the popular vocal comedian. Walter Sutton and Will Ellerslie are amusing comedians, and the Sisters Volbecque are capable duettists and dancers. The Dugros Trio give a fine aerial comic gymnastic act, and Texas Hattie is a daring acrobat on the bounding rope. The Clarion Trio are good comedians, vocalists, and dancers; and Florrie Bray, comedienne, is well received.

WINDSOR.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E. Rickett.—This house has been occupied during the week by Mr Charles R. Stone's musical comedy company, who presented My Sweetheart on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and What Became of Mrs Rackett on the following nights. Both plays have been well received and appreciated. In My Sweetheart Miss Daisy Stone assumed the leading rôle, Tina, with much vivacity, and displayed considerable calisthenic ability. Mr Gerald Wyatt successfully impersonated Tony Faust; the exaggerated dude, Dudley Harcourt, Mr Ernest M. Stone rendered admirably, his eccentricities and his favourite exclamation "Dash it all!" proving very effective. A well conceived presentment of Dr. Oliver was given by Mr Edwin Oxlee; Mr Edward Rawlinson did all that perhaps could be done with the part of Harold Bartlett, the designing adventurer, and was ably supported by Miss Edith Madelle as Mrs Fleeter. Miss Emily Kelsey as Mrs Hatzell, the farmer's wife, afforded great amusement; and the Farmer Hatzell of Mr A. Doubelle and the Jo Shotwell of Mr Charles Dixon were also satisfactory. Miss Winifred May is a smart dancer and coon songster, and the Sisters Anna and Flora Temple are exceedingly skilful dancers.

WORKINGTON.

QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Coates F. Porter.—On Monday night there was a capital audience to witness Woodbridge and Rondell's The Girl from Bond-street. Mr J. W. Woodbridge was good as Seacombe, Mr S. Liddiard was approved as Fielding, and Mr G. Watts as Maynard. As the waiter Mr S Sidney was humorous, Miss Phyllis Manners earned applause as Mrs. Harvey, Miss V. Varcoe was pleasing as Lucy, Miss B. Bartlett gave satisfaction as Lady Fielding, and Miss L Bezant was lively as Lottie.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Helsby Wright.—There was a good house on Monday, when A Woman's Revenge was played. Mr H. L. Osmond was capital as the hero, and Mr E. Frith was efficient as the villain. Miss W. Chalmers was charming as Mary. Elsie Videau was excellent as Little Mary. The cast throughout was satisfactory.

WORCESTER.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—Plenty of fun has been the order of the evening at this house during the week, Mr Milton Bode's company giving very sprightly performances of Gentleman Joe to highly appreciative audiences. This was particularly the case on Monday, the night of the "great September fair." The swell hansom cabby was capitally impersonated by Mr Kennedy Allen, whose humorous patter and funniosities caused many a hearty laugh. Miss Maud Marriott was excellent as Emma, her dancing being particularly good, and other favourites with the audience were Miss Mabel Kerridge and Miss Bliss, whose singing afforded much pleasure. Many other members of the company also did good service, including Mr H. A. Gribben (Pilkington Jones) Mr Sydney Benson (Dawson), Mr W. H Barlow (James), and Miss Elda Burman (the American girl); while the dancing of the Edingale Trio was appreciated.

WORTHING.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. B. Dixon.—Mr Charles Macdona's company opened here on Monday in A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr Steane Louch, who possesses both a fine presence and a capital voice, is excellent as the Emperor Hang Chow; Mr Louis Ashmeade is effective as the Lord Chancellor; Mr Lindsay Harman is good as the Lord High Admiral; Mr Arthur Foote is well placed as Tom Hatherton, his topical song proving very popular; Mr Sidney Burt in the rôle of Mr Pineapple extracts a maximum of genuine fun from the part; Miss Mabel Carlton is indeed excellent as Mrs Pineapple, her vocalisation and dancing being greatly admired; the general and continuous roars of laughter produced by the comicalities of Fi-Fi, as presented by Miss Ettie Cinders, are proof conclusive of the exceptional excellence of her portrayal of the character; Miss Gertrude Le Sage is entirely successful as Mrs Brown; Miss Adah Lacroft is a winsome Soo Soo, and sings well; and Miss Ethel Blair and Miss Marie Ford are respectively good as Florrie and Violet. The remaining characters are capable. A word of praise is due to a highly trained and able chorus under the masterly direction of Mr Jean Desormes.

WREXHAM.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls.—This week the performers have been the Bros. Leone, weight-lifting athletes, in novel feats of strength; Hart and Rudd, character duettists and dancers; Mr Tom Arnold, comedian; Miss Connie Nichols, comedienne and dancer; Mr Len Lever, the coffee-coloured coon; and Mr Walter Lester, refined quaint comedian.

YORK.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—On Monday a crowded house assembled to welcome Mrs Lewis Waller and her company in Zaza. Mrs Lewis Waller gave a wonderful representation of the title-rôle; Miss Kate Kearney played the rôle of Rosa Bonne admirably; and Miss Minnie Raynor as Nathalie caused much merriment. Mr Eric Mayne played the part of Bernard Dufresne in an easy and natural style; as the Duc De Brisac Mr J. Spurling was a decided success; and Mr Edmund Lea was excellent as Cascart. On Thursday evening San Toy was presented.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooke.—The visit of Mr John Tiller's spectacular ballet Ohio proved an immense attraction on Monday, when the various features were received with well-merited applause. The return visit of James Dubois, the monkey impersonator, was a great success; Tom Hayes, the juvenile mimic, was particularly well received; a very clever turn was given by Hector and Paulus, equilibrists; and the Esdale Brothers, comedians, caused roars of laughter.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904

"The Era" Annual, 1904, reappears with all the features that to metropolitan and provincial playgoers make it invaluable as a work of reference. It again contains a list of new plays and important revivals at the London and suburban theatres, with dates of production to the end of November; new plays submitted in the provinces; the theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary for the year; and other stage matters concerning which information is often desired. Each branch is excellently classified. What may, for convenience sake, be termed the "useful" portions of the "Annual" are sandwiched by forty short stories by popular actors and entertainers, the interest of these contributions being increased by autographs and portraits.—Daily Chronicle, Jan 16th. 1904

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.

"The Era" Annual, 1904, contains, as usual, many items and statistics of use and interest to all connected with the stage, and, in addition, a number of sketches and short stories by leading artistes, managers, and others. Among the contributors are J. L. Toole, Dan Leno, George R. Sims, George Robey, Huntley Wright, Harry Randall, Bransby Williams, A. W. Pinero, Louie Freear, Little Tich, George Mozart, and Douglas Crichton. The publication is cheap at a shilling.—Birmingham Daily Gazette, Jan. 16th, 1904

A TRIP TO THE PYRAMIDS.
ANOTHER MONEY-MAKER.
No. 155.

SCENE 1.—Exterior of the shop of Snooks and Son. Snooks, sen., is busy making great preparations for their annual trip. Much to his astonishment a number of customers arrive, some returning goods that are not satisfactory. One lady demonstrates in a forcible manner, leaving Snooks in one of his egg chests.

SCENE 2.—The booking office, where Miss Snooks arrives first, followed by Snooks, jun., Mrs Snooks, and the baby. The railway officials, eager for the departure of the train, place Snooks, sen., in a crowded position, with the result that the ticket office and Snooks come to grief.

SCENE 3.—We now find the Snooks family comfortably seated in a railway compartment; but, unfortunately, the kindness of the guard and the weight of Snooks and his wife terminate in a dreadful smash.

SCENE 4.—On board the Saucy Nellie. A life on the ocean waves. Snooks overcome. Man overboard! Saved!

SCENE 5.—On the way to the Pyramids. Safe at last. Oh, Jerusalem! A donkey ride, ups and downs, more downs than ups. Snooks, jun., distinguishes himself.

SCENE 6.—The base of the Pyramids. Mrs and Miss Snooks are sitting reading, Snooks, jun., makes an ascent and sits down. Snooks, sen., follows, with the assistance of the guides. Suddenly one of the guides comes rolling down the Pyramids, pulling Snooks, jun., with him. Snooks, sen., next comes rolling down rapidly and bumps into Mrs and Miss Snooks. The force of this sudden impact sends him rolling back again to the top.

A SPLENDID COMIC FILM. ORDER AT ONCE.

BERTIE'S COURTSHIP.
No. 154.

SCENE 1.—A pretty young lady is seated in a quiet spot when Bertie arrives. Bertie thinks she is a pretty little thing, and decides to mash her. She condescends to acknowledge his salute, and he at last persuades her to take a stroll.

SCENE 3.—The Proposal.

SCENE 4.—Katie's home. Bertie comes to ask Pa's consent, but Pa is furious, and kicks him down the steps. Katie begs for mercy, but Papa's dog also dislikes Bertie, and chases him over the garden wall.

General Booth's Motor Tour has been the sole absorbing topic in Great Britain for a month past. A campaign of the kind, with such a leader at the head, was sure of success, and successful it proved in the highest degree. Our operator, who had been following up "the General," succeeded in taking on the very last day of the tour a unique picture, briefly described as follows:—

PART 1.—General Booth's arrival at the Burgh Hall, Montrose. The procession of cars dashes up, and an exceptionally fine portrait is obtained as "the General" alights, assisted by his son. The Provost of Montrose extends a hearty welcome to his distinguished guest, and after chatting for a few seconds the pair walk into the hall, a close portrait being obtained.

PART 2.—At Bervie, Kincardineshire. A small coast village, all the inhabitants of which have gathered round the market cross; the children grouped around, hymn-books in hand, ready to give a hearty welcome of an appropriate kind to the aged patriarch. The procession then enters the square, and the General, with bared head, stands up and welcomes the dignitaries of the village. This formality over, he again rises to address his audience. The scene is unique. The aged preacher surrounded by the humble villagers form a most striking picture, and the vitality of this wonderful man is illustrated in a remarkable degree. Every movement of his face is distinctly seen, and one can almost imagine the words the General is uttering. We may add that General Booth is seen during the whole of the picture. Length, 160ft. Price, £4.

No. 214. SHOOTING THE RAPIDS, KILLARNEY.

An illusion, producing upon an audience the same effect as if they were undergoing the risk of being actually in the boat. A most extraordinary effect. Nothing of the kind has ever been attempted before. Length, 160ft. Price, £4.

No. 203. THREE LITTLE MAIDS.

No. 192. THE ELECTRIC SHOCK.

Some tiresome boys tamper with an electrician's door bell, much to his annoyance. He calls into service a 10,000 volts battery, which he connects with the bell chain. Result—postman, Jack Tar, Mary Jane, &c., are all nearly electrocuted. Length, 120ft. Price, £3.

No. 200. THE FATAL WIG.

A maiden fair, past the first bloom of youth, resorts to artifice in the hopes of renewing her charms. But youth will be served, and while the damsel is making a hit with her Sunday boy, some children on the other side of the garden wall procure their pa's fishing-rod, and hook a wig at a moment when the infatuated pair are locked in each other's arms. Length, 118ft. Price, £2 19s.

THE JONAH MAN;

This is a trick film of an entirely new character, embodying tricks which have never before been seen. It depicts in a very convincing manner the various troubles through which an unfortunate traveller has to pass in the endeavour to catch his train. First we see him in his bedroom just completing his toilet. His coat and hat are on, and he is just stooping down to lace up his boots when his coat gradually dissolves off his body and slowly appears on its original hook on the wall. He seizes it and puts it on again, and rushes to the breakfast-room. There his breakfast-table and all slowly disappear before his eyes, and various other discomforting accidents happen to him. He reaches the street, hails a 'bus, and climbs to the top. The horses gradually fade away, and the traveller descends again to look for them. While he is searching the omnibus disappears slowly, and leaves him in the road alone. He sits patiently on his portmanteau and waits for another 'bus, but it fades away while it is going along before he has time to get in. Then he decides to walk, but he overtakes another 'bus and jumps quickly upon it before it has time to fade. But it fades, nevertheless, and, dropping him through the bottom, leaves him rolling in the road. At the railway station even the trains behave in the same manner, and at last the traveller himself, seized by an invisible enemy, gradually fades and disappears altogether.
